

Diabolical Act.—On Monday week, a diabolical outrage was perpetrated in the borough of Peterborough, Pa. The citizens of that place were aroused from their slumbers at about 12 o'clock at night, by the report of a tremendous explosion.

PROBABLE DEATH FROM POISON.—The body of Mr. Samuel Hufford, a respectable citizen of Berks, Somerset county, Pa., who died last week, after a short illness, was dissected last week, and an inquest held over it by Charles Hokey, Esq. The jury, on the testimony of Mrs. Hokey and Kimmel, and others, brought in a verdict that he died from poison, administered by some person unknown.

A BROADIST.—A person signing himself Wm. H. B. Sheets, married a lady in Cincinnati, and came and took a house in this city—his wife went to the post office in Cincinnati some days since, and received a letter from his other wife, dated at Versailles, Ky., inviting him to come back and take care of his four children.

MYSTERY'S DISAPPEARANCE.—PROBABLE MURDER.—Mr. John B. Brown, of Fremont, Sandusky county, Ohio, left his home last Saturday to go to California. He had with him $200 in money and bills, which he carried wrapped up in his drawers. He also had with him a pocket book, containing a sum of money for current expenses.

TRIP TO BLOW HISSLER UP.—A Frenchman, resident in London, recently conceived an entirely new style of destruction. The first blowing in the market, exactly as it is confined to the "blowing" and filled the shell with about three ounces of gunpowder.

THE FLORIDA ORANGE TRAGEDY.—It was apprehended, says the Jacksonville News of Saturday week, that the orange trees might be injured by the severity of the past winter. But, so far from this being the case, there is every reason for believing that it will prove beneficial.

THE PROJECT OF EDUCATING FEMILES FOR DENIERS is urged by some modest masculine reformers, on the ground that it is indicative for opera lions on the teeth of ladies to be performed by gentlemen.

A lady in Louisville, Ky., was robbed a few nights since, by a fellow who secreted himself in the chamber until she had retired. The box containing jewelry, and that containing her rouge, were stolen, and she was obliged to go to the police.

MELANCHOLY.—An old gentleman by the name of Simons, was so badly injured by the falling of a tree on Friday last, that he died in a short time. He was lying in bed, and the tree fell on him, and he was killed.

The Chinese are pouring into California by hundreds. Some are highly delighted by this immigration, for reasons which need no explanation. Except for the reports that they make concerning us there is no reason to regret their coming.

IT WILL BE REMEMBERED the Jack Randall, Capt. Jennings, brought into the port of San Francisco, about a year ago, the survivors taken from a Japanese junk drifting in the ocean.

THE PAKAN EXPRESS.—It is to the Dutch all must resort who would know anything of Japan. They alone know anything about the Empire, or have published anything about it; but to those who cannot read their language, the books are sealed, for it is believed there are no translations of them in America or England.

IT WILL BE WELL if Commodore Alcock did not complicate the matter by his interposition, furnished by the Dutch policy; and it would seem he might render himself independent in that regard by using the Japanese in question, as teachers of their language to intelligent and trustworthy persons, selected from his officers.

A NOBLE ACT.—The late Mrs. Ware of Frankfort, Kentucky, by her will emancipated all her slaves—thirty in number—and, not content with giving up that which in a Southern market would command a good price, she bequeathed to the State, and set on foot, a school for the education of the children of her slaves.

A FAMILY PLOT.—On Monday of last week, the wife and seven children of Mr. E. K. Beck, of Perry township, Berks county, Pa., were poisoned by eating cakes in which arsenic had been accidentally put, and came very near losing their lives.

A SWAN.—A beautiful white swan, which with two mates had alighted in Chautauque Outlet in this village, was killed on the 24th inst. by Mr. Charles Baraga. It measured six feet and six inches from tip to tip of its wings, and twenty-seven inches from the end of its bill to the base of its neck.

CITY OF A-PAWALL.—This is the name given to the place above Charges, formerly known as Navy Bay. It is now the landing place of the Isthmian steamers and large wharves have been built for their accommodation.

NEWSPAPER ON SILE.—The Pekin, China, a newspaper of extraordinary size is published weekly on this date. It is said to have been started more than one thousand years ago—some say earlier than the one under the patronage of the big Queen Bess.

