Children's Day Exercises.

Children's day at the First Methodist Episcopal church was appropriately observed, Sunday, June 30th, with all day exercises. At the morning service the minister preached and administered the sacrament of baptism to eleven children.

The Sunday school, Mr. T. B. Lloyd, superintendent, rendered its exercises in the evening before an audience that filled the auditorium and chapel and that gave every evidence of being delighted with the well arranged program.

The infant class, under the direction of Mrs. McNarney, Mrs. Metzger, Mrs. Shaffer and Miss Larrabee, certainly excelled itself. To the strains of music by the orchestra of nine pieces, the 75 children holding aloft beautiful banners, bearing religious emblems, entered the church and ascended the platform where they sang their inspiring songs.

The classes of Mrs. Strayer, Miss Lillian Heilman and Miss Bertha Gregory also rendered beautiful exercises, while the following were heard in individual parts that were very pleasing: Mabel McSwan, Fred Strayer, Pearl Crosby, Cecil Clarke, Bessie Kackemaster, Clella Grant, Lillian Shugart, Mary Mulliner, Mabel Morrison, Edith DeArmitt, Gladys Lloyd and Rena Jordan.

The floral decorations were very fine and reflected great credit upon the committee having them in charge.

A pleasing feature not on the regular program was a vocal solo by Miss Helen Vossage, of Philadelphia. Miss Vossage sings with much expression. Her friends hope to hear her again during her stay in Emporium.

The collection for Christian Education amounted to $30.00.

Renovo Shop Picnic.

The Renovo shop picnic will be held at Tunnel Hill, this county, some time after the 20th of this month, as it will be impossible for the railroad company to furnish cars before that time. Tunnel Hill is about three miles east of Sterling Run and comprises a tract of forty-seven acres.

Rich and poor can be suited with carpets at LaBar's.

A Lumber Job Finished.

H. C. Crawford, the veteran lumberman of Sizerville, is finishing up his work at that place this season, and expects to follow up his old business in the South, where he and O. L. Snyder own extensive tracts of timber.—Port Allegany Reporter.

Lively Runaway.

Last Tuesday evening Mr. A. Loucks' team took fright coming up Fourth street and started to runaway. In his effort to stop the horses one of the reins, the right one, broke which rendered Mr. Loucks powerless to stop the horses. He stuck to the wagon and pulled the team to the left, running them against the corner of the First National Bank with great force, breaking some of the bricks. The team was brought to a stand still in the rear of Seger's clothing store, being unable to find an outlet. Mr. Loucks' nerve never left him and it is a miracle that the aged gentleman was not seriously injured.

The Commercial Hotel.

Since the first of April the Commercial Hotel under the management of Mr. N. P. Warner has undergone some substantial improvement. The whole building has been renovated, from top to bottom, rooms repainted and papered, and changes made of a pleasing kind. The standard of the hotel has been raised. The accommodations are excellent, the rooms and beds neat and clean. An attractive feature of this hostelry is the particular attention given by Mr. Warner to the cuisine department, the dining room and the tidiness of the tables. Everything the market affords, in season, is furnished. In fact the tables are the best ever known at this hotel. Commercial men and the traveling public are drawn to the Commercial, satisfied that under the present management it exceeds its former reputation as a place of accommodation. The Sunday dinners are fine—just the kind our town people enjoy.—Muncy Democrat.

Literary Contest.

Question number five was answered by one of our Emporium young ladies as follows: "Christ learned Aramaic, the dialect of Syria. He understood Hebrew and we take it for granted that Jesus also spoke Greek, since he was an inhabitant of Galilee. He probably spoke Latin, that being the language of the Government." She cites as her authority "The Life of the Master" by Rev. John Watson.

A young lady from Driftwood renders another answer to the same question: "Evidently Christ spoke the Galilean dialect of the Hebrew language" and cites verse seventy of the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. Mark: "Surely thou art one of them, for thou art a Galilean, and thy speech agreeth thereto."

