125 Some persons die and never get tired, and others get tired and die—commercial.

I abominated them; there is another class that die and never get tired, yet without laying down to sleep. It is easy to see that our contemporary is of this class.

A HOTEL OUTRAGE IN LORRY MONTGOMERY.—A. L. Montez was entertaining a party of friends in her parlor at the Howard House last evening, performing words or acts between herself and a certain Italian chevalier, when the brat in the shape of a man, struck the countess in the shape of a woman, bawd on the face! Four or five exasperated hearts leaped in breeches, stood by without lifting a finger in her defense. I am immediately on recovering rang the bell, and despatched a servant for her trial. Mr. Dicks, who came to the rescue, gave the Italian a well deserved flogging. We have the effect of one of the parties. We would give more punishment, but for the lack of time and space. We understand that there is great excitement among some of the Italian Coffee Houses, and are likely to grow out of the affair.—X. J. Mirror.

PENNSYLVANIA.—"Kossuth," says the telegraph report, viewed the resting place of Washington for some time with deep emotion, and withdrew to the adjacent room to commune alone."

This reminds us of the immediate Pecksniff, who when he had discharged poor Tom Pritchard, in duty owed to society, at the same time, reflected that a few years in the back garden as an humble individual!"—Nin. Gaz.

American Union Health Association.

It will be seen that this Association, located at Utica, N. Y., has established a Branch office in this city. Unlike most such associations, this company proposes to insure the health of its members, and to render the payment of losses certain, the income of this branch will be deposited here for the benefit of its members here; thus, at once obviating the objection usually urged against such companies, that there is no certainty of losses being met. O. H. Irby has received the appointment of Actuary, and a regular finance committee of our own citizens selected. Taking these facts all in view, we have no hesitation in recommending the concern to the patronage of the public.

27 Every day furnishes us evidence that we are fast becoming a city. Business is assuming more of a city character. Instead of the "track-and-dicker" system of pushing groceries and silks side by side, parcels and coffish in juxtaposition, whiskey and hams in close proximity, each kind of trade is being separated, and the last day that now wishes to purchase a silk or a satin does not have to stumble over a barrel of rum, or keg of beer over a task of oil, in reaching the counters of our dealers. We have been led to these reflections—inappropriate though they may seem,—by the advertisement of our friend A. A. Craig's Ready Made Coffe Ware House. Heretofore this branch of trade has been carried on by our Cabinet Makers, but as we become a city, city fashions, and city necessities must rule, and the Ready Made Coffe Ware House is a city necessity. If any of our readers should be called upon to patronize Mr. Craig—and we certainly hope they never will—they find in his establishment every thing desirable, and what is of more consequence, a little cheaper than articles in this line are furnished when ordered.

Bates offers a splendid lot of Goods at Auction to-day, consisting of Broad Cloths, Camisoles, Satins, Brocade and Bleached Sheetings and Shirtings, and a variety of Gold Watches, Chains, and other trinkets, too numerous to mention. This is the spot for bargains and no mistake. Don't forget the location, No. 4, Tracy's Block.

37 Followers' Mantles sing again to night. These who have visited the entertainments of this celebrated Band in New York—(and who has visited the city has not?) will not fail to be on hand to-night, as it is positively their last appearance in this city. As some evidence of their popularity, we may mention here that they sang for over a week in Buffalo, and drew a crowded house every night.
