Anderson, of Rossville, York county, Penn., who saw the hardest kind of service at the front, is now frequently troubled with rheumatism. "I had a severe attack lately," he says, "and procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It did so much good that I would like to know what you would charge me for one dozen bottles." Mr. Anderson wanted it both for his own use and to supply it to his friends and neighbors, as every family should have a bottle of it in their home, not only for rheumatism, but lame back, sprains, swelling, cuts, bruises and burns, for which it is unequalled. Trail Hunter. Editor Press.— As I find it somewhat old, but at last I get the scent at Half Mile, the first to call my attention was the premises of Geo. Buck. He is making extensive improvements upon his house. I follow down the trail and give as brief account of what I see as possible. F. Gorlett is lumbering on the Parker farm. Here I find L. Kightlinger has made many improvements, which go to show that Mr. K. is a first-class farmer. N. C. Sturns has moved one of his barber chairs to Sizerville and does work there, two days each week. Here at Gardeau I wander around and jot down a few items. The millinery and notion store is gone, and inquiring find Miss Barney has moved it to St. Marys. Miss Maggie Kehoe has moved to Clearfield county. Mr. Hackenberg is making improvements on the Moore property. H. Pickett, J. Vanwey and John Taylor are home from the woods and will remain until bark peeling. "By Jabs" is still on deck and all O. K. Miss Lucy Lanon, of Austin, is visiting her sister Mrs. Mary Murphy. Prof. Beeman has a model garden. Smith Whitman, our assistant assessor, will begin his work the first of May. J. W. Parker gave us a treat on Friday, in the shape of "speckled beauties". Mrs. E. N. Fairchild is settled in her new quarters. Robert Mattall has moved in the Clark house. Geo. Alden is on the road canvassing for a book, "Spanish-America War." J. H. Kritner says that there is money in a dairy. He has several good cows and is taking milk to the Emporium Creamery. F. K. Zimmer says he will show you something when he sells his honey this fall. Here we see Karl Zimmer building fence. He thinks this a grand spring. Chas. Weller says this will be a good fruit year. D. Barr says he is not able to farm or do anything else. Owen Freeman has a new roof on his house and barn. Mrs. Ames is making improvements in her orchard, which is in fine shape. Mrs. Story has moved in one of Mrs. Ames' houses. Jack DeCorsey is working in the mill. Prof. Sheeter has gone to Lock Haven. We follow the trail to Sizerville, leaving a few that may hear from us in the near future. Arriving at the Hotel Martindale, we find our landlord in excellent spirits and as jovial as ever. We see nothing of the old hostler Covil, in his stead we find Paddy Flynn, the "Mick," doing the work; he is also agent for the celebrated Sheeter Liniment and other remedies here. I find bills for a drama and dance, given by the K. O. T. M., so I made up my mind I would take in the whole business and leave the trail for the future. Going to the drama I found a crowded house; not being able to obtain a seat, made best of it until the play was over, and then for the pavillion, where I spent my time until the early hours of the morning, then wending my way back to the Half Mile and rolling myself in a blanket, soon forgot all earthly trouble. TRAIL HUNTER. The above communication was received too late for publication in our last issue. INSURGENTS ARE TURNED DOWN HARD. Republicans of Bradford and Mercer Counties Take Them in Hand. REPUDIATED AT THE PRIMARIES. Governor Stone's Administration Cordially Endorsed, and the Men Who Sought to Embarrass It Are Condemned by the People. (Special Correspondence.) Harrisburg, May 9.—The Republican state administration and the action of the majority of the Republicans in the last legislature are being sustained on every hand by the Republicans of Pennsylvania. Within the last week two more counties have gone on record in favor of stalwart Republicanism, by the votes of the rank and file of the party at the regular primary elections. The insurgents, who so loudly proclaimed during the session of the legislature that they were acting in accordance with the wishes of their constituents, are being rejected and repudiated in every contest for delegates to the Republican state convention in which they participate. WORKED WITH DEMOCRATS. The vote in Bradford county was especially significant. Two out of the three members of the house of representatives from that county, Edmunston and Manley, bolted the Republican senatorial caucus, while the other member, Representative Lewis, voted for Colonel Quay to the end. The two bolters were notoriously misrepresenting the sentiment of their county and were told so at the time. They cooperated with the insurgents, and with the Democrats contributed to the serious embarrassment of Governor Stone's administration. The defeat of the several propositions for raising revenue advocated by Governor Stone seriously imperilled the appropriations for public schools and wiped out completely all chances of the state appropriating necessary funds to deserving charities of the commonwealth. The Democrats, of course, were eager to bring about this condition of affairs, as they wished to discredit the Republican administration and the legislature, as well, with its Republican majority, in the eyes of the people of the state. These Republican bolters in order, for personal reasons, to defeat Colonel Quay for re-election to the United States senate played right into the hands of the Democracy. That the Republicans of Bradford county thoroughly appreciated this fact would seem to be evident from their action at the primary election and in the Republican county convention last week. They bowed out the insurgent crowd completely and elected a solid delegation to the state convention composed of stalwart Republicans who are pronounced friends of Senator Quay. STONE'S ADMINISTRATION INDORSED. The county convention, which was largely attended, was quite harmonious. After the returns were read electing the delegates to the state convention—there were chosen by a popular vote—the convention unanimously adopted a series of resolutions. After reaffirming the Republican national and state platforms and commending the administration of President McKinley and the work of brave soldiers who are defending the flag in the present crisis, the resolutions set forth: "We commend Governor William A. Stone for his loyalty to the state's interests and for his wise and patriotic administration of its affairs. "We hereby denounce the efforts of the Democrats and disaffected Republicans in effecting the defeat of revenue measures intended to replenish the state treasury, whereby many charitable institutions have suffered