Forest Fires.

For several days forest fires have been raging in the woods of this section of the State and the losses will reach many thousands. Tuesday afternoon the lumbering operations of Gleason & Mason on Sterling Run were completely wiped out, destroying their bridges, camp and logs. Loss $4,000. Two of their men, Ed. Whiting and Herman Hiney, came near perishing in the flames, being hemmed in. The flames destroyed the standing timber on Pardee and Noyes lands. Hall, Kaul & Co. are suffering greatly from the forest fires.

Twelve buildings were burned at Westport yesterday afternoon, including the stores of Goodman, Robbins and Werts and residences of Messrs. Caldwell, Courter and Wilson. Loss $10,000. The Renovo fire department responded to the call for aid and made the run in fourteen minutes from time of call.

Destroyed by Forest Fire.

The shingle mill of Messrs. Strayer, Rentz & Van Lew, at Montours Run, was destroyed by the raging forest fire on Monday. Some thirty men worked faithfully to save the plant, but their efforts were fruitless, notwithstanding, they tore the building away from the machinery, but the strong wind fanned the flames and the entire plant was consumed. No insurance.

Chapter of Accidents.

Last Thursday, Chas. Leutze, aged 14 years, employed in Hackett's saw mill met with an accident at that place which amputated the four fingers on his right hand. Boyishly the young man was playing with another lad and not minding his business he stuck his hand against the saw, with the above result.

Joseph Holcomb, also employed at Hackett's mill, while endeavoring to extricate a piece of wood from the planer, at which he was working, last Friday, had the little finger on his right hand taken off.

Putnum-Mason Wedding.

At the Advent Church, Sterling Run, Pa., April 30, Miss Adly Mason, of the above named place, and Mr. Elmer G. Putnum, of Roulette, Pa., were joined in the Holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. S. Ebersole.

Mr. John M. Gentry, cousin of the bride acted as best man, and Miss Alda Carter, of Emportium, attended the bride. Promptly at 12 m. Miss Estella Wylie, who presided at the organ played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and the bridal party entered the church, escorted by two ushers, followed by the bridesmaid and groomsmen and bride and groom, taking their places in front of the altar, where the ceremonies were performed, after which the happy pair retired to the home of the bride.

The church was beautifully decorated, the altar, in front of which the knot was tied, was converted into a monument of choice flowers, before which the bride in her delicate lavender silk gown, and the groom in his conventional black, made, indeed, a pleasing aspect to the two hundred guests present.

At 2 p. m. an elaborate feast was served to about fifty relatives and intimate friends.

The happy couple left on the evening express west, on an extended wedding tour. We join their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes for a long, prosperous and happy life.

Don't Worry About the Editor.

"It takes money to run a newspaper." —St. John (Kan.) News.

What an exaggeration; what a whopper! It has been disproved a thousand times; it is a case of airy fancy. It doesn't take money to run a newspaper. It can run without money. It is not a business venture. It is a charitable institution, a begging concern, a highway robbery. A newspaper is the child of the air, a creature of a dream. It can go on and on, and any other concern would be in the hands of the receiver and wound up with cobwebs in the windows. It takes wind to run a newspaper; it takes gall to run a newspaper. (That is probably the reason so many people think they can run a newspaper.) It takes the scintillating, acrobatic imagination and a half dozen white shirts and a railroad pass to run a newspaper. But money—heavens to Betsy and six hands round, who ever needed money to run a newspaper? Kind words are the medium of exchange that do the business for the editor—kind words and church sociable tickets! When you see an editor with money, watch him. He will be paying his bills and disgracing his profession. Never give money to an editor. Make him trade it out. He likes to swap.

Then, when you die, after having stood around for years and sneered at the editor and his little jim-crow paper, be sure to have your wife send in for three extra copies by one of your weeping children, and when she reads the generous and touching notice about you forewarn her to neglect to send 15 cents to the editor. It would overwhelm him. Money is a corrupting thing. The editor knows it; what he wants is your heartfelt thanks. Then he can thank the printers and they can thank the grocers.

Teach your children the nonsense of patronizing the home paper, and see to it that the first batch of printing they have anything to do with is contracted for at some foreign house—the further away the better—for it will tend to create in them broad minds, a magnificent commencement, none of this old foggyism of helping your own town. And get your letter heads, stationery and invitations of every kind printed out of town, it will bring you trade and make the foreign printer think you are up to date in your ideas, and that he has caught another —, and then flood the editor with beautiful thoughts in resolutions of respect and cards of thanks. They make such spicy reading, and when you pick it up filled with these glowing and vivid mortuary articles, you are proud of your little local paper!

But money—scorn the filthy thing. Don't let the pure innocent editor know anything about it. Keep that for sordid trades people who charge for their wares the editor gives his bounty away. The Lord loves a cheerful giver! He'll take care of the editor. He has a charter from the State to act as doorman for the company. He will get the paper out somehow; and stand up for the town and whoop it up for you when you run for office, and lie about your weasel-faced, pigeon-toed daughter's tacky wedding and blow about your big-footed, lop-eared sons when they get a $4 a week job, and weep over your shriveled soul when it is released from its grasping body, and smile at your giddy wife's second marriage. Don't worry about the editor—he'll get on. The Lord knows how—but somehow.—Ex.