Both answers are undoubtedly correct, and we will give each young lady credit accordingly. So far as the substance of the two answers is concerned the first one is the fuller and more exact, the latter, however, possesses the distinct merit of being her own deduction from her own examination of the Scripture records, as the remark in the Gospel was addressed to St. Peter, and it is a pure assumption to claim that the language spoken in Palestine at that time was Hebrew, for the bulk of evidence points to Aramaic. There is reason to believe that Jesus spoke Greek, as well; but there is no positive evidence that our Lord spoke Latin.

Query No. 6. How many times had St. Walter Scott seen Melrose Abbey by moonlight when he wrote:

"He who would see Melrose aight,
Must see it by the pale moonlight."
Send in your answers to box 163, Emporium, Pa., and win the prize offered by the Emanuel Free Reading Room.

Big Timber Deal by Emporium Lumber Company.

The Wellsboro Republican Advocate says:

"It may be of interest to know something of the sales recently made of timber from the lands usually known as the Silas X. Billings estate at Gaines. This property is now owned, one-half by the heirs of Charles F. Billings, who are represented by Hon. J. B. Niles, of Wellsboro, and one-half by the heirs of Abby B. McNeil, who are represented by Frank A. Sears, of Ithaca, N. Y.

"Messrs. Niles and Sears have within the past year made several sales of timber, amounting in the aggregate to over $400,000. The fact that the last of these is the largest, and that it is the last largest amount of original white pine in this section, makes it of greater interest.

"This sale is estimated to comprise about 11,000,000 feet of white pine, 17,000,000 feet of hemlock, and several million feet of hardwood, chestnut, maple, beech, etc., and was made to W. L. Sykes, of Galeton, for $155,000. Mr. Sykes is a self made man of integrity, and a business hustler. Mention should be made of E. J. Jones, Esq., of St. Marys, his attorney, who is a man of ability in his profession and a gentleman, such as is a pleasure to do business with.

"It is expected that the Goodyears' road will be extended to this lot of timber, which is situated upon the headwaters of Elk run, in Tioga county, and the logs drawn over it to Galeton and there manufactured.

Mr. Sykes is president of the Emporium Lumber company, and this company will manufacture the logs and handle the lumber commencing with next year.

Mr. Sykes has invested a large amount, and it is hoped that he may have success in his present undertaking, as he has had in the preceding ones."

A Sad Accident.

A serious and unfortunate accident happened on Mill street in front of the Davidson store late yesterday afternoon by which Gertrude, a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Butler of the Connolly House was badly injured and may be made a cripple for life. Miss Butler was entertaining her friend Miss Bessie Gallagher of Williamsport and together they had started out for a ride in a rig and with a horse that belongs to Mr. Butler, a kind and docile animal. Going up Mill street between Main and Pearl an explosion of a large firecracker frightened the horse which became unmanageable and turned round. The girls jumped, the Gallagher girl lighting safely, but Miss Butler caught her right foot in the reins and was thrown. Entangled thus the horse dragged her several times about the street before it could be stopped and the young lady relieved from her predicament, although a half dozen men, led by F. E. Bowley ran quickly to the rescue. Tender hands raised the injured child and although she showed a nerve and fortitude scarcely expected in one of her tender years, the conditions were indeed sorrowful. The right leg was broken above the ankle and the ankle was badly crushed and unjointed. Dr. Otto was quickly summoned and assisted by Dr. Colecord the fracture was reduced and the ankle forced back in place. She is resting as easy as can be expected today. The injured girl had lived here but a few days but in that time had made many friends through her charming manners and kindly disposition. She has before her several weeks of suffering which will be enhanced by the terribly warm weather and with the only pleasure that she has the sympathy of her hosts of little friends here and elsewhere in the temporary affliction.—Port Allegany Reporter.

Murder at Austin.

TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCE.

Mr. J. S. Douglas Writes Entertainingly From Los Angeles, Cal.—Up on a California Mountain.

The following interesting letter is from Mr. J. S. Douglas, of the Douglas-Graham Company, and was written from Los Angeles, Cal., where he passed several weeks during the late winter.

