

THE EXPERT'S THEORY.

It Was Too Inclusive and Weakened Him as a Witness.

One of the older members of the Baltimore bar tells this anecdote of the late Severn Teackle Wallis as illustrating the cleverness and sarcasm of Mr. Wallis:

Mr. Wallis was defending the will of a wealthy testator, and, as the lawyers say, when the estate is large a lawyer "will wrestle with a will with a will." A prominent physician was called to testify for those contesting the will. The doctor became restless under the lengthy and exhaustive cross examination of Mr. Wallis, and finally he petulantly exclaimed:

"Oh, Mr. Wallis, I believe the testator was insane!"

Mr. Wallis kept his temper and said quietly: "Doctor, you are the first person who has ever intimated in or out of court that the testator was insane. Why do you say he was insane?"

"I believe," the doctor replied, "that every man is more or less insane on some one subject."

"Is it your deliberate professional opinion," Mr. Wallis then asked, "expressed here in court under oath, that every man is more or less insane on some one subject?"

"Yes," the doctor replied: "I will say here under oath that from my reading, knowledge and experience I believe that every man is more or less insane on some one subject."

Then Mr. Wallis said in that fine tone of sarcasm for which he was noted, "Doctor, has it ever occurred to you that you are insane on the subject of insanity?"

Immediately the doctor fired up and exclaimed, "But, Mr. Wallis, I am not insane!"

Mr. Wallis arose and said: "Doctor, according to your own sworn theory, you must be insane on some subject. I pronounce you insane on the subject of insanity."

Court, jury and spectators laughed aloud, and nothing more was said about the testator being insane.—Baltimore Sun.

A Case Lincoln Would Not Take.

All clients knew that, with "Old Abe" as their lawyer, they would win their case—if it was fair; if not, that it was a waste of time to take it to him. After listening some time one day to a would be client's statement, with his eyes on the ceiling, he swung suddenly round in his chair and exclaimed:

"Well, you have a pretty good case in technical law, but a pretty bad one in equity and justice. You'll have to get some other fellow to win this case for you. I couldn't do it. All the time, while standing talking to that jury, I'd be thinking, 'Lincoln, you're a liar,' and I believe I should forget myself and say it out loud."—Success.

Too Commemorative.

Little Jack—Oh, mother, I do love cake! It's awful nice.

Mother (reprovingly)—You should not say you "love" cake—say "like." Do not say "awful"—say "very." Do not say "nice"—say "good." And, by the way, the word "oh" should be omitted. Now, my dear, repeat the sentence correctly.

Jack—I like cake. It's very good. Mother—That's better. Jack (with an air of disgust)—It sounds as if I was only talking 'bout bread.—London Tit-Bits.

A Change.

"Do you think people in the next world will follow the same occupations they do here?" asked the gossiping lady.

"No," said the churchman; "everybody will attend to his own business there."—Syracuse Standard.

BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS, FEB. 19, 1901.

A light vote was polled throughout the county and little interest manifested. The contest in Emporium was confined to the question of lights for the streets. The proposition to bond the Borough in the sum of $7,000 to erect an electric light plant was endorsed by the voters by a large majority, the vote in favor being 281, against 62—a majority in favor of increasing the indebtedness of 219. The only borough officer to be elected was Auditor for three years. A. F. Andrews carried off the plum by 21 majority.

Another Fire. Last Thursday morning Geo. Baxter's home, located near Buckwater, was totally destroyed by fire, including most of the household goods, clothing, etc. The loss is quite severe on Mr. Baxter, who was unfortunately without insurance. The fire is supposed to have been caused from sparks from the stove pipe.

A Word About Text Books. While the question of the vicious influence of the book trust upon the morals of school directors is uppermost in the State press, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, we would like to make one suggestion.

There are times when a change in the text books of all schools is necessary and proper. Those in use become hurtful and therefore should be retired. New discoveries are made, a record of which is not found therein. New governments are formed and old ones are dismembered; the provinces thereof pass under the rule of other nations. Language grows, and we all must keep pace with the growth. The history of China, to illustrate, will probably be different ten years hence. For any school board to permit in the schools under its management, books teaching what is not truth, would be an unpardonable blunder.

But to admit this is not to declare that a change of text books is necessary almost every year as is becoming the custom. A bad book cannot be too quickly discarded. If it were negative in character and influence it might be tolerated, but being positive in its influence on the young it should be tossed into the fire the instant its inaccuracy is discovered. Too large a portion of all lives is spent in unlearning what never should have been learned, what never would have been learned had those older that the learners attended conscientiously to their duties.

