DEATH'S DOINGS.

FUNERAL OF S. L. STODDARD.

The forms of the last issue of the PRESS were closed before the funeral services were closed before the funeral services for the remains of the late Samuel L. Stoddard took place, in order to enable us to make the mails. However, we gave our readers a full account of the accident and particulars, up to the hour of the funeral. At the appointed time a large concourse of friends assembled at the family residence to pay due respect to the dead and family. Brief services were conducted by Rev. O. S. Metzler, of M. E. Church, assisted by Rev. Robt. McCaslin, of Presbyterian Church, and Rev. J. M. Johnston, of Austin, the deceased's former Pastor. Rev. Metzler's remarks were founded upon the text: "But now men see not the bright light that is in the clouds," and his able discourse was highly complimented by those who were fortunate enough to gain admittance to the residence.

After the large concourse of sympathizing friends had viewed the remains the funeral cortege wended its way to the "silent city of the dead," preceded by the Odd Fellows and Maccabees, of which the deceased was a member. The funeral was very largely attended. The honorary pall bearers as well as the active pall bearers was composed exclusively of engineers, firemen and conductors, with whom the deceased had been associated for years. The floral offerings from the several associations, railroad employes and family and friends were very numerous and beautiful.

After a short prayer at the grave all that was mortal of S. L. Stoddard was deposited in a metallic vault to await the resurrection.

Those in attendance at funeral of S. L. Stoddard: Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Runals, Arcade, N. Y.; Mr. Charles Jacobs, Shingle House, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Donovan, Millport, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Douglass, Don Douglas, Miss Mildred Douglass, Oleon, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Watkins, Mrs. Frank Albrecht, Mrs. Jas. Porter, Mrs. Richard Densted, Messrs. J. B. Bailey, John Wolf, D. Conell, H. H. Hale, H. F. Hale, Jos. Carr, H. Offus, Wm. McCleary, (his fireman) Buffalo N. Y.

The tax on legacies for religious, charitable literary or educational purposes was removed on March 1st last. The bill does not repeal but reduce the taxes, beginning July 1st, on conveyances of real estate, passage tickets, cigars, snuff and tobacco, fermented liquors, foreign bills of exchange and foreign money orders. The act imposes additional taxes, on and after April 1st, on bucket shops and contracts and agreements made by brokers.

John F. Parsons Receives a Child.

Last Friday morning our worthy citizen, John F. Parsons, was at last blessed with a child. About six o'clock in the morning a small child evidently, just out of bed, in night dress and shoeless, made his home a call. Mr. Parsons took the little truant in and cared for it until its fond mother discovered that it had quietly skipped when she of course, made a quick search and found it none the worse for the early visit.

Moving Buildings.

C. L. Thomas, of Port Alleganey, is in town engaged in moving and raising buildings. He has contracted to raise S. D. McDonald's hotel two feet, and Commercial Hotel is receiving a new set of sills. Mr. Thomas will remain here a limited time and any person desiring work in his line will do well to avail themselves of the opportunity.

Painful Accident.

Last Friday morning, William Wykoff, a young man residing at Cameron met with a painful accident, while cutting wood. He was holding the slab in his left hand when he missed his calculation sinking the keen blade into his hand. Dr. Smith was summoned and amputated the index finger at knuckle joint. The young man was in Emporium yesterday and is getting along as well as could be expected.

New Store.

W. D. Johnson, the lumberman, who has extensive lumbering operations in this section and employs a large number of men, has established a store in the store room, corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, chiefly for the accommodation of his men. Mr. H. H. Cloyes, of Jamestown, a practical gentleman, has charge of the business as purchaser and manager. Guy Boone, of Lock Haven, is employed as clerk. They expect to transact a large business.

Timber Deal Closed.

The Jacob Bilger timber tract in Clearfield county, has been sold to a Forest county firm, who will saw the lumber in the woods. Forty thousand dollars was the purchasing price. Negotiations are pending by eastern men for several other timber tracts adjacent to that section of the country, and which will more than likely pass into the hands of parties who will float the timber to eastern markets via the West Branch.

Hotel Change.

