REPUBLICAN TICKET. STATE. Justice of the Supreme Court, HON. WILLIAM P. POTTER.

COUNTY TICKET. For Associate Judge, GEORGE A. WALKER. For County Treasurer, WALTER YOTHERS.

YELLOW JOURNALISM VERSUS REPUBLICANISM. We are amused, rather than concerned, by the declarations of the late Democratic state convention, for we readily recognize, as all people must, the co-operation of certain newspapers in their preparation, which papers, falling in their attempt to disrupt the Republican party, have crawled under the tents of the Democracy with their stale and false charges and succeeded in having them adopted as a Democratic platform.

The platform of the late Democratic state convention will be found in the files of the so-called yellow journals during the past few months.

We believe in surrounding the press with every constitutional guarantee vouchsafed to it since the foundation of our government, but it is a public menace that these constitutional guarantees should be so misused as to have permitted many of our newspapers to have degenerated into a yellow journalism such as is detrimental to any state or country.

We charge the so-called yellow journals with being subsidized by the full-page advertisements which they carry. The advertiser is permitted to dictate their policy, and at his behest these newspapers have perverted the news columns and the editorial page from being an honest record of daily events to a labored attempt to misrepresent facts.—Extract from the platform of the Republican state convention of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, August, 21, 1901.

In the dark days of trouble and gloom following the terrible death of President McKinley but little thought was given by the sorrowing people to the immensity of detail incident to the removal of the martyred President's body to Washington and thence to its last resting place in Canton Cemetery. Many read the accounts of the sad journey of Mrs. McKinley and the late President's friends and confidential advisers from the scene of the tragedy to the national capital, and later of the three special trains which bore the many hundred prominent men who made the pilgrimage to the little cemetery in the Ohio town where all that was mortal of the dead man was laid. Yet of these, few gave more than a passing thought to the manner in which the transportation was carried out.

It required but a word from the Cabinet members to President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, to place at their command the magnificent facilities of that corporation for the proper transportation of the body of the late President, and those who were to accompany it upon its journey. It meant the disarrangement of schedules, the preparation and assembling at a distant point of equipment which would tax to the utmost the resources of most railroads, the careful moving of special trains, and all at a moment's notice.

With its splendid corps of capable assistants, actuated by the desire to fulfill to the utmost capacity of the company the request of the acting rulers of the Nation, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company again demonstrated, as upon many former occasions of moment, its superiority by conveying McKinley's body, accompanied by a large party, from Buffalo to Washington on a train composed of the highest grade of equipment, without a delay upon the whole journey, and two days later transporting on three special trains the many members of the national government who desired to pay their last respects at the President's grave.

And all of this was done without holding back for a single minute the enormous passenger and freight traffic over the lines utilized.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Party-Wrecking Politics. The party wreckers among the Republicans have joined hands with Colonel Guffey and ex-Governor Pattison among the Democrats, and they have made up a ticket, not only for local officers in Philadelphia, but for State Treasurer and for a Supreme Court Justice. The ticket is not a strong one by any means. It represents, for instance, the personal interests of ex-Judge Gordon, Democrat; of A. K. McClure, Bryanite; of John Wanamaker, Party Wrecker; of David Martin, the boss of the old Combine of Political Highwaymen.

The people are asked to support such a ticket. But why should they do it?

This is a Republican State and a Republican city. Both the State and the city conventions have placed in nomination candidates who are above reproach. Simply because a Wanamaker wants to go to the United States Senate the people are asked to smash everything Republican and vote into office the personal friends of Wanamaker, McClure, Gordon and Martin. We do not believe that Republicans, as a rule, are going to listen to the blandishments and the hypocritical charges that Wanamakerism makes. We do not believe that the candidates of yellow journalism possibly can win.

Down in Washington is a President of the United States who needs the full support of every Republican in a most trying time. Pennsylvania, the rock-ribbed Republican State, is not going to be led astray because a few designing politicians wish to feather their own nests. It is the duty of Pennsylvania to stand by the Republican ticket and give support to the Republican administration in Washington.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A MODEL JUSTICE

Republican Nominee for Supreme Court Has a Brilliant Record.

THE STORY OF HIS CAREER

A Hard and Devoted Student and a Successful and Popular Member of the Bar, Who Has Won the Respect and Admiration of the People.

The Republican candidate for associate justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, Hon. William Plumer Potter, of Allegheny county, has had an interesting career. He will not be present at any of the political pathos during the campaign, but the orators will have an opportunity to speak for him and in his behalf, and they can point with pride to his brilliant record as a member of the bar and a justice on the supreme bench. Justice Potter is a man whose instincts and training combined give him especial qualifications for the supreme bench. When his name was first mentioned in connection with the supreme judgeship the bench and bar of Allegheny county were of one accord in acknowledging his possession of that even tempered nature and broad and generous culture which are so essential to the judge in the minds of all who cherish high ideals in government. With potential friends in nearly every craft and calling in the community, the satisfaction over his appointment to the supreme bench in September, 1901, was universal in the community in which he has resided and is so widely known. Justice Potter was born in Iowa April 27, 1857, being a son of James H. Potter, a Presbyