COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. Pinkham Relieved Her of All Her Troubles.

Mrs. MADGE BARCOCK, 176 Second St., Grand Rapids, Mich., had ovarian trouble with its attendant aches and pains, now she is well. Here are her own words: "Your Vegetable Compound has made me feel like a new person. Before I began taking it I was all run down, felt tired and sleepy most of the time, had pains in my back and side, and such terrible headaches all the time, and could not sleep well nights. I also had ovarian trouble. Through the advice of a friend I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and since taking it all troubles have gone. My monthly sickness used to be so painful, but have not had the slightest pain since taking your medicine. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too much. My husband and friends see such a change in me. I look so much better and have some color in my face."

Mrs. Pinkham invites women who are ill to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is freely offered.

GIFT FOR AN INVALID.

Unique and Charming Idea for Bringing Holiday Sunshine into a Sick-Room.

Is there among your friends a weary invalid for whom you are longing to do something beautiful and helpful at the coming holiday season? If so, you cannot do better than to undertake the preparation of a wonder bag for Christmas. A wonder bag is a large bag filled with gifts from many friends, which are to be drawn out on special days, according to accompanying directions. It may be arranged to last for any length of time—three months, six months or a year—drawings being made once, twice or thrice a week, as may seem best. Since the recipient of the bag is not given a list of the donors, nor informed of the character of the gifts, a double surprise awaits her at each drawing. This contributes not a little to the novelty and charm of the scheme.

Make a strong bag of suitable material—cretonne, denim, canvas or linen. Embroider it with initials, a monogram or other suitable design, and finish it with stout draw-strings of broad ribbon. Since it is to hang in the sick-room for so long a time it should be made not merely durable and serviceable, but also dainty and attractive. Wrap each article in tissue paper, using many tints; mark it with the name of the donor, and tie it securely with narrow ribbon of a contrasting color, leaving one end long enough to be used in drawing it out. Pack the parcels carefully in the bag, heavier ones at the bottom, and let the long ribbons hang outside at the top. Gifts appropriate for special days, such as the invalid's birthday, July 4, April 1, Easter Sunday, February 22, a "very weary day," a "stormy Sunday," etc., may be designated by tiny cards attached to their ribbons. Most of the gifts, however, should be left without dates in order that the invalid may have the privilege once in awhile of deciding which ribbon to draw.—Belle M. Brain, In Woman's Home Companion.

TIES AND BELTS FOR FLANNEL WAISTS.

Several of the large stores are displaying new ties and belts which come in sets to be worn with flannel or cashmere shirt waists. These ties and belts are of bright stripes and brilliant plaids and will play a prominent part in the minor articles of the toilette during the season. They are usually seen to match each other or are as near alike as possible. The belt clasps are varied and beautiful. Many have the United States flag on one side and military emblems on the other.

CORN HUSK BASKET.

How to Make a Dainty Article Which Is Not Only Useful But Equally Ornamental.

Now is the season to make a corn husk hanging basket. When the husks are old and tough after the frost has touched them they are strongest. Dry them in the sun.

It would be hard to find a cook too modest to claim a knowledge of mush-making; yet how many, even among experienced housekeepers, make good mush? Boiling water, cornmeal and salt—what simpler than to put them together and cook them? Yet much of indifferent meal properly made may be better than that made of the best meal wrongly handled. The water must be freshly boiled and salted, and all the meal as it goes in must encounter the same fiercely-boiling temperature, to burst the starch-cells, as direct heat "pops" corn. Therefore, making mush takes time, for the meal must be added so slowly as not to stop the boiling, as well as to avoid lumps. A thick iron pot, porcelain lined, is the best thing to cook it in, and a wooden spoon or paddle should be used for the stirring. Sprinkle the meal in slowly with the left hand while stirring with the right. The proportions of the ingredients will vary with the quality of the meal or its character (whether crushed or cut), but an average rule would be four quarts of water, one quart of meal and two tablespoonfuls of salt. When all the meal has been smoothly stirred in, cover the pot closely, and stand it where it will give an occasional bubble for three or four hours—or for half a day. Do not disturb the surface, as stirring permits the "extractives" or flavors to escape. Mush made of good meal by the above method, and served with rich cream, is a royal dish.—Ella Morris Richschmar, in Woman's Home Companion.

WOMEN IN TURKEY.

They Enjoy Freedom of Speech and Wives Retain Full Control of All Their Property.

Divorce is rare among the Turkish peasants and the peasant women seem far happier than their wealthier sisters. The peasant man of Turkey is an upright, wholesome fellow, is kind to his wife and family and not capricious, as is the Turk of luxury. Turkish ladies of rank are as addicted to cigarettes and coffee as are their husbands. Every Turkish lady starts in her day with a cup of coffee and several cigar-

Relationship Based on Remote Personages Was Difficult to Prove.

