Bunker Hill chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has decided to mark the spot from which Paul Revere started on his historic midnight ride on April 18, 1775, to warm the inhabitants of the towns between Boston and Concord that the British were coming to destroy their stores and munitions of war.

Henry H. Faxon, a temperance worker in Quincy, Mass., believes in spending his money for a good cause as well as talking for it. There are 23 ministers in Quincy, and to each of them he has mailed a check for $100 to be used "in promoting the moral, spiritual, social and political welfare of the people of the city."

In his opening address as presiding officer at the twelfth annual conference of the Physical Culture association the other day in New York Dr. Dudley Sargent, of Harvard, declared his belief that "lawn tennis, golf and cycling have done more to win women away from tight clothing than all the past century's lecturing and writ-

From the latest official reports in the British war office it is ascertained that the total killed, wounded and missing among the army during actions in South Africa up to March 31 was 1,993 officers and 27,952 noncommissioned officers and men. In addition 711 officers and 16,981 noncom-missioned officers and men have died of wounds or discase, making the to-tal casualties foot up to the enormous total of 47,637.

Dr. Thomas D. Crothers, of Hartford, Conn., says: "Cocaineism, alcoholism and morphineism are the three scourges of the world." He considers cocaine the most dangerous, and condemns its use even as a local anesthetic for surgical purposes. Large

The Massachusetts senate by an overwhelming vote has decided not to correct the error of punctuation which accidentally crept into the state's liquor law and changed its entire meaning. The measure is known as "the semi-colon bill," because the colon makes it unlawful for hotels to serve liquors to their guests after 11 o'clock at night. The state has decided that the blunder is a good one

People of a superstitious turn of mind who believe that ill luck is assomind who believe that ill luck is asso-ciated with the number 13 may per-haps derive confirmation of their opinions from a study of the history of the Irish Hunt corps, which formed part of the Imperial yeomanry. The Hunt corps was mobilized in Dablin on January 13, 1900. On March 13 it sailed for South Africa and on arrival at the Cape was attached to the Thir teenth battalion of Imperial yeoman-ry. In their first encounter with Boers 13 men of the corps were killed and the

The preparation of a simple and cheap artificial stone is becoming an important German industry and likely eventually to supplant brickmaking. The ingredients are only lime and sand in the proportion of from four to six parts of the former to be-tween 96 and 94 parts of the latter. The materials are thoroughly mixed and shaped into blocks of the desired size. The latter are then put in a boiler, which is sealed, and submitted to a steam pressure of from 120 to 150 pounds to the square inch. This gives Binty character to the blocks.

nancial Stability Strengthened by Wise Policies-Cuba and the Philippines.

The feature of the annual banquet of the Home Market club in Boston, April 30, was an address by Vice President Theodore Roosevelt. Unusual importance was attached to the vice president's statements, as the address had been submitted to President Mc-Kinley for approval and therefore could be considered as a declaration of the administration's views and pol-

The fact that this was the first speech on national affairs delivered by Mr. Roosevelt since his taking the office of vice president made it especially significant, and his hearers con-strued it as having the sanction of the executive.

Mr. Roosevelt reviewed the events of the last four years, drawing attention to the share the republican party has had in the advance made by the country and to the manner in which the national government has faced the grave problems which developed and shouldered the duties imposed upon the republic.

As to the future the vice president predicted that all knotty points coming up will be met in the same way and the republican party will guide the nation into an era of prosperity. He dwelt upon the needs of reaching into the markets of the world and told of the manner in which the United States had taken its place already as a world power. The subjects of China, Cuba and the Philippines were given attention and the course of the administration explained.

Roosevelt on Nation's Duty.

Vice President Roosevelt said:

Vice President Roosevelt said:
"In reading the profoundly interesting and suggestive biography of the great scientist, Huxley, one cannot but be struck by his constant insistence upon the need, not merely of telling the truth, but of doing it. That is, of facing facts—recognizing actual conditions—the better to grapple with them.
"With individual and nation alike success of the kind which is alone worth having must come from obeying the laws that tell both for our meral and our material well being. We cannot afford to follow that sordid teaching which would bid us pay heed only to the body; nor, on the others band, can we afford in any way to neg! "The questions of material prosperity."

"I he excellent persons seem to think the regument of material prosperity is a ba argument; whereas, of course, such is not the case any more than it is base in a man to teach his son that it is a prime duty to be self-supporting. But to argue only from the standpoint of material prosperity would be base. A good man always hopes to see his son do more than earn his own living. Even each of us should desire to see America become more and more a name of pride, not merely because it symbolizes vast material prosperity, but also because it stands for lofty and generous aspirations, high effort and unyielding resolution.

Among the second licutenants of the marine corps ordered to Manila is young J. P. V. Gridley, the son of the late Capt. Gridley, who commanded the cruiser Olympia in the memorable fight at Manila, and to whom Dewey addressed the famous command: You may fire when you are ready, Gridley. Young Gridley has been in the service only a year and a half, but he has conducted himself in such a manner as to win the highest praise.

"Before treating of the new duties that have come to us in the larger national life upon which we have entered, I wish to say a word upon the extraordinary domestic prosperity which has been brought about in such large part by the policy for which the Home Market club has so preeminently stood. Exactly as a man cannot do much for his neighbor unless he first of all earns his own livelihood and sees to the well-being of his own household, so our domestic well-being must ever be of prime importance in the eyes of our public men.

"You, of this club, have been unswerving in your devotion to sound economic thought. You have, with heartiest enthuslasm, upheld the finally successful effort to put the gold standard upon as safe a basis as it is possible by legislation to put it. You have steadily advocated a tariff policy which in its actual working has vindicated itself by a success which is literally astounding. It has benefited not merely the manufacturer and the wage worker, but the whole population. As for the gold standard, even its opponents are now but half-hearted in their opposition to it.

Duties in Other Lands.

"For good or for evil, we now find ourselves with new duties in the West Indies and new duties beyond the Facific. We cannot escape the performance of these duties. All we can decide for ourselves is whether we shall do them well or ill. Moreover the duties affect us each and all. I speak to you to-night not merely as men of New England but as Americans and eager for the greatness of every portion of our common country. Whether we dwell in, the interior or on the coast of the Atlantic or of the Pacific, we are bound in every way, by every the of patriolism, by every vansideration of that lofter kind of self-int-yest which looks far into the future, to help in all measures which tend to upbuild any part of the nation, confident that thereby we can most surely upbuild the nation in its entirety.

"Our interests, whether in the guil of Mexico, in Central America or in the Philipipines, whether as regards the nations of Europe or the ancient peoples of Asia, are to be looked at always from the standpoint of our people as a whole.

"As regards China, I need say little, for it i hardly worth while wasting breath on the few who criticise our Chinese policy."

"In Guba we have had to face a harder because a less simple task. We were pledged to bring peace, freedom and independence to the islands, and we have been resolutely bent upon keeping that pledge, not merely in the letter, but in the spirit. To have driven out the Spaniards and then immediately withdrawn our own forces would have meant the breaking of our own pledge, for it would have thrown the islands into a chaos but one degree better than the tyranny which it succeeded. Moreover, such a course would have meant the absolute certainty of our being speedily forced to interfere again. We would commit a grave wrong to our own people if we permitted the great island which is our neighbor once more to become a plague spot of civilization; a still graver wrong if we permitted the possibility of its ever being used against us by some strong allen power. Our business was to help in the development of those qualities in the Cubans which would render them able to solve the difficult problem of self-government; to further every movement for decency in the island, and to give our aid to the new Cuban commonwealth as it strove to walk alone.

Retterment of Cuba.

Retterment of Cuba.

"Compare what Cuba now is with what it was three years ago; compare the peace and order and justice of to-day with the unspeakable misery, the bloody jumble of anarchy and tyranny of three years ago. Think of the strides made in the school system and the courts; think of what has been done towards the cleansing of the cities, towards stamping out disease. Remember that the change is solely due to the fact that we dared to go to war for a righteous cause. If ever in history an action has justified itself, our action in interfering in Cuba has thus furnished its own justification.

"Finally, we come to the Philippines, where the difficulties were greatest of all. Perhaps few better tests of our worth as a nation have ever been offered than this Philippine problem. The temptation was great to shirk it altogether. The first thing to be done was to restore order by putting a stop to the insurrection. This has at last been practically accomplished.