Mr. Jos. M. Butler, formerly a resident of this place, has been visiting his brother Chas. L. and family, at this place for several days before departing for Port Alleganey, where he has leased the Connolly House. The Port Alleganey Reporter, in speaking of the hotel says: "J. M. Butler, of Oleon, a well known hotel man of that city, has leased the Connolly House on Pearl street for a term of five years, at an annual rent of twelve hundred dollars, the first year's rent to be paid in advance. The hotel furniture is sold to the new proprietor. Possession to be given so soon as the license transfer can be made, probably about the first of June. Mr. Connolly's failing health almost made the transfer necessary. The hotel property is a valuable one and is doing an excellent trade, and the Reporter extends Mr. Butler congratulations in securing so desirable a property."

IN THE WILDS OF CAMERON.

Interesting Trip to Emporium, the Hustling Capital of Cameron County.

Watsontown Record and Star.
Boarding the Buffalo Flyer at Williamsport on Sunday afternoon last, L. N. Frymire and the editor were rushed through to Emporium in less than three hours at a lively rate. Here we were met at the junction by our former well-known townman, E. H. Hilliard, and escorted to the cozy home of his brother Harry, where Ed. has rooms and lives in very comfortable style. During the evening we were shown part of the town, which is a typical lumber center, well laid out, good wide streets, good business houses and well supplied with "accommodations for man and beast" by seventeen hotels. The principal industries of the place are a large furnace that turns out one thousand tons of iron weekly and the lumber mill of C. B. Howard & Co., where the three Hilliard brothers, Ed. Harry and Bert, are employed.

This mill employs sixty men and an hour's visit on Monday morning convinced us that this force knows how to handle lumber, every man working with a rush and every machine pushed to the limit. The men are well paid, the pay roll showing wages running from $1.75 to $5.50 per day. The principal member of the company, Mr. Howard, is one of the wealthiest men in Emporium and with another member, Mr. Henry Auchu, whose son, William, is foreman of the mill, are practical lumbermen, having worked their way up from the ground floor of the business.

The firm owns sixteen miles of railroad, with two monster hill-climbing engines and a large number of cars. They are now cutting out a tract within a few miles of the town and have several drills ahead on pine and hemlock. They then expect to commence on the hard woods. For this they will shortly erect a new mill and equip it with the latest improved machinery adapted to working hard wood lumber. The lumber in that country is pretty well cleaned up and a few years more will see the mountains bare of big timber and other business take the place of lumbering.

Mr. Auchu, who is not only a practical lumberman, but has considerable experience and knowledge of minerals, oils and gas, is at the head of a party who are prospecting in the surrounding mountains for fire clay. One vein sixteen feet in depth has been discovered and several drills are at work at other points with good indications. The discovery is destined to lead to an immense business in the clay line, and Mr. Auchu remarks that it is the height of foolishness for men to rush off to Alaska for wealth while untold millions lie all around that country awaiting development.

An hour's visit to the elegant home of Mr. Auchu, where we met his wife, son and two daughters, gave us a very exalted opinion of Emporium people. The family is one of the most hospital and entertaining it has ever been our pleasure to meet and we can readily understand why they have attained such a marked popularity among all classes of people. Mr. and Mrs. Auchu had just returned from Philadelphia, where they attended the famous Quaker banquet, Mr. Auchu being an ardent admirer of the great Republican leader in Pennsylvania politics.

We also had the pleasure of meeting Mr. A. Hockley, a former Watsontown burgess and citizen, who is comfortably located in Emporium. He was accompanied when calling by Editor Mullin of the CAMERON COUNTY PRESS, a stalwart Republican organ and the leading paper of the county.

Monday morning we left the town on an eight-mile drive to Elk Forks, through a fine country and over a splendid level road, stopping at the farm owned by Mr. Howard and in charge of Mr. Frank Kinsler, who with his estimable wife entertained us very agreeably until Tuesday evening. This farm is especially adapted to grazing and a large herd of cattle and sheep are kept. The most unique feature of the place is the barn, which is built perfectly round and surmounted by a large dome. It is a large and substantially built structure, but is generally considered as less convenient and commodious than the ordinary square-cornered style.

From here we spent Monday afternoon and Tuesday on the streams fishing for trout. The waters were rather too low and clear for good fishing and our catch was comparatively small in number and the fish small in size. We enjoyed the outing, however, and the exercise developed a good appetite for the excellent fare provided by Mrs. Kinsler.

