THE PRESIDENT ON MONEY. A Firm Declaration for a Gold Standard.

President McKinley's address at the banquet of the National Association of Manufacturers was primarily a reply to the speeches which the free silver senators had been making during the week.

He have been advocating the adoption of the old Matthews resolution, interpreting it as a demand for the free coinage of silver dollars, which cheap dollars they claim the government would have the option to use in the payment of its bonds.

Senator Teller admitted in effect that the Matthews resolution introduced by him contained the dishonorable doctrine of free coinage at the ratio of sixteen to one, changing the money standard of the country to silver monometallism, and creating a debased currency worth 40 cents on the dollar.

Cockrell and other senators defended the use of that debased currency in paying public creditors on the ground that it would be "legal." The president's swift rejoinder to these infamous declarations is:

"The money of the United States is and must forever be unquestioned and unassailable. If doubts remain they must be removed. If weak places are discovered they must be strengthened. Nothing should ever tempt us—nothing ever will tempt us—to scale down the sacred debt of the nation through a legal technicality."

Whatever may be the language of the contract, the United States will discharge all its obligations in the currency recognized as the best throughout the civilized world at the time of payment.

This is as much a reply to Vest, Teller, Daniel and the other senators who have been insisting that the government should use a technicality to defraud its creditors as if he had sent a message to congress stating his position on the question of the standards.

Instead of sending a message to congress the president has sent one to the country. He assures the people that while he is president there shall be no such tampering with the currency as shall stain the honor of the nation or injure one of its citizens.

The free silver senators call for cheap, dishonest dollars in order that the creditors of private individuals and corporations may be cheated as well as those of the government. The answer of the president to them is:

"Nor will we ever consent that the wages of labor or its frugal savings shall be scaled down by permitting payment in dollars of less value than the dollars accepted as the best in every enlightened nation of the earth."

That is the pledge the president gave before he was elected. He came out victor in the contest because of that pledge. He proposes that the executive branch of the government shall be true to it. That is his latest message to the men who supported him in 1896.

The free silverites who reintroduced the Matthews resolution did so as a defiance—with the intention of serving notice on the president and the house of representatives that nothing could be done in congress to strengthen the gold standard, and also of serving notice on the sound money men generally that the battle of 1896 is to be fought over again.

The reply of the president to this challenge is emphatic. He declares that:

"Under existing conditions our citizens cannot be excused if they do not redouble their efforts to secure such financial legislation as will place their honorable interests beyond dispute. For us to attempt nothing in the face of the present fallacies and the constant effort to spread them is to lose valuable ground already won and practically to weaken the forces of sound money for their battles of the future."

The house of representatives, where the sound money men are in the majority, must not be inactive, because no measure it adopts, no matter how salutary it may be, can pass the senate. It must endorse the gold standard unequivocally and send that endorsement to the senate and the country. "Better an honest effort with failure than the avoiding of so plain and commanding a duty."

As the free silver democrats intend to make "sixteen to one" the issue at the congressional elections this year and the presidential election two years later, the sound money men must not be inert, but must from now on combat the fallacies of their opponents as strenuously as they did during the campaign of 1896.

This advice must be acted on. The second campaign in behalf of sound money must commence now, not merely in Washington, but throughout the country. The sound money men committed an almost fatal blunder by failing to meet the demand for the cheap silver dollar long before so many had been deluded into supporting it. They cannot sleep on their arms now while their adversaries are up and doing.

FACTS ABOUT SILVER. Comments of a Former Director of the Mint.

E. O. Leech, formerly director of the mint, and now second vice president and cashier of the National Union bank at 30 Nassau street, said, in speaking of the situation in the silver controversy:

"It is somewhat remarkable that the Teller resolution that the obligations of the government are legally payable in silver dollars—a fact no one disputes—should have been reported to the senate just at the moment that the Indian government took the final step to place that great empire on a gold basis by a law authorizing the issue of currency notes against deposits of gold."

Next to the closing of the mints of India to the free and unlimited coinage of silver this is the most significant and important fact in recent monetary legislation—far more important than the adoption of the gold standard by Japan, for the reason that for ages India has been the great absorber of the surplus silver product, the 'silver sink of the world,' and the most active mover in the efforts for international bimetalism.