ERIE, PA. SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 17, 1852.

DEMOCRATIC STATE NOMINATION FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER. WM. SEARIGHT of Fayette County.

WE are again indebted to our friend Norcross, of Wells & Co's Express, for late Cleveland papers. LITTLE VALLEY ROAD.—We learn from the Jamestown Journal that the Engineers on the route of the Erie & New York City Railroad have reached Jamestown in their survey.

THE HOUR of the General Reporter has made what a Frenchman would call, "one grand discovery." It is no less than the bill to alter the Sanitary & Erie Canal to build a road from Erie to the Ohio Line to defeat the construction of such a road.

THE FIGHT.—Who does not like good fruit; and who crops a farmer raise that is profitable? These are questions easily answered, and as we are well provided with the answer will, we take pleasure in referring those interested to the advertisement in another column of Mr. Samuel Mahon, offering a very desirable lot of apples for sale.

COAL AS IN COAL.—Coal has been so dear this winter that now, since the canal has opened, one feels quite relieved in mind and purse at the sight of the piles that come pouring in from the mines. The best we have seen this season, and in fact the best we ever saw, is received by G. J. Morton, at his store-house on the Dock.

A NEW STORE.—John Sweeney is opening a new stock of goods next door to the Erie Bank, and it is said by those who have examined quality and price, that they are the cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market. His advertisements will appear hereafter.

THE CLEVELAND TRIP.—Democrat speaks of Deator Wood's recent passage on "Natal Reform," in this manner: OUR NAVY.—We lately received a copy of an Address on the subject, delivered by Wm. Maxwell Wood, M. D. Sirgoun S. S. Navy. It is a perfect exposition of our present Naval system.

THE ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY offers a reward of five hundred dollars for the best speck catcher. We are in favor of that, and propose "the female wren." ERIC GAZETTE.—Our friend of the Gazette proposes no right "prophecy" a remedy which he himself rejects.—CONCANT Reporter. Wrong, sir; wrong! He does not reject it. It is the other foot the boot is on. For five years or so certain knowledge he has been billing and cooing, and sighing like a sick monkey in a hot sun, and yet not a daughter of an "amiable woman" has taken pity on his condition.

THE DETROIT FREE PRESS is furious over the story that Willis of the Home Journal, challenged Mr. John Van Buren before he sailed for Bermuda. It says it mentions the story—half incredulous about it, and for this abundant reason—Willis is an editor, and editors are wanting in two essential elements of dueling: first, they are too good to offend a man, and they have too many means in their own hands to obtain satisfaction; and secondly, they are talking, notwithstanding from fighting men.

THE FLYING SHIP. REVUS PORTER advertises in the National Intelligencer a flying ship that will beat locomotives on railroads, and require no fuel of coal, oil, or gas, provided it "works." He calls it an A-toprot, and says one capable of carrying 150 passengers at a speed of 91 miles an hour, more safely than steam boats or railroad cars, will be constructed for $15,000, and that the expense of running it will not exceed $25 per day. He promises that the flying ship will make the trip to California or to Europe in three days, and by way of inducement to every body to take shares in the A-toprot, of $5 each, he "cynophones" that a single share will produce an income of $20 per week.

THE KEYSTONE left this port yesterday morning with the largest load of passengers she ever carried.

Another Railroad Excitement.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

Let us Reason Together.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

New Advertisements.

Warren's Hat Store. HAVING received a new assortment of hats, I am prepared to receive orders for the same at the lowest prices.

Michigan Central Rail Road. The next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Buffalo Bazaar. THE BUFFALO BAZAAR, which is now in progress, is a most interesting and profitable one.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

Small Onions for Sale. I have a quantity of small onions for sale at a low price.

Notice. THE next meeting of the Erie & Western Medical Society will be held at the American Hotel, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. at 10 o'clock.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.

It is contended by the opponents of the transfer of the Western road to the Sanbury, that such a proceeding will be a virtual abandonment of Erie as the terminus of that road—that Erie will become a mere watering point on the route from Philadelphia to Cleveland, and it is argued, therefore, that both the county and city subscription ought to be withdrawn instantly.