for the lack of funds to defray the expenses of their noble work. "We believe in the principle of majority rule and indorse the action of our state senator, B. B. Mitchell, and member of assembly, E. D. Lewis, in supporting the nominee of the caucus of the last legislature for United States senator, and we accept the verdict of the people at last Saturday's primaries that Hon. M. S. Quay is the choice of the Republicans of Bradford county for United States senator, and recommend him for favorable consideration to the United States senate for admission upon the credentials issued by Governor W. A. Stone, of Pennsylvania." MERCER ALSO IN LINE. The Republicans of Mercer county held their primary election on Saturday last. This is another county in which two of the three members of the house of representatives, Caldwell and Martin, in defiance of the sentiment of their constituents, bolted the Republican caucus and voted with the insurgents. The other member, Representative Levi Morrison, voted for Colonel Quay. The issue was clearly drawn and sharply defined at the primary election last week. The stalwarts went into the fight to sustain the action of Captain Morrison in supporting Governor Stone's administration and standing by the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator. The two bolters were eager to have their course indorsed. They were overwhelmingly defeated at the polls. The two candidates for delegates to the state convention backed by the regulars were triumphantly elected, and there could be no mistaking the sentiment of the Republicans of Mercer in sustaining Governor Stone's administration and in indorsing the action of their representative who voted for the Republican candidate for United States senator. It is queer how the insurgents have had the notion that they really have represented a considerable section of the Republican party. Now that they have leisure to look around they will not be long in ascertaining what a blunder they have made. Men who have used their influence at Harrisburg to wreck the Republican party certainly have no claim upon the party. They did not succeed in wrecking the party, but they have succeeded in making political wrecks of themselves, and the party will do well to permit them to remain under the wreckage. That is apparently what the Republicans of Pennsylvania are going to do. THE GOVERNOR AT WORK. Governor Stone is still hard at work upon the bills which were passed by the last legislature and which were left for him to act upon. He has shown courage and discriminating consideration of these important matters by wielding his veto ax with effect in knocking out a number of objectionable bills that were allowed to go through the legislative mill during the closing hours of the session. The legislature was not unusually prolific in turning out new laws, although there were a large number of bills of a purely local character that got through. A MIGHTY HARD PROBLEM. The One of Inventing a Bottle That Can't Be Refilled. "I read a little interview not long ago," said a New Orleans grocer, "with a man who purported to give some particulars concerning the much talked of non-refillable bottle problem. He said, among other things, that there was a standing reward of $10,000 for a practical solution, and I had to smile to note how a fable, once set afloat, is continually vitalized by repetition. I happen to know something about the bottle question, and I can state positively and authoritatively that there has never been a reward of $10,000 or any other amount for such a device. "The impression probably originated with a circular that was prepared years ago by a convention of northern distillers. It was designed for the information of inventors and stated briefly and clearly just what was essential to a practical non-refillable bottle—what the working part should be made of, what tests it should be able to sustain, what it should cost in quantity, and so on. I doubt whether there is now a copy of that circular in existence, but it unquestionably gave rise to the story that the whisky men of the country were hot after a bottle that couldn't be refilled and had offered an enormous reward for the same. "The Lord only knows how many lives have been wrecked by that yarn. Next to perpetual motion it has been the great asylum feeder of the mechanical world. The problem looks easy enough on the surface and upward of 50 patents have been taken out on different devices, but none of them works under all conditions. The favorite scheme is a ball valve which would be closed automatically by pressure from above, but it is readily worked by a wire or an air pump. "At first the liquor men and makers of proprietary remedies that were largely counterfeited encouraged investors in the line, but after repeated failures they finally came to the conclusion that the thing couldn't be done and have given it up altogether. Nevertheless the cranks still persevere, and every now and then one reads of a new bottle that works like a charm. But you never see them on the shelves, and I make bold to say you never will."—New Orleans Times-Democrat. THE EVILS OF FLIRTATION. Those Who Engage In It Grow Incapable of Steadfast, Enduring Love. "In flirtation there is the same dissipated element of excitement so beguiling in gambling—uncertainty—in fact, we might add to the dictionary definition a still later one, 'To flirt, gambling in hearts,'" writes Frances Evans, "About Men," in The Ladies' Home Journal. "The flirt, like the gambler, feeds upon the intoxication of his passions. In a few years he becomes incapable of steadfast, enduring love, that feeling which in civilized man is separated from the love of the barbarian by the element of idealty, of spiritual sympathy as distinct from merely the attraction of brute nature. The open minded, open souled, many man is apt to express himself in abrupt praise of what he likes, but the flirt knows better than to take the edge off of a compliment by giving it publicity. The flirt is invariably confidential in his manner. A flirt becomes unscrupulous in his relations with women, no matter how high a code of honor he may abide by in other matters. His conscience is calloused on one side beyond remedy. There is no germ which develops more rapidly than the flirtations bacteria. Given a young man or woman whose pride is wounded more deeply than his or her love by a member of the opposite sex, then, if there be a slight flirtatious tendency to begin with, it will be but overnight before the weed has grown to surprising proportions, choking out conscience and kindness while it supports and strengthens vanity, which stands close by wounded affections in the human heart." Within a mile from Congleton, England, on the high road from Macclesfield, there is a deserted village consisting of over 60 houses, not one of which is tenanted.
