The News from Europe.

The news from Europe is startling; and notwithstandenough to warrant an anxious look out for the next steamer. Mazzigi and Kossuth have both issued proclumations to their followers calling them to arms, in obedience to which an outbreak has already taken place at Milan. The particulars of this affair are necessarily confused and contradictory. They came through sources apposed to the insurgents, and it is quite natural to suppose they would be moulded to suit their interests and purposes. Such, however, as have reached the Euglish and American journals, concur in acknowledging that an extensive conspiracy, of which Mazzini appears to have been the moving spirit, has been going on in Northorn Italy, only awaiting an opportunity for an entbreak. On Friday, February 4th, numerous arrests were made at Milan. The utmost excitement and distress were created, and on the 5th upwards of two hundred families fled across the Swiss frontier and took refuge in the Canton of Ticino. On Sanday, February 6th, an insurrection of the people broke out in the city. There were three simultaneous outbreaks in different localities. The number engaged in it is variously stated. The Zerich Gazette states that 400 men, armed with poniards, attacked a detachment of troops and gendermes, and that 300 persons were killed. The troops were Austrian. The most serious attack of the insurgents seems to have been upon the barracks. The Austrian authorities prevented the transmission of any full reports, and the impression is that the outbreak was more serious than any published account represents it. Certain it in that the reports at Berne and other places in Switzerland represented it as very serious. How long the fight lasted does not appear. The Swiss Consul at Milan, under date of February 7th, says the outbreak was promptly suppressed. Telegraphic despatches of a similar tenor were received in Paris: On the 8th ult., however, the gates of Milan were shut, and it was supposed the fighting had recommenced. Similar outbreaks were expected in other places, and indeed it is stated that they had occurred on the 6th in several towns of Lombardy besides Milau. On the 6th, says the Turin Journal, a cabinet council was hastily-convened by the King, to take meaaures to check the revolution. Measures were promptly taken to prevent the Milanese refugees from crossing the frontier. The government accounts report that the most profound quiet prevailed at the last dates. In various cities of Tuscant domiciliary visits have been made, succeeded by numerous arrests. It has been suggested treops into Italy; and accordingly we hear that a very head of the movement.

ing it is, in many respects, contradictory, yet there is THE LOFTY AND THE LOWLY; or Good in All and None All Good. By M. J. McIrronn. In two volumes. New York: D. APPLETON & Co. 1853.

These two volumes contain one of the very heet tales we have read this many a-day; and what is more; the moral it inculcates is as excellent as the story is interesting, Although not professedly written as and answer to that worst of modern fictions, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," it is nevertheless a most faithful picture of both Southern and Northern seciety as they are; or rather, as they used to be! In the development of the plot, and the anvailing of the various characters of the actors, the prajudices and peculiarities of the people of the different sections of the Union are most graphically depicted; and as the title indicates, while "none are all good" it is shown that there is "good in all." In regard to the" Uncle Tom" characterities of these volumes, the fair asthoress herself very gently and beautifully disclaims any such intentions. She save: "The following rolumes were commenced nearly two years ago, immediately after the publication Woman in America. Laid aside for a time, from the casure of other engagements, they were resumed during the past summer, [1852] and have been concluded with little, if any, modification of their original plan .-They had their origin," she continues, "in the desire to remove some of the prejudices separating the Narthern and Southern States, by a tree and leving portraitare of the social characteristics of each. To do this for the South required, of course, the introduction of negro slavery; and though with a painful consciousness that she was nearing the elements of strife, the author has audeavored to sketch it as it appeared to her during an acquaintance with it of more than twenty years." convinced that it will cure almost every chronic disease if taken in time.

In the fall of 1848, I was violently attacked with cold and infla-mation of the lungs, which was accompanied with a very dismation of the langs, which was accompanied with a very distressing cough, pain in the breast, side and back; with a very considerable discharge of offensive matter from the lungs, shortness of brenth, loss of appetite, night aweats, &c. The family physician was called in, and did all within his power, but gave me no relief. My symptoms grew worse, and I found that I was it has sinking into consumption; I became so weak that I was not able to set up but a few minutes at a time. My physicians advised me to use patent medicines; I did so for some time, but with no better success. He then told me that in the spring I would get better or worse. My friends from a distance came to see me as they supposed for the last time. I then called in another physician, and under his care and the warm weather, I got so that I could walk and idea about unit fail; then I sunk down again, and my physician said that if I did not go south, I could not live longer than spring, so I gave up all hopes of recovery. During the summer of 1850 I saw your advertisement, and concluded to see you, which I did, learned your course of treatment, and to my great astonishment, in six or eight weeks I was able to walk all over town and see my friends and neighbors, who were as much astonished as myself. This was in the spring of 1851, and all the had symptoms had left me, and I began to enjoy pretay good inealth.

In April last I was much exposed while riding on the canal, took a severe cold, and suffered a return of old symptoms, which your medicines effectually removed as before. I now eaply very tolerably good health, and stand a fair days labor. I am 49 years tolerably good health, and stand a fair days labor. I am 49 years old.
