Letter to Ernest Williams, Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: Ira Gould, a painter in Colebrook, N. H., bought of our agent there, Wesley Wentworth, 4 gallons of paint, thinned it down with two gallons there, Wesley Wentworth, 4 gallons of paint, thinned it down with two gallons of oil, and gave his own house one coat. Every painter in town declared he had painted two coats.

"That's all the far the story goes," as Uncle Remus says. We don't know whether it made a good job or not; but the painter thought it did. We should call it priming. Maybe the house didn't need painting. A priming coat is enough if put on often enough.

But if fra Gould had set out to do us a favor, he couldn't have done much better. One priming coat of Devoe is enough to make painters say, "He's been painting two coats; and wants us to think he has done it with one, and that half oil! No thank you."

We don't know Mr. Gould but we know Mr. Wentworth. Guess the story is straight.

Yours truly,

A Substitute for Timber.

The discovery for a substitute for wood ties for railroad use would materially aid in the preservation of the forests. Practically, every tie destroys a young tree of several years growth. The steam and electric railroads between them exhaust the suitable tree growth of a large area every year. Frederick W. Dunnell has patented a leather tie, by which he expects to utilize the waste leather of the country. He claims that his discovery makes a better tie, one that will last thrice as long, and is but a trifle more costly than the wooden tie. The Bessemer railroad has resolved to experiment with steel ties, something wholly new. This road is in position to make the most thorough experiments. Should the attempt to find a substitute for the wooden tie fail, the recourse seems to be the cultivation of tie trees. It is suggested that denuded forests lands could be sowed to acorns and a crop harvested in reasonable time. It is a question, says a writer, if railroads could not buy mount ain lands in many places on their lines and plant oak trees for ties with profit. Farmers with woodland near a railroad could make second-growth white oak the most profitable crop on the place if they cared to look so far ahead. For the matter, with the destruction of forests is likely that the planting of any kind of trees on a large scale would prove profitable to the man with wild land which he does not want to clear.—

A Newspaper's Enemies.

A newspaper without enemies is hardly deserving of friends. The vicious and lawless never like a bold, fearless paper, and every selfrespecting editor should be proud of their enmity. There are other newspaper foes, however, who are far more troublesome and consequently more to be feared. First and foremost is a man who owes a newspaper an honest debt and will not pay it. Then there is the ambitious mortal who wants an office and complains because the newspaper cannot consistently champion him; he is pretty likely to become an enemy. The man who wants to shape the policy of a newspaper and is not allowed to do so, is a sure enemy. But the meanest man of all is the one whom a newspaper has befriended, and who deliberately condemns the sheet after securing from it all the assistance he possibly can. The newspaper can to some extent respect an open and avowed enemy, but an ingrate is beneath contempt.—Ex.

This is the Latest.

The latest amusement is termed the "Printer's Delight," and is made in the following manner: Take a sheet of note paper fold it up carefully and enclose a banknote sufficiently large to pay up all arrears and a year in advance. And what adds immensely to the feat is to send along the name of a new subscriber, with cash to balance. Keep your eye on the printer, and if you detect a smile the trick is a success. Try it.-Ex.
