House Hunter—But are you sure that the cellar is perfectly dry? Real Estate Dealer—Oh, you may be sure of that! Never was a drop of water ever seen in it, even in the wettest kind of weather.

House Hunter—Sorry about that. Do you know I have a theory that a damp cellar is the healthiest thing in the world. In my opinion the water cellar absorbs noxious gases, and, be-sides, it so moistens the whole atmos-phere of the house as to make it more grateful to the lungs.

Real Estate Dealer—Come to think of it, it was that other house on the other side of the street that has the dry cellar. The cellar in this house is dry cellar. The cellar in this house is never free from water. Really, sir, I think it will suit you immensely.—Boston Transcript.

Troops Inspected Under Boiling Sun. Mt. Gretna, August 7.-Under a boiing sun and with the mercury hovering in uncomfortable proximity to the century mark the soldiers composing the First brigade of the Pennsylvania National Guard were to-day compelled to submit to the critical scrutiny of the inspection officers. There was not a suggestion of a breeze to give relief to the well nigh wilted militiamen.

The inspection party consisted of Colonel Frank G. Sweeney, Inspector General; Colonel Ezra Hipple, Assistant Inspector General; Adjutant Thomas J. Stuart; Major Burbank, of the regular army and Colonel Frank K. Patterson. The First regiment was the first to pass through the ordeal. The regiment was first inspected in battalions, then in companies and finally came the individual inspection.

While the inspection of the First regiment was in progress Governor Stone and a few of his staff, and Major General Miller, with only an orderly in attendance, rode up and joined the inspection officers. After about fifteen minutes in the broiling sun, however, these dignitaries had enough of it and joined the brigade officers in the shade of a big oak tree.

After the First came the Sixth, Second and Third regiment in the order named. The officers and men expressed themselves as satisfied that they had earned a good rating, although not as high as it might have been with a little more time to drill.

It was somewhat of a hardship to the brigade to have had the inspection come so soon after the opening of the camp. Fully 30 per cent. of the brigade is made up of new men, and the companies have had few opportunities for
