ered to have obtained for itself, had it secured no other memorials, an abiding place in history.

February 10, 1840, Queen Victoria was married to her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. This was a love match, pure and simple, but the young sovereign, owing to her position, had to conduct the negotiations mainly by herself.

It was some years before the people thoroughly understood Prince Albert. All his actions were closely watched. It was imagined that he would endeavor to overstep his limitations as the consort of the queen and try to influence political affairs.

For many years after this bereavement the queen led a life of strict seclusion. She avoided all public and court ceremonies, though her duties as a sovereign were never neglected.

Nine children were born as a result of the union. Their names and date of birth are: The Princess Victoria, "Princess Royal," born November 21, 1840; married January 25, 1858, Frederick William, the crown prince of Prussia, who died in 1888, as Emperor William II. of Germany, after a reign of only 99 days.

Prince Alfred, duke of Edinburgh, born 1844; married 1874 Marie Alexandrovna, only daughter of the czar of Russia; late duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. They had one son and four daughters, one of whom has two children.

Princess Louise, born 1848; married 1871 the marquis of Lorne, the only one of the children marrying outside of royalty. They have no children.

Princess Helena, born 1846; married 1866 to Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein. They have five children, all unmarried.

Princess Alice, born April 25, 1843; married in 1862 to Prince Frederick of Hesse; died December 14, 1878. She had two sons and five daughters, of whom the youngest is still living in the czar of Russia. There are six grandchildren in this family.

Princess Beatrice, born 1857; married 1885 to Prince Henry of Battenberg. The prince died in 1896, leaving four children. Death of all the prior heirs to the throne would make the German emperor king of England. If 48 heirs failed England would have to take the empress of Russia, provided the people did not decide otherwise, and 56 heirs would have to die before the queen's youngest child, Princess Beatrice, would succeed to the throne.

During Queen Victoria's reign there were many notable acts of legislation. Several reforms demanded by the chartists, then considered revolutionary in the extreme, were quietly and peaceably effected. The corn laws were repealed and England entered upon her marvelous prosperity under a free-trade policy.

The Irish church was disestablished and the odious system of purchase abolished in the army. There was a sensational feature connected with the last-named measure. It was opposed by the house of lords and defeated by a trick. An amendment was carried to the effect that the lords were unwilling to agree to the passage of the bill until some comprehensive scheme of army reorganization should have been laid before it. Mr. Gladstone thereupon took a step which is variously criticized to this day. Purchase was permitted only by royal warrant, and in order to checkmate the lords Gladstone advised the queen to cancel the royal warrant which made it legal.

In 1876 Benjamin Disraeli created another sensation by introducing an act adding "empress of India" to the queen's titles. Members of both political parties were opposed to the new title. They claimed that the old one of queen of Great Britain and Ireland was sufficiently striking and honorable. But Disraeli, as usual, carried his point. He hinted mysteriously that the question of supremacy in India was involved in the title, and that the old one necessarily implied asserting the position of the sovereign of England as supreme ruler for the whole empire of India. It was well understood that Russian intrigue was meant by the wily prime minister, and the act passed without further protest.

Boxers Driven Off. Victoria, B. C., Jan. 23.—The steamer Victoria, which arrived Tuesday morning from the orient, brought news that the Boxers made an attempt to surprise Tientsin on the night of January 1. They were in small number and were easily driven off, although they caused some anxiety during the night. It is alleged by the North China Daily News that the Boxers are associated with Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching and that they are in league with Boxers about to rise again.

Many Senators Chosen. United States senators were elected on Tuesday as follows: Illinois, Shelby M. Cullom; Minnesota, Knute Nelson (long term) and Moses E. Clapp (to fill out the term of the late Senator Davis extending to March 4, 1905); South Dakota, Robert J. Gamble; New Jersey, William J. Sewell; Kansas, J. E. Burton; West Virginia, Stephen B. Elkins; Arkansas, James H. Berry; Texas, Joseph W. Bailey.

Michigan to Be Represented. Lansing, Mich., Jan. 23.—The house passed a bill providing for the appointment of five commissioners to represent this state at the Pan-American exposition, and appropriating $40,000 for a Michigan exhibit.

Late in the afternoon the appropriation bill passed the senate and was sent to the governor for approval.