As bright a morning as has dawned on this sunny land since my sojourn in the "City of the Angels," was one about the last of March, when at 8 o'clock I stepped aboard a Pasadena electric car, which was to take me as far as the beautiful little city bearing the above happy name, on my way to Mt. Lowe, so-called after Prof. Lowe, the man who had the courage to conceive and the daring and grit to develop and push to completion, the great incline railway by which access is had to "Echo" mountain in making the ascent of Mt. Lowe. I thought I had become pretty well acquainted with this neighboring landmark, by having so frequently seen it from some of the many points of vantage in Los Angeles, standing guard as it were over one of Earth's treasure spots, apparently outside the city's gates; and yet it is twenty-five miles from this point to the top of Mt. Lowe. I had before this, on some of my rides by Tally-Ho and had passed hard by these foot-hills that nestle closely around the base of the mother mountain and I had longed to get into it and experience, if possible, some of the thrills of rapture that California mountains are said to inspire in one, who has a desire thus to become acquainted with nature through this great medium of inspiration. After a ride of an hour and a half, and having been twice transferred to other lines—the latter line having very much lighter and smaller cars, that can the more easily wind their way in and out through the foot-hills—now creeping over trestles, and now winding around short curves and scaling along narrow ledges that overhang, in a rather uncertain and precarious way, deep gorges and young canons that have already obliterated their presence before the nervous tourist, as a forerunner of what he may expect as he goes higher; we find ourselves landed at the great incline railroad in the entrance to Rubio Canon. It is perfectly proper to refer to this point as the foot for it is what the thing stands on. This particular railroad is not lying down; it is standing up, and in quite a dignified manner, for in one long stretch of its 3,000 feet of length, a grade of 62 per cent is maintained and the lowest grade it carries is 45 per cent. Upon getting into the mountain car, and a signal having been sent up the line to the engineer at the top to start the great cable to which the car is attached, and, as the car begins rising, a thrill of anything but rapture comes over some of the occupants as they get down in the bottom of the car, or close their eyes or hide behind some fellow passenger so they cannot see the dizzy heights, they know they are rapidly attaining—an agony of rapture it must be to such. One large gentleman, whom his companions called "Mart," made his escape somewhere in the bottom of the car, and was not seen, nor would he respond to any inquiries by his friends, until the summit of the incline was reached, and he was once more safely on terra-firma. "Mart," had evidently been rerated somewhere out on the plains and had never laid in a very extensive stock of mountain experience, and when he ran up against one of these Sierra Madre propositions, he was wholly unprepared, for it took his nerve away as it almost did his breath. I myself find that I can sit here and write about this mountain experience with a somewhat greater degree of tranquility, than I enjoyed at the time I was getting the experience. As we were approaching the entrance to Rubio Canon through the foothills, the sky suddenly became clouded and lowering, and it as suddenly became uncomfortably cold. It began to grow rather ominous looking for our day's pleasure. To still further complicate matters, it began to rain while we were making our way up the incline, but as this part of the journey only required seven minutes to accomplish, and, as the rain was neither very heavy nor very wet, it being partially frozen in its descent, we were soon enabled to take refuge on the top of "Echo" mountain in an electric car, which stood there waiting for us, without any cover or roof over it, but it was a car and we felt comforted. We are now 1,300 feet higher than at the foot of the incline, and I think that we all felt a degree of pardonable pride at our rapid rise in the world—1,300 feet in seven minutes is pretty good and we have only gone a distance of 3,000 feet, the length of the incline, to attain this altitude. Good Sermon to Maccabees.

Last Sunday morning at Keating Summit the society of the Maccabees, together with a large congregation, assembled in the Union church to hear a sermon delivered to them by the Rev. R. S. Oyster, pastor of the M. E. congregation. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The choir had prepared special music and rendered it well. The sermon was a masterpiece of oratory and elicited the undivided attention of the people from beginning to end, and, judging from the favorable comment, made a very good impression.—Coudersport Enterprise, June 20.
