Great complaints are made relative to corruption, and improper practices generally, occurring under the direction of the Board of the United States Nuval Engineers. It seems that Mr. Fillmore, having removed Mr. Haswell on the ground of incompeted cy, has installed as Chief Engineer an individual named Stuart, a civil engineer. Mr. 11. is said to man ago, he wanted to know whether the returns were know literally nothing of the duties incident to the post of head of the Board. Under the administrain of that contlamen a custom has contra un which is working almost unparaticled mischief. Thus:one of the subordinates of the Board, named Sewell, the House if not incompatable with the public interest, has surreptitiously obtained patents—one for an imwhat measures, if any, have been taken since January provement in boilers which has been long in use in ist in relation to the capture and condemnation by the England, and another for an instrument to indicate Spanish authorities of the Susan Lond, of Maine, and when builers require "bluwing out," of which the plan had been previously, explained to the Board, and for which a caveat had been filed three years before -the intimate of this Mr. Sewell, who issued the patent, alleging that he really had forgotten that the rights of others would be invaded in granting it di dangerous example in using the patents of one of their own members, at a heavy cost to the Treasury. The boilers of the Princeton, which have proved defective, were built on one of these patents. (the pilfered English pateus) and their failure has Cost the Treasury, at least, $100,000.
