The Klu-Klux Clan.

Pennsylvania character assassins, who hounded to death that excellent specimen of manhood and Republicanism, Benj. J. Haywood, must realize the baby position in which they are now placed when they, last Monday, completely backed down and asked a continuance of the Quay trial until April 10th-not giving, and and refusing to give an excuse for the unexpected move. The sensible, reasonable people of Pennsylvania see the damnable pretext for persecuting Senator Quay and daily, scores of honest men, who were lead to believe the clap-trap stuff published in the bargaincounter, demagogue journals, are getting their eyes open to the fact that Senator Quay is a greatly misrepresented and much abused man. They are men manly enough to so state their opinious. If we have within the confines of Cameron county any Republican who has so far forgotten himself and allowed his prejudice to influence his better judgment to such an extent that he can endorse any such outrageous procedure as practiced by the scandal mongers and character assassins toward Senator Quay, and the lamented Haywood, we should like to see that man. We do not believe such an ingrate resides in this county. We, of course, mean Republicans-renegadoes-men who claim to be Republicans and either vote for or aid the Democratic party.

Hounded to His Death.

Ex-State Treasurer Haywood, who was indicted with Senator Quay and the latter's son Richard, whose trial was called for Monday last, will not be tried, for he is dead. He had not been in robust health for some time, and there can be no doubt that his end was hastened by the attacks of political enemies who have been trying to advance their own personal interests. It may be said with a good deal of truth that he sonal interests. It may be said with a good deal of truth that he has been hounded to death, says Philadelphia Inquirer.

Men are constituted differently. Senator Quay, who has been pursued as no public man has in recent years, is still enabled to face his enemies. Mr. Haywood, with failing health, did not have the physical strength, and he has succumbed to abuse and villification. It is to be honed that those who It is to be hoped that those who have been conducting on the stump the most monstrous campaign of slander and falsehood in the history of the State are satisfied so far as Haywood is concerned. He is dead, and they can gloat over it in their secret conclaves if they will. But Quay is alive and still in a condition to defy them.

And yet it is a wonder that he is so, for he has been made the victim of continuous abuse. A most desperate campaign has been waged From every stump against him. he has been charged with every crime, and lying tongues have lashed him with their venom in the hope that organized hypocrisy might gain personal advantage by his downfall. Organized hypocrisy is rid of Haywood, and one can imagine the riotuous glee that would prevail in some quarters could Quay be driven into his grave. That time has not come, and we venture to predict that Quay will live to triumph over the character assassins and the hypocritical vilifiers, for nothing more disastrous could overtake this State than its surrender to pretenders.

Mr. Lane and Republicanism.

The interview which Mr. David H. Lane gave out the other night on Republicanism and party organ-ization seems to have struck a cold chill to the very bones of some of those pretended Republicans who have bolted their party. The newspaper organs of the bolters are anxious to know what it all means, and one of them expresses the fear that Mr. Lane is going to set himself up as a political boss under the Ashbridge administra-tion, says the Philadelphia In-

Well, we have had a boss for some years, in the person of David Martin, and even should Mr. Lane assume his mantle there would be but a change of bosses, and a change that could not fail to be very much for the better. But if we understand the situation as well as Mr. Ashbridge's intentions we can assure our shivering contemporary that the days of bossism as repre-sented by Martinism are over. There will be no one man power under the coming administration. Mr. Lane does not aspire to bossism, and Mr. Martin, while he may aspire, will aspire in vain. So far as he as a boss dependent upon the control of the appointments at the City Hall is concerned, he is done Hereafter he will not be the one man, but only one man among many. In other words, Mr. Ashbridge will not be the Mayor of Mr. Martin, nor, for that matter, of Mr. Lane, but the Mayor of the

That Mr. Lane expressed the views of Mr. Ashbridge cannot be questioned. His declaration, as we read it does not contain a threat, but maintains a principle in which both he and the Mayor-elect believe. They believe in proper party organization, without which any party would become a heedless Such organization upholds mob. majority rule as opposed to the stand taken by Mr. Martin, that a small minority has the right to force its views or disrupt the party. Both Mr. Ashbridge and Mr. Lane find a Republican Legislature at Harrisburg, with more than two-thirds of the Republican membership united upon Senator Quay. There is nothing extraordinary in the declaration of Mr. Lane that party unity and party salvation demand that the few shall give way to the many, nor is there anything extraordinary in Mr. Ashbridge's coincidence with these

Mr. Lane makes no threat of punishment on behalf of the Mayorelect, but he does warn those who have bolted from their party that they are treading upon extremely dangerous ground, and that their actions will come back to pleague them. And so they will. Men representing Republican districts cannot assume the role of political highwaymen and try to throttle their party and beg for favors from that party in the future, for if their methods could be carried out there would be no party to appeal to.

Mr. Lane is right, and when he man are elated and declare that his enemies acknowledge a confession of weakness in their cause.

Many do not hesitate to declare that the men back of the conspiracy against Senator Quay never intended that the case should come to a trial and that the proceedings were instituted solely for the purpose of influencing the members of the Legislature against the senior Senator in his canvass for re-election.