"The record of the struggle in the Philippines for the last two years and a half is one which should make all Americans proud because of the firmness and the mercy, the justice and the fearlessness with which their représentatives in the islands have acted under as trying conditions as have ever been faced in a similar case.

tions as have ever been faced in a similar case.

"In developing these islands it is well to keep steadily in mind that business is one of the great levers of civilization. It is immensely to the interest of the people of the islands that their resources should be developed, and therefore it is to their interests even more than to ours that our clitzens should develop their industries. The further fact that it is our duty to see that the development takes place under conditions so carefully guarded that not blind us to the first great fact, which is the need of the development.

Honesty Must Be Observed.

Honesty Must Be Observed.

"It is to the advantage, both of America and of the islands, to have any merchant or business man start and develop a legitimate business enterprise of any kind in the islands, but no public man should have any share in such business, and public opinion should not tolerate for a moment such action among our public men. As for the offenses that are at times bound to occur in connection with the public service in the islands, we should, on the one hand, see to it that the most prompt and severe punishment is visited upon the offenders; and, in the next place, we should remember that it is simply silly to treat such an offense as in any way a condemnation of our policy.

"We talk much, and, on the whole, we talk truly, of the future greatness of our

"We talk much, and, on the whole, we talk truly, of the future greatness of our people. Let us see to it that our deeds make good our words, that we take advanage of our manifold opportunities, and do without flinching our manifold duties. We are not to be excused if we fail to do all that is required of a great nation, standing as one of the great powers of the earth; and least of all are we to be excused if we fail to keep in mind the principles that underlie all greatness—the principles of justice and of mercy—of courage and of honesty, that go to make up a national record of clean living and true manliness,"

AGUINALDO'S PEACE ADDRESS

Unimportant Utterances of a Despicable Figure in the Filipino Rebellion.

Aguinaldo's address to the Filipinos is a contribution to peace, but it is not of supreme importance. The war was over long ago by the writer's own confession. The cause of peace, he says, "has been joyfully embraced by the majority of my fellow country men, who have already united around the glorious sovereign banner of the United States." Then to make the confession still stronger he adds:
"The country has declared unmistakably in favor of peace."

These admissions are interwoven all through with panegyric of the conqueror, whose rectitude and generosity now seem entirely satisfac-tory to the man who confused them so short a time ago with tyranny and oppression. It would be idle, therefore, to pretend that there was anything edifying in the exhibition, even if it have a political effect that is advantageous to the United States Aguinaldo is not the kind of patriot over whom it is possible to grow enthusiastic, whether his mood is defiant or submissive. He had absolute ly no ability as an administrator, was a contemptible soldier and general who left all the fighting to others while he was in continuous retreat, and in the retrospect he cannot be

THREE BEFORE VICTORIA.

None of the Three Kings Did Any-thing to Make His Reign Great or

Giorious. Victoria ascended the throne at an inauspicious moment. Kingship had fallen into a miserable disrepute. The last three monarchs who had sat upon our throne had done little to make their office easy or glorious, says Blackwood's, George III, had ob-scured whatever virtues were his by an obstinancy of opinion which lost us a vast colony, and which might well have enslaved us to foreign power. George IV. had died unwept and unpitied. As he had made his distinguished office a scandal, as he had made his throne ridiculous by a deplorable levity of taste and conduct, so he had forfeited the affection duct, so he had forfeited the affection of his people, and alienated their sympathy long before death overtook him. "There never was an individual," proclaimed the Times but a few weeks after his death, "less regretted by his fellow-creatures than this deceased king. What eye has wept for him? What heart has heaved one throb of unnecessary sorrow?" And the Times expresses in these bitter words nothing less than the popular words nothing less than the popular judgment. Nor can it be said that william IV. graced the throne of Britain. Loved for his homely vir-Britain. Loved for his homely vir-tues, he raised a smile of kindly con-tempt by his lack of dignity, and his frank misunderstanding of kingly ceremonial. On the day of his ac-cession he escaped from his council and was found throwing shillings to a noisy crowd in a back street, and never did he acquire the rudiments of tact, which should be the first wisdom of kings.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