Returning to Emporium on Tuesday evening, we were pleasantly entertained by Mr. Hilliard until 10:20 p. m., when we left for home, arriving at 2:15 Wednesday morning, very sleepy and tired, but very much delighted with the entire trip. The good opinion of Emporium and its people will long remain with us, and the pressing invitation to repeat the visit will gladly be accepted whenever opportunity offers.

Literary Contest.

Answer to question number 1—In September 1822, Iturbide (pronounced Eter-be-tha) had himself proclaimed Emperor of Mexico and California at Monterey, the provincial capital. The ceremony of lowering the old Spanish flag of Castile, and of hoisting the imperial banner of Mexico above the Presidio was performed with salutes of artillery, and shouts of "Long live Emperor Augustine I," that being the title which Iturbide assumed.

The State Supreme Court sustains the constitutionality of the Ripper bill.

Jasper Harris is offering an Eight Day Bargain Sale. His goods are all new.

H. A. Zarp & Co., of "The Fair" have something new in this issue. Read their ad.

Cramer's Variety Store is booming this summer and invite the PRESS readers to read their new ad. and then call.

The Clinton County Times, formerly of Mill Hill, is upon our table. We congratulate our neighbor upon the excellent appearance of the Times. It is a very creditable sheet.

In our mention of the summer school in our last week's issue, the name of Miss Mattie Collins, Supt. of Cameron county schools, who has charge of the work in pedagogy and mathematics, was unaccountably omitted. She is a very thorough and careful instructor.

In view of the fact that walnut timber is growing more and more scarce every year, wouldn't it be wise for farmers to plant walnut trees on their waste lands? Nearly every farm has more or less land that is absolutely good for nothing. Raise walnut, and in the years to come you will reap a rich harvest. The walnut is not a very slow growing tree, and the more scarce it becomes, the more people will be bound to have it at some price.

Live within your means, says an exchange. Never try to imitate those with larger incomes than your own. Never try to reach the fast pace of living that means the adoption of reckless principles and methods to get rich suddenly that have dragged so many former good and useful men from high positions of honor and trust to the wretched and degraded condition of the criminal, wrecking the happiness of many lives.

The Mt. Jewett Herald says that Elisha K. Kane has inaugurated an extensive system of tree planting on the lands he has denuded of forest in his lumbering operations. He will this spring set out about Kushequa 2,000 white pine, 1,000 Douglas spruce, 1,000 bass wood and 500 Colorado pine. This is a highly commendable move and the compensatory spirit which prompts should find lodgment in the breast of every lumberman who has participated in forest destruction.

Killed at Driftwood.

Last Friday morning, Roy Moody, aged about eighteen years, a son of A. A. Moody, residing at Castle Garden near Driftwood, met with a fatal accident. The young man was employed on P. & E. work train and in some unaccountable manner was thrown from the train, crushing one leg and one arm. Dr. Smith was sent for but was unable to give the young man's friends any hope for life. He died the same day.

We copy the following account of the accident from the Driftwood Gazette:

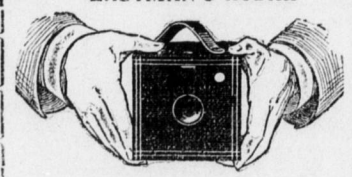

The second fatality within eight days to the employes of the P. & E. work train, occurred shortly after 7 o'clock Friday morning in the Driftwood yard opposite the passenger station. The train was preparing to go to the S. and C. division and were "kicking" in some cars on the side track, when Roy Moody, the 17 year old son of A. A. Moody, of Castle Garden was jerked from the train and fell under the wheels, cutting off his right leg at the hip and his right arm at the shoulder, and smashing the fingers on his left hand. The father, who works on the same train, when told that a man had been injured, was horror struck when going down the track to find that it was his son.

The young man was immediately taken to Dr. Corbett's office and Dr. Smith of Emporium, summoned. After a consultation they decided that his chances for life were very slim and if reaction did not set in by noon it was their opinion that it never would.

Repeated injections of strychnine failed to cause the reaction of the blood and shortly after 4 o'clock the young man breathed his last, surrounded by his grief-stricken father, brothers and sisters. He was conscious until within a few minutes of his death and greeted his people with a kiss as they came to his side.

The remains were removed to E. Nefey's undertaking rooms and prepared for burial and in the evening were taken to the home of his father at Castle Garden. The funeral services were held on Saturday and were conducted by Rev. G. W. Faus of the Methodist church. Interment was made in the Castle Garden cemetery.