The sentiment of the stalwart Republicans of the State is conservatively re-election.

The sentiment of the stalwart Republicans of the State is conservatively expressed by Chairman Elkin, of the Republican State Committee, who arrived from Philadelphia this evening and who is thoroughly familiar with the iniquitous men who have been hounding the former Republican national chairman. Mr. Elkin says:

"Senator Quay and his friends feel a keen disappointment that he was not permitted to prove in open court at this time the falsity of the charges preferred against him. His enemies have been filling the columns of newspapers for weeks with intimations that he was afraid to face a jury of his peers on the questions involved. Senator Quay, as is his habit, said nothing in answer to the abuse heaped upon him, but prepared for the trial and was in the court ready and anxious to proceed. His persecutors, however, by their actions, have practically said that they do not wish to give him the benfit of an an immediate trial; it suits them better to delay the case so as to gain any possible political advantage. It is my opinion that such tactics will not commend themselves to the intelligent consideration of the people of the State.

"It is more apparent now than ever

State.
"It is more apparent now than ever "It is more apparent now than ever political battle, they have resorted to this kind of persecution in the desperate hope that they may some how prejudice his cause in the Senatorial contest. Such tactics cannot and will not win. Senator Quay will be fully acquitted of these charges and he will be his own successor in the United States Senate."

"The men who are back of the prosecution of Senator Quay," declared Senator Mitchell, of Jefferson, "have been driven to the wall. They are afraid to face the issue. The people of the State have begun to appreciate the fact that Senator Quay is the victim of one of the most damnable conspiracies in the history of American politics. He has always been ready to meet a personal or political foe boldly and manfully and in the open, and his brilliant record as a party man and a statesman testify to his worth as a man and as a citizen. The men who inspired the present prosecution will some day be exposed and their methods and motives revealed to the world. Some men who have occupied high spired the present prosecution will some day be exposed and their methods and motives revealed to the world. Some men who have occupied high places in the community will be shown in their true light.

"The tactics that have been pursued in the contest against Senator Quay are of the most despicable and contemptible character. It is ridiculous to endeavor to make it appear that many Republicans who are voting against Senator Quay are doing so because of charges that have been preferred against him. Of these fifty-two political insurgents there is a very small contingent that might fairly be classed in a reform element. The most of them represent in the most practical way all that Martinism implies in Philadelphia and what William Flinn stands for in Allegheny county politics. Wanamakerism, of itself, has but a few votes in this coterie. This combine against Senator Quay was inspired and is kept together by the most selfish considerations. Revenge, ambition and personal aggrandizement tell the and is kept together by the most selfish considerations. Revenge, ambition and personal aggrandizement tell the story of the fight against Senator Quay. The men who have, night after night, been supplying the Wanamaker newspapers with false, misleading and frequently libelous statements are this evening circulating a story that as the result of the postponement of this case Senator Quay is to retire in favor of a compromise candidate. Any intimation of that character is a malicious misstatement of fact. Senator Quay is in this fight to a finish and he will be re-elected."

Professor John Hamilton, who is one of the most active workers in the State in the interest of agriculture, and is well known throught the Commonwealth, speaks as follows of the persecution against Senator Quay:

"The action of the prosecution in asking for a continuance of the Quay case, without disclosing reasons to the public who are the real jurors in this trial, is a confession of weakness and a virtual admission that the evidence at hand is insufficient to convict. Up to this date the prosecution and others opposed to Senator Quay have been vociferous for an immediate hearing, and Legislators who have been voting against him for United States Senator have stated as their chief reason that he has delayed his trial unduly, and thereby has given credit to the suspicion of guilt.

"Suddenly, and without warning, the prosecution after having had ample time to prepare, when brought to face the accused in open court, have without assigning reasons to the public, begged for time. If, as has been alleged, there is abundant evidence to convict, and it this evidence as has been stated, is chiefly documentary and in the possession of the prosecution, why have they suddenly changed front, and why do they maintain the mysterious silence that is being affected, unless it is the discovery, at the last moment, that they have no case, and are unwilling to confess that the whole original purpose was to start a calumny that would destroy Senator Quay befor

"Has not the time come for self-reand the time come for sentre-specting Republicans to refuse longer to be made instruments for the gratifi-cation of either the ambition or per-sonal revenge of character wreckers, and put a stop to it all by voting for and put a stop to it all by voting for the Senator, and so saying to all of his accusers, 'you have refused to sub-stantiate your charges when an op-portunity was given, and now we can no longer sustain you and become parties to the destruction of an innoparties to the destruction of an inno-cent man.'

"He has squarely met his enemies and they have ignominously retreated. What guarantee do we have that this conduct will not be repeated when the 10th of April arrives, particularly if by that time no United States Senator has that time no United States Senator has been elected.

"This case, in its rspect, just now ought to appeal particularly to men that feel that they have characters of their own to protect, and therefore, cannot afford, as honest men, to countenance anything that looks like an organized effort to destroy that of others."