THE NEW SOVEREIGN.

Formal Oath of Office Taken by the King.

In Obedience to His Dead Mother's Express Wish He Assumes Title of Edward VII.—His Address.

London, Jan. 24.—At the meeting of the privy council the king took the title of Edward VII., king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India.

The king, at the accession ceremony, wore a military uniform. His brief speech was delivered with great earnestness and was quite extemporaneous. It is expected it will be published later, in official form. At the last moment the king decided not to attend the house of lords Wednesday.

Proclamation Signed. The proclamation of the accession of his majesty was signed by the princes present, the duke of York first, then the duke of Connaught, the duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian, the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor, the lord mayor and the other representatives of the city of London.

The royal proclamation by the earl marshal will be heralded at St. James' palace and the other customary centers Thursday, and will forthwith be published in the gazette.

The King's Speech. The following is the full text of his majesty's accession speech:

"Your Royal Highnesses, My Lords and Gentlemen: This is the most painful occasion on which I shall ever be called upon to address you. My first and melancholy duty is to announce to you the death of my beloved mother, the queen; and I know how deeply you and the whole nation, and, I think, I may say, the whole world sympathize with me in the irreparable loss we have all sustained. I need hardly say that my constant endeavor will be always to walk in her footsteps. In undertaking the heavy load which now devolves upon me I am fully determined to be a constitutional sovereign in the strictest sense of the word, and so long as there is breath in my body to work for the good and amelioration of my people.

"I have resolved to be known by the name of Edward, which has been borne by six of my ancestors. In doing so I do not undervalue the name of Albert, which I inherit from my ever-to-be-lamented great and wise father, who, by universal consent, is, I think, deservedly known by the name of Albert the Good, and I desire that his name should stand alone.

"In conclusion, I trust to parliament and the nation to support me in the arduous duties which now devolve upon me by inheritance and to which I am determined to devote my whole strength during the remainder of my life."

It is learned that the king assumed the title of Edward VII. at the express wish of his mother.

The New Prince of Wales. Contrary to general opinion, the duke of York does not at once become prince of Wales through the accession of his father. The title of prince of Wales becomes merged in the sovereignty, but the king will exercise his prerogative and confer the principality of Wales on the heir apparent. The new king was born November 9, 1841, but he was only created prince of Wales on the following December 4. There have been six royal princes who have never been created prince of Wales. However, the duke of York becomes at once duke of Cornwall, and the duchess of Devon (Princess Louisa of Wales) becomes a princess royal, as this capacity is treated by the law in much the same way as the mother of a queen consort.

Take Oath of Allegiance. London, Jan. 24.—The house of lords and the house of commons assembled at four o'clock and took the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign.

Among the innumerable telegrams of sympathy that continue pouring in from abroad President McKinley's gives the greatest pleasure.

Took the Oath. Ottawa, Jan. 24.—At a cabinet meeting Wednesday the governor general and the ministers took the oath of allegiance. The chief justice of the supreme court administered the oath to the governor general, who, in turn, administered it to his ministers. The usual proclamations announcing Edward VII. king and confirming the appointment of those in office were issued. The day of the queen's funeral will be named as one of general mourning in Canada. The entrance to the parliament buildings will be draped in black.

Might Have Been a Horror. Cincinnati, Jan. 24.—The destruction Tuesday night of the Grand opera house, causing a money loss of over $400,000, paradoxical as it may seem, is a cause for congratulation. Everybody shrinks from contemplating what might have been if there had been even a panic in that great audience, to say nothing of the horror that would have stricken the whole country if the fire had cut off the escape of the people within the building. In view of the deliverance from a fearful loss of life, the money loss sinks into insignificance.

Casey's Case. A Canadian gentleman, named Casey, was appointed to a government place which technically had to be occupied by a lawyer, which Mr. Casey was not. The benchers of the Law society, however, undertook to deviate the technicality, and appointed one of their number to examine him as to his knowledge of the law.

"Well, Casey," said the examiner, "what do you know about the law, anyway?" "Well, to tell the truth," said Casey, modestly, "I don't know a single thing."

"I have examined Mr. Casey as to his knowledge of the law," the examiner stated in his affidavit, "and to the best of my knowledge and belief he answered all the questions entirely correctly."—Law Notes.