In marked contrast to the action of the great silver nations of the orient, in the efforts to place their domestic and foreign commerce on the same basis of valuation as that of the commercial countries of Europe, is the pitiful piece of political bravado now being enacted in the senate of the United States, where grave and reverend senators declare with mock solemnity that the obligations of the government of the United States—which has had the gold standard practically since 1834, and legally since 1870—which is bound by duty, honor and self-interest, as well as by an unbroken line of practice for over 35 years, to pay its obligations in coin of full value—may legally be paid in dollars which contain less than 50 cents' worth of pure metal.

To what a helpless and ridiculous position has the silver controversy in the United States degenerated, when the only feasible way of keeping it alive is to get an irresponsible combination of democrats, populists and 'silver-producing' senators to resolve that the bondholders better keep shy of the obligations of this government, for the said combination declare that the bonds 'may be paid in silver dollars. What an inspiring spectacle it must be to the youth of the country to see the highest legislative body of our land seriously at work to injure the national credit and dishonor the national faith!

Fortunately, every intelligent citizen knows that the farce which is being enacted in the senate chamber is simply an effort to galvanize Bryanism, and still more fortunate is the fact that the people of this country decided by a decisive majority at the last national election that 'all our silver and paper currency must be maintained at a parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States, and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nation of the earth.' The resolution reported from the finance committee of the senate ought to be entitled: 'The senate against the people in the matter of free silver.'—N. Y. Sun.

While the department refused to add anything to this meagre announcement, it can be stated without question that Mr. Woodford was directed to lay the facts developed before the Spanish government, together with the statement that in view of the minister's refusal to deny the authorship of the letter the Spanish government is looked to with confidence to deal with the case properly. This amounts to an invitation to recall the minister, presuming that he himself has not already taken steps to vacate his position. No doubt is entertained of a compliance with the implied suggestion, but in case there should be any delay in acting, the state department would feel called upon to move directly in the matter and give the minister his passports, as was done when Sir Julian Pauncefote's predecessor, Lord Shackville, wrote the celebrated Murchison letter.

The circumstances under which a letter of this character could escape the privacy of the two persons between whom it passed excites much comment. The general belief is that it was never delivered to Senor Canalejas, but was stolen while en route. Canalejas was in Washington some months ago and then went to Cuba for the purpose of observing the condition of affairs there. As a former minister in liberal cabinets—having been minister of justice—and as the editor of El Heraldo at Madrid he was accorded a warm reception by Minister De Lome, who gave a banquet in his honor, which was attended by a number of prominent public men. He then left for Cuba, and his mission brought him into continued correspondence with De Lome.

The mention of the approaching autonomous cabinet, establishes that it was before the inauguration of the cabinet, January 1. This places the letter as having been written about the middle of December. At that time Canalejas was in Havana, prosecuting his mission. The handling of the mail is done by the Spanish authorities, so that in this case it is believed the loss of a letter of this character could occur only one of two ways: Either through treachery of an official in the postal service, or by being taken after it had reached the hotel where Senor Canalejas was stopping.

Senor De Lome received a number of callers during the day and to those sustaining a close relation to him he did not question the authenticity of the published letter.

Fillibusters Slip Away to Cuba. New York, Feb. 16.—Another fillibustering expedition to the Cuban insurgents is believed to have got away from the Long Island coast near Montauk Point on Monday night and to have carried the members of the expedition that was shipwrecked on the Tillie a couple of weeks ago. The arms and ammunition for this last expedition are said to have been carried from this city by the steam lighter Agnes, alleged to be owned by McAllister Bros., who owned the Tillie.

Americans' Losses Because of War. Washington, Feb. 16.—A memorial was presented to the president yesterday by a delegation of New York business men representing a large number of influential firms in that city asking that action be taken by this government to the re-establishment of peace in Cuba. The memorial recites that the war in Cuba during the last three years has resulted in a yearly loss of import and export trade between Cuba and the United States of $100,000,000. In this sum is not included the heavy sums lost by the destruction of American properties in Cuba.

