

POSING FOR PICTURES.

What to Wear and What Not to Wear When a Really Good Photograph Is Desired.

Photography as an art has attained such a standard of excellence that no pains are too infinite to enhance its effectiveness. While the primary object in any likeness, is to portray the features, the pose, the individual, yet it cannot be gainsaid that much of our pleasure in viewing the countenance, however perfectly depicted, may be seriously marred by the unhappy selection of an unbecoming gown.

It is a mistake to wear one's richest and most sumptuous costume instead of one whose design, being less pronounced, is, consequently, less apt to look grotesque a few seasons hence. Certain materials are risky, to say the least, in a photograph. Satins or silks with high luster throw lights and shadows which are harsh and unexpected in reproduction. Translucent fabrics are by far to be preferred. Softly folding, easily draped, and not pronounced are crepes, either silk or wool, and chiffon. Tulle, nets and such lacelike transparent effects depend so much upon the materials which are used as foundations that, in a general way, they are to be considered as sec-ondary in importance, although as draperies they may be styled par excel-lence. Stiff, starchy effects are to be strictly tabooed unless it be the trans-lucence of swiss or organdie.

Stripes and large patterns in lace or silk are failures, big brocades or plaids something to make one weep, especially the photographer who fore sees a demand for second sittings when the proofs are shown. Velvet and fine furs are especially happy selections, and such accessories as a handsome op-era cloak or long ostrich fan are deemed happy adjuncts with full

Gloves should always be worn with street toilets which include a hat, but since a glace glove would be shiny, one of undressed kid is far better. very light colors the hand should always be lifted or placed against a background darker than itself since the pink dress will naturally take darker than the light fabric.

Jewelry adds much to an evening dress, especially in the way of ornaments about the top of a low-cut corsage. Pearls photograph exquisitely in made-up jewelry, in necklaces or in long chains, which may be brought up and knotted once or festooned from a single ornament in front of the cor-sage.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MISS VIVIAN SARTORIS.

Gen. Grant's Charming Granddaughter to Be Married to a Rich Young New Yorker,

An engagement which, though not formally announced, is acknowledged by both families, is that of Miss Vivian Sartoris and Timothy Nichols, of New York city. Miss Sartoris is the elder daughter of Mrs. Nellie gazes upon the handsome brave, and Grant Sartoris, and is one of the her eyes droop. That is sufficient anbelles of Washington. Mr. Nichols swer for him. That night, after all is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William have retired, he takes his flute, goes Gillman Nichols, of New York city, and is a popular young clubman of the metropolis.

The attachment between the young people dates from two years ago, when they met at the international vacht races. Mr. Nicho, s has been an ardent lover, and it is stated by his close friends that the wedding will take place some time this year, and that the engagement will be formally announced as soon as the date of the marriage is settled.

Miss Sartoris is a tall, graceful brunette, and bears little resemblance to the Grant family. She has been a belle of two capitals, London and Washington, and has counted her admirers by the score. It is a sub-ject of much congratulation to her family that she has chosen an Amer-Mrs. U. S. Grant, is especially well pleased, as it was a great grief when her daughter married an Englishman. #### INDIAN LOVE-MAKING.

Strange Marriage Customs Prevail Semi-Savage Tribes.

The Kiowa Indians have queer marage customs. There are three ways of getting married among these semisavage redskins. The first and most commonly practiced way of securing a wife is buying her outright, or trading for her as if she were a horse or As is common among most heathen tribes where woman is considered a mere toy or slave, she is not consulted, but must be ready to fill any contract that her father or brother sees fit to make.

I was at a mission upon the Kiowa and Comanche reservations not long since, where Af-poo-dle, a Kiowa boy of ten, was a pupil. He had a handsome sister with whom an old Indian was in love. The Indian visited the school and was most solicitous in his attentions to Af-poo-dle, giving him many attractive presents, such as beads and brass jewelry, that apnealed to his vanity. When Af-poo-dle inquired of the donor what present he could make him in return, the wily old Indian unhesitatingly plied: "Give me your sister, Ti-i-ti, for squaw; me heapee rich; good brave." The boy promised. He was the only son, and his word was law in the wigwam. Accordingly a few weeks later the Indian led Ti-i-ti to his tepee to be his squaw. This was a cold-blooded transaction, as is usually the case when women are sold.

The second way is more romantic and more in accord with the civilized fashion. In this case the love-sick swain gets his sister to see the young squaw he admires and to arrange a clandestine meeting. If his affection be returned the squaw keeps her ap-pointment, and he happily leads her to his wigwam, for a clandestine meeting constitutes marriage with hese semisavages.

The third and least practiced way sovors still more of the romantic. In this case the enamored buck makes a fastidious toilet in which beads and brass jewelry of all descriptions figure conspicuously, decorates and paints in many colors his best steed, and, like a conquering Alexander, rides proudly in front of the tepee where his adored is engaged in some menial task. He slackens pace as he nears the wigwam and endeavors to put his soul into his eyes as he regards her. She timidly blushes as she near her wigwam and pours out a few doleful notes to express his heart's yearning. She comes out to him, and beneath the midnight stars they plight their faith. Then she is proudly led to his wigwam to be squaw No. 1, or more frequently No. 5. The next morning she is missed and the whole camp join in a mirthful search. When found the bridegroom is robbed of all his earthly

To disentangle the hair, as well as to brush it, you should not attack a mass of hair and brush it at haphazard. The hair must be brushed and combed strand by strand, and this continued all around the head.

At night, before going to bed, let the hair fall loose, shake it thorough-ly, then brush it and braid it.

Nothing is worse for the hair than to leave it hanging loose when one is in bed. It should be divided into several strands, braided, and then let fall, or else neatly twisted at the

This permits the air to penetrate the hair, and at the same time prevents it from breaking. The hair should be left as unencumbered as possible and should not be overloaded with pins or ornaments that are too heavy.—Chicago American.

The Art of Soup Making.

In making soup slow cooking ex-tracts the flavor and the water should not be salted until near the end of the process. In cooking bones and joints, however, a high temperature renders the gelatin soluble and salt should be used. As the gelatin is the nutritious part of the soup, this is important

Somewhere in the Highlands twins were born at the meeting of the cen-turies with the odd result, says the St. James Gazette, that one opened its eyes in the nineteenth and the other in the twentieth century. It is surely the most remarkable of all "century" incidents. There are two men in England who will read of the birth of those century twins with special interest—one a peer of the realm and the other a member of the house of commons. The peer owes his peerage to the fact that he was born 15 minutes before his brother; the M. P. missed an earldom by being born 15 minutes late. The peer is Lord Durham; the M. P. is Hon. F. W. Lambton, member for Southeast Dur-ham. Both were born on June 19, ham. Both were born on June 19, 1855, the earl coming into the world 15 minutes before his brother. Those 15 minutes were worth an earldom and 30,009 acres to the lucky baby.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

The Passenger Department of the Union Pacific Ry. has recently issued a twenty-eight page booklet of "The Overland Limited." It is a magnificent specimen of printing, artistic in the highest degree, and is embellished with views of the train mentioned both interior and exterior, together with much information regarding the service, and also interesting points on the route to California. It makes one feel like putting his affairs in order with the least possible delay and taking a trip to the Golden Gate. The Union Pacific was the pioneer line Westward, and it is not too much to say that it has maintained the prestige which that fact gave it. A trip to California over the Union Pacific in connection with the Chicago & Northwestern and Southern Pacific Systems is a delight at all times.