There is a young lady not far away who has a little private school and the other day she overheard the following conversation among her pupils:
"It was Monday and one of them had evidently been made in pressed with her Sunday school lesson of the day before, for as soon as another little girl came in, she assailed her by the announcement: 'You are my sister.'
"I'm not," said No. 2.
"You are," said No. 1, "haven't you got a Father in Heaven?"
"Yes," grudgingly.
"Well, so have I. Don't that make you my sister?"
No. 2 was entirely nonplussed at that and No. 1 correspondingly victorious; so when another little girl arrived upon the scene she thought she would try the same thing on her, too, and walking up before the newcomer announced as before: "You are my sister."
Now No. 3 happened to be a young lady of a very determined disposition and she declared just as firmly that she was nothing of the sort, and the "I'm nots" and "You are's" flew very fast for a minute, until No. 1 brought out her knockdown argument: "Haven't you got a Father in Heaven?" and stood awaiting the answer with a victorious smile.
But imagine her chagrin and the teacher's amazement when the other sputtered forth: "No, I haven't, and you know it. I've just got one grandfather up there!" and strode on to her seat, leaving the enemy vanquished behind her.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Marie, have you not guessed what it is that troubles me?"
"Yes, you're afraid there may be another call for men and you'll have to go and fight."
An hour afterward he was still walking around in a circle and wondering whether she really meant it or not.—Chicago Evening News.

AN ADMIRER OF WOMEN.

A Matrimonial Repeater Who Got More Enamored with Each Subsequent Wife.

I was riding along the road leading across Hartline gap, in the pine mountain range, thinking of the peculiar people who lived in these fastnesses, when I was startled by a voice up the hillside calling to me to come up and give somebody a lift. I had no idea who owned the voice, but whoever it was was in trouble, and I responded and found a man of 60 or more, caught by the foot under a fallen tree and unable to get away. He wasn't hurt, and soon had him on his feet, and he insisted on my stopping further down the mountain and taking dinner with him. He lived in a well-kept cabin with his daughter, and after dinner we sat in the shade of a tree in the yard and he told me about himself. "Air you married?" he asked, after he told me he was a widower. "No, but I hope to be some day," I answered, quite sincerely. "You ought to be; every man ought to be; a man that ain't ain't showin' a right feelin' to'rd's what the Lord's done for him, thar ain't nothin' on the face uv God's green earth that is a patchin' to a woman, I don't keer what kind she is." "You're hale and hearty yet," I said, "and I don't see why you don't take some of your own advice." "No, I don't," he said, waving his hand as if warding off my attack. "Don't you crowd the mourners, I'm figgerin' on sevel' this very minute, and I ain't quite shore yet which one to pick. I've been married four times, and every time I've married a woman who has got so much higher that I'll be durned if I don't kinder look forrerd to losin' a wife jist for the satisfaction uv gittin' another one."
The idea was so entirely new that I was overcome by it.—Washington Star.

The Review of Reviews Co. is just about to publish the Standard History

"OUR WAR IN TWO HEMISPHERES" BEING A HISTORY OF THE WAR WITH SPAIN

by Albert Shaw (editor of the American Monthly Review of Reviews), and many other notable contributors of special chapters. Over 1,200 pages, over half a thousand portraits and other illustrations. The first edition of this book is printed on the finest enameled paper, and bound beautifully in half morocco, in three large volumes.

Every American, and especially every American who had a relative or friend "at the front," will wish to own this work. It is far more than the mere story of the fighting. It gives a comprehensive account of the condition of Cuba and of Spain before and after the war, of both the outer and hidden causes of the war, and tells about nearly every one who had anything important to do, at home and in the field, with carrying on the struggle. It is truthful, well informed, and complete, and forms an elaborate picture of the United States at this critical character sketches, too, by special writers who know their subjects, of Dewey, McKinley as War President, and other notable figures of the war. The naval machine guns, and equipment, and many other special subjects, are treated in separate chapters by expert military writers. Dr. Shaw (who is the author of "Municipal Government in Great Britain" and other important books) has had the benefit of the official reports and documents issued by the Government, and the history is as authentic as possible. It should stand on the shelves of every American library. Its hundreds of portraits, maps, scenes in Spain, Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, are handsomely printed and are selected for their real value rather than for mere ornament. Many striking cartoons are reproduced from Spanish and French papers, showing what the Spanish thought of us, and how they believed they were beating us until the very end. The history is being published by the Review of Reviews Co., which also publishes the American Monthly Review of Reviews, the monthly magazine. Lawyers, doctors, teachers, clergymen, business men, especially in the country, progressive farmers, and up-to-date people generally rely on this magazine to give them the timely news of the world; it also gives the best that is in the other important magazines all over the world. Its regular subscription price is $2.50 per year. This edition of the history consists of three magnificent volumes, such as generally are sold for $5 or more each. We make for this month and the next only, a special
