REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS. For Auditor General, EDMUND B. HARTENBERG, of Wayne. Congress-at-Large, GALUSHA A. GROW, of Susquehanna...

EDITORIAL MENTION.

It is quite evident that the Kentucky Democrats hope to carry the state this year by the grand jury vote. The Louisiana election was almost unanimous. Louisiana disfranchisement process works very smoothly.

Foreign lobbies against American shipping interests ought to furnish a striking object lesson to American legislators.

Up to the present it has not occurred to Mr. Pettigrew to introduce a resolution making inquiry concerning the Republican gains in South Dakota.

The free trade New York tariff reform club, aided by foreign money, and serving only foreign interests, is opposing the pending shipping bill.

Ex-Governor James E. Campbell has been pleading for a divorce for Democracy and Populism. His grounds are logical but the tribunal to which he appeals is prejudiced.

The pending shipping bill aligns free traders and foreigners in opposition, and protectionist Americans in advocacy. That is why Congress regards the present session as the one in which to pass the bill.

A Tennessee Democrat has been defeated for Congress because he named his son after Grover Cleveland. Yet it is proclaimed that the Democratic party is a harmonious institution.

The leader of the Democratic minority in the House of Representatives has been quite prolific in the matter of resolutions of inquiry. How about a little prodding into his own business of private publication of public documents.

The government provided for Porto Rico is far more liberal than that given to Louisiana when that state was admitted to the Union. A little experience will assure the Porto Ricans of the character of the Republican intentions. But the Democrats will still be dissatisfied.

Senator Platt, of New York, who took Senator Quay's seat in the Senate the day after the vote was taken which determined that the ex-Senator would not occupy it again, is reported to have said: 'The present is nothing! The future I don't see much fun in. And as for yesterday, well, that's water which has gone over the dam.'

ELI PERKINS DOWN SOUTH

Gets Strong Admissions From a Dyed in the Wool Democrat.

The other day, says the Louisville Commercial, Eli Perkins was introduced to Judge Scott, an old dyed-in-the-wool Kentucky Democrat. The Judge is well known in the Blue Grass region, and the grand old Kentuckian has always been looked up to as a high priest of 'befo' the wah Democracy.'

Perkins was introduced by an old Democrat, and Judge Scott supposed that Eli was a Democrat, too, and he became confidential with him at once.

'How are we Democrats getting along Judge?' asked Eli in a confidential tone.

'The Judge looked at Eli a moment to see if he really wanted information about the party, and slowly remarked: 'Well, sir, we are getting on very well financially, but politically we are running behind; yes, I'm afraid we are running behind.'

'What causes this?' asked Eli. 'Well, sir,' said the Judge sadly, 'I'm afraid our party has not been altogether right. We have erred in some things.'

'Where have we erred, Judge?' 'Well, sir, I hate to admit it, but our Grover Cleveland policy hurt us Kentuckians. I wouldn't say it to a black Republican, but we Democrats all admit it among ourselves. You see,' said the Judge, 'we used to get 35 cents for wool, and a big price for hemp and tobacco before Grover came in, but that Wilson bill hurt us. It knocked wool down to 12 cents. Free jute, put in to help the cotton fellows, ruined our hemp, and it rotated in the ground. Then we lowered the tariff on tobacco, and our tobacco went down on us. We didn't complain, but we Democrats did a good deal of thinking. Cattle and hogs got lower and lower, and when Grover went out we were pretty poor; yes, dog-on hard up, sir!'

'Are they still bad—the times?'

asked Eli. 'No, honestly, the times are good. Wool and hemp and tobacco have doubled in price and are still going up. Cattle and hogs are high and our bluegrass farmers are getting rich.'

'Well, what is the matter then?'

'Why, these good times have knocked out our dear old Democratic party. Our Democratic farmers say they will never vote for free trade or low tariff again.'

'Well, what can we Democrats do?'

asked Eli. 'I hate to admit it,' said the Judge sadly, 'but if we Democrats want to win in Kentucky again we've got to keep the tariff right where it is. That old Wilson bill and Bryan's free silver will be a scarecrow to every farmer in Kentucky and Tennessee. We've tried low tariff and we know—I'm ashamed to say so, but we know it hurt us! No, sir, the people are prosperous, but our Democratic party is doing poorly. I wouldn't say it to a black Republican, but that is the way we Democrats talk among ourselves.'

As the Judge got off the train at Lexington he remarked: 'Yes, and there was another mistake we Democrats made. Grover Cleveland wanted to sink the Republic of the Hawaii and put a nigger on the throne. We Democrats didn't complain, but it made us sick, for, between you and me, we Democrats ain't puttin' niggers on thrones. McKinley's white governor over a republic suits old Kentucky and the South.'

The smokeless factory smoke-stack was one of the leading features of the last Democratic national administration.

Bridge Builders' Fright.

Bridge building is a perilous business, and no insurance company will take any risk on the lives of superstructure workers. There is one horrible sensation known to superstructure workers. It is something like stage fright.

'I know once,' said one of them, 'when I wasn't up more than 140 feet, a sudden feeling came over me that I couldn't get down. I looked down, and there was a swift tide swirling around the edges of the piers. It seemed to me I should surely be killed. I clasped both arms around the beam on which I was working and lay there, just clinging to it, for 20 minutes. Luckily for me, the foreman, who was near me, saw what was the matter and had sense enough not to speak to me. If he had, I know I should certainly have fallen off. He kept on working, and I clung helplessly to the beam. Finally, in a gruff voice, he growled at me: 'Say, git out o' there! I want to put a rivet there.' And I, obedient to an instinct of duty, found myself moving along. The feeling passed away as I did move and didn't come back.'

'When I was in Peru building bridges,' said an engineer, 'I did not lose my head at work, but I more than once woke up during the night hanging to the sides of the bed in desperation of fear to keep from falling in a nightmare.'—Boston Herald.

A man may refrain from robbing hen roosts, and pay the grocer and baker, and even the printer, as a matter of policy, and still be a dishonest case. To be honest, he must think, act and talk like a man who has a high conception of duty toward his fellowmen, and must not try to palm himself off for what he is not. When Robert Burns observed that 'an honest man's the noblest work of God,' he did not refer to the fellow who was honest because he believed in the old saw that 'honesty is the best policy,' but to the man who had a just comprehension of his duties toward his fellows, and who would not 'wantonly set his foot upon a worm.'—Punx'y Spirit.

The editor of an exchange being asked if he had ever seen a baldheaded woman, replied: 'No we never did. Nor have we ever seen a woman waltzing around town in her shirt sleeves with a segar in her teeth. We have never seen a woman go a-fishing with a bottle in her hip pocket, sit on the damp ground all day, and then go home drunk at night; nor have we ever seen a woman yank off her coat and swear she could lick any man in town. God bless her! She aint built that way.'