Of course, all this means that only the most intelligent and conscientious men should be made school directors, but as The Inquirer has argued for that many years it does not shrink from that conclusion now. Meanwhile, this remains indisputable: There should be no changes of reliable text books until a change is demanded, not by the men who sell books, but by such variations of actual conditions as warrant the change in the interest of truth.

ME. Through many, many summers I look, as through a glass, And see a world of showers and flowers And laughing children pass, And in her big blue sunbonnet One other little lass— A lass who watched the swallows Skim just beyond her hand And where the flickers fled and sped And nests of hang birds famed And felt those birds were fairly folk On wing to fairyland.

In her warm list she carried, Trudging o'er hills and dales, In tiny papers laid and weighed As if in fairy scales The salt that catches bobolinks When sprinkled on their tails.

A little lass and wistful, Who gazed up the far sky, And reached for fairy things and wings In vain and wondered why: Poor little lass, I wonder still, Could she be really I? —Harriet Prescott Spofford in Collier's.

It is folly to attempt to please everybody. It matters not in which direction a man faces he must of necessity turn his back on half the world.—Chicago News.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

The railroads have been greatly abused as soulless corporations that were grinding the life blood out of the people. The great Galveston disaster has, however, revealed the fact that the managers of these corporations have hearts which are susceptible of being touched by the cries of distress. Their trains were placed at the disposal of all those engaged in relief work on the coast. Provisions and supplies were carried forward free of charge, committees from every section of the State were furnished transportation, and when the refugees from Galveston began to pour into Houston and it became a serious question what was to be done with them the railroads solved the problem by furnishing transportation without charge to all who wished to leave and to any point they wished to go. Grand Master Anderson informs us that but for this fact Houston would have been overrun with people who had to be cared for, and that suffering and distress would have been largely increased as well as the cost of meeting conditions which would have prevailed. Bro. Anderson desires us, through these columns, to thank the different roads for the great service rendered his committee at Houston. If it were possible we would be glad to see parallel columns, in one of which should appear the acts of these railroad corporations in a time of great calamity and distress, and in the other the amount contributed by the little two-by-four demagogues who are always trying to array the prejudices of the masses against any and every kind of enterprise.—From the Texas Odd Fellow.

Ready for New Trains.

The importance of the Philadelphia & Erie, in connection with the Western New York & Pennsylvania, is pronouncedly great. This line, for Buffalo traffic, is considered first-class, and with the improvements in contemplation completed it will have been considerably strengthened as a tidewater line from the great lakes. The Philadelphia Record says that while the company's officials are extremely reticent about the matter, there appears scarcely any doubt that the improvements contemplated on the Philadelphia and Erie for the coming year are but a portion of the general scheme to make the Buffalo line an important factor between the lakes and the seaboard. Ever since the acquisition of the Western New York & Pennsylvania engineers have been at work making surveys and gathering data for the elimination of curves and the reduction of grades, and for the bringing of that line up to the Pennsylvania standard. From the best information obtainable these data have not been sufficiently compiled to lay before the higher officials, and until this is done it is largely a matter of speculation as to the extent and character of the contemplated improvements on the Buffalo line.

With the completion of the proposed double tracking of the Philadelphia & Erie between Keating and McElhattan the entire division from Sunbury to Renovo will be double tracked and about thirty-five miles of the Middle division. A portion of the distance to be double tracked was graded some years ago; so that on some parts there will be only trimming up to be done. Beside the double-tracking of the line between Keating and McElhattan, a short line connecting the Susquehanna and Clearfield branch with the Philadelphia & Erie at Keating, will also be constructed. The building of this line will necessitate the erection of a new bridge across the Sinnamahoning creek.

Of the $500,000 set aside for improvements on the Philadelphia & Erie this year a portion of the money will be used in the reconstruction of bridges of which there are quite a number over the West Branch.

A NEW IDEA IN CLUBS.—"The Current Topics Clubs" is a new feature which has just been introduced by the great "Philadelphia Press." A large body of experts and specialists in every walk of life has been engaged to furnish to the readers of "The Press," through a current topics department, daily articles of an interesting and informative character. These will cover every field of activity, will be attractive alike to the old and young and in their entirety will form the foundation for a liberal education. There will be one article a day each week, so that every week six important subjects will be treated. "The Press" considers the organization of the "Current Topics Club" as among the most important of its achievements. It is certain to attract great attention. The only requirement for membership is that you shall be a reader of the Philadelphia Daily Press.