DE LOME MUST GO. His Criticism of Mr. McKinley Can't be Tolerated.

Spain's Minister at Washington Declines to Deny that He Penned the Insulting Letter and Only One Course Remains for Our Government to Take—His Recall Demanded.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The publication in yesterday's newspapers of what purported to be an autograph letter written by Senor Dupuy De Lome, the Spanish minister, to his friend Canalejas criticizing the president with the utmost freedom caused a sensation in official circles at Washington and soon will be followed by De Lome's departure from the United States.

At the outset there was a disposition to question the authenticity of the letter, but as bit by bit the circumstantial evidence accumulated until it was finally announced officially that the minister declined to deny the authorship of the letter, all doubt was dissipated and the only course that remained was as to the line of action to be pursued by our government toward the offending minister. The writing of this letter is unquestionably an offense against the amenities of diplomatic relations, and such offenses almost invariably have been regarded as sufficient ground for the termination of the official status of the letter writer.

As soon as the letter appeared in the press the state department officials began an effort to settle its authenticity, and when they learned all that could be developed on this point and had been told that the minister himself did not deny writing it, the consideration of the next step began. Assistant Secretary Day was in consultation with the president on the subject at least four times during the day, and then spent much time in framing a message to United States Minister Woodford at Madrid. The official statement of the sending of this message was accompanied by a declination to indicate its contents at this time, the department merely giving to the press the following statement:

"Minister De Lome does not deny writing the letter. This department has communicated with Gen. Woodford on the subject. Until that communication reaches the Spanish government it would be improper to in any manner state the contents of the message to Gen. Woodford."

While the department refused to add anything to this meagre announcement, it can be stated without question that Mr. Woodford was directed to lay the facts developed before the Spanish government, together with the statement that in view of the minister's refusal to deny the authorship of the letter the Spanish government is looked to with confidence to deal with the case properly. The Alternative.

The police justice had formerly been a bartender. He had gone into politics and had been elected by a big majority. This was his first case. Mary McMannis was up before him for drunkenness. The justice looked at her a minute and then said sternly: "Well, what are you here for?" "If yer please, yer honor," said Mary, "the copper heyan't pulled me in, sayin' I was drunk. An' I don't drink, yer honor; I don't drink."

"All right," said the justice, his former bartender habit getting the best of him; "all right; have a cigar."—Detroit Free Press.

BEWARE OF MORPHINE.

Mrs. Pinkham Asks Women to Seek Permanent Cures and Not Mere Temporary Relief From Pain.

Special forms of suffering lead many a woman to acquire the morphine habit. One of these forms of suffering is a dull, persistent pain in the side, accompanied by heat and throbbing. There is disinclination to work, because work only increases the pain.

This is only one symptom of a chain of troubles; she has others she cannot bear to confide to her physician, for fear of an examination, the terror of all sensitive, modest women.

The physician, meantime, knows her condition, but cannot combat her shrinking terror. He yields to her supplication for something to relieve the pain. He gives her a few morphine tablets, with very grave caution as to their use. Foolish woman! She thinks morphine will help her right along; she becomes its slave!

A wise and a generous physician had such a case; he told his patient he could do nothing for her, as she was too nervous to undergo an examination. In despair, she went to visit a friend. She said to her, "Don't give yourself up; just go to the nearest druggist's and buy a bottle of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will build you up. You will begin to feel better with the first bottle." She did so, and after the fifth bottle her health was re-established. Here is her own letter about it:

"I was very miserable; was so weak that I could hardly get around the house, could not do any work without feeling tired out. My monthly periods had stopped and I was so tired and nervous all of the time. I was troubled very much with falling of the womb and bearing-down pains. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; I have taken five bottles, and think it is the best medicine I ever used. Now I can work, and feel like myself. I used to be troubled greatly with my head, but I have had no bad headaches or palpitation of the heart, womb trouble or bearing-down pains, since I commenced to take Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman. The use of one bottle will prove what it can do."—Mrs. LUCY PEARLEY, Derby Center, Vt.
