HONEST DEALING.

Miss Helen Gould's generosity appears not to have ceased with the opening of her home to the victims of the Windsor Hotel fire. The men who were working at the ruins suffered a great deal from the cold and, noticing this, Miss Gould provided a lunch room in her home, where the workers could get bread, meat and coffee whenever they wished. By Tuesday night no less than 300 hundred loaves of bread had been used, and the other food had been disposed of in proportionate quantities. An interesting story is told in this connection concerning an interview between Miss Gould and one of the inspectors of the department of buildings. He went into Miss Gould's home on Monday, it is said, and told her that she ought not to give the laborers anything to eat, as it kept them from their work. The answer was that the food was there to be eaten and that the men could have it as long as they chose to come.

Bradford will entertain the Northwestern Volunteer Firemen's Association in August, and from present appearances this will be the largest gathering in the history of the Association. That Bradford will extend a cordial welcome to the brave fire ladders goes without saying.—Sunday Post.

"A word to the wise is sufficient" and a word from the wise should be sufficient, but you ask, who are the wise? Those who know. ### "Oh, Lord, Hit Him Again."

An exchange says that a small church was sadly in need of general repairs and a meeting was being held in it with a view to raising funds for that purpose. The minister having said $500 would be required, a very wealthy (and equally stingy) member of the congregation rose and said he would give one dollar. Just as he sat down, however, a lump of plaster fell from the ceiling and hit him on the head, whereupon he rose up and hastily stated that he had made a mistake; he would give $50. This was too much for an enthusiastic resident, who forgetful of everything called out fervently, "Oh, Lord, hit him again!"
