The youngest and prettiest or most charming of American society girls were the instructors, and each Chinaman must have a teacher to himself. He made handsome presents to his instructor, fell in love promptly and bestowed his attentions until father or brother interfered and stopped further demonstration. Their education proceeded as far as reading a verse from the Bible in an unknown dialect. After Sunday school they finished the day playing poker-they were heathens. A lady who had seen one of the celestials in gorgeous clothes at the C Street church called at his laundry to have him send to her hotel for the weekly wash, when this dialogue ensued: "You stlanger?" dialogue ensued: "Yes." "Then bling pliceman-he know you-me not."

Judge Finn of the first municipal court, New York, is one of the coolest poker players on Manhattan Island. A case was before him the other day in which the defendant refused to pay a poker debt of $92. The judge asked what poker was, and five lawyers with all of whom he has often played. diffidently opined that it was played with cards. "Is it a game of chance?" inquired the court. "That depends altogether on how good a player the other fellow is," answered one of the lawyers, mildly. After much consultation the court gave a verdict for plaintiff.

The door of a big safe in the Ken tucky state treasurer's office became jammed in some way and several skilled mechanics vainly tried for days to open it. Then a messenger was sent to the penitentiary and came back with a gentleman whose ability to open safes had procured him board and lodging at the state's expense for a lengthened period. In just two minutes the door stood open and the successful expert was allowed to grin at the mechanics who had failed.

EACH MAN A HERO.

Capt. McCalla Reports on the Sey more Expedition.

Composed of Marines of Eight Na-tionalities—Fighting Was Con-tinuous and of the Most Des-perate Character.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The navy de-partment has made public the report of Capt. McCalla, who was in connand of the American contingent of the international column under Ad-miral Seymour that, on June 10, made the first move in the relief of Pekin, but which was cut off by the Chinese troops on the road and forced to turn back from Yangtsun, being in danger of complete annihilation before com ng in touch with the reinforcements ent out to meet them from Tien Tsin.

The force of which Capt. McCalla's command was a part was made up o eight nationalities, British, Russiar German, Austrian, Italian, Japanese made up of sh, Russian, French and American marines and blue jackets. Its aggregate strength was 2.078 officers and men, of which one-half were the Newark's men. These forces were all acting with nominal independence, but were tacit-ly under the command of Admiral Seymour and operated as one body. It is interesting to note Capt. Mo-Calla's description of how the various commands co-operated, how the Britcommands co-operated, how the Brit-ish and Russians in turn helped to shift the Newark's three-inch rifie from one position to another when the American gun's erew was inade-quat to transport it; how the Ameri-cans led the advance up the railway and protected the rear in the re-treat, and how, during the repeated attacks of the Chinese on the Tien Tsin arsenal, British," Russians and Americans in turn would spring into the breach to defend the hard-press-ed outposts of some other national-ity that was bearing the brunt of the attack. The co-operation of the en-tire force seems to have been perfect. ity that was bearing the brunt of the attack. The co-operation of the en-tire force seems to have been perfect, and Capt. McCalla has nothing but the warmest praise both for Admiral Seymour and all the other officers who participated in the expedition. The start of the international col-umn for Pekin yas inaugurated after the receipt of urgent messages from both the Pritish and American lega-tions in Fekin. The allied force was furnished with railroad transporta-tion by the Chinese authorities in Tien Tsin. A start was made on June 10 and from that time on the advance was made under constantly increas, ing difficulties. Whole sections of track were torn up, bridges and cul-verts were found wrecked, stations burned, and pumping appliances at the water tanks were destroyed. The first attacks on the column were by parties of Boxers, but these soon were joined by regular Chinese troops, and the little column had to fight its way forward, repairing the track almost rail by rail with flanting parties out to protect the construction train, while other detarhments foraged the surrounding country for supplies. The advance continued up to the to protect the construction train, while other detachments foraged the surrounding country for supplies. The advance continued up to the 19th and was met by two messengers at different times bearing urgent re-quests from the besieged legationers for relief. Capt. McCalla and his ma-rines finally were pat in charge of the construction train by Admiral Seymour's direction, and the works pushed as far as the city of Yang-tsun. From this point the railroad was so badly crippled that evidently it was impracticable to advance fur-her by train, and the international olumn scoured the country for horses and carts, hoping to make a orced march to Pekin by road. The resistance encountered at Lang Fang amounted to a pitched battle and re-sulted in the killing of seven and wounding of 40 of the allied forces. That 400 Chnese were killed in this engagement was little consolation to the allies, since, with a large number of wounded on their hands, and the forced march as contemplated. The news from the direction of Tien Tsin showed that the railroad had been destroyed in their rear and after a meeting of the commanders, it was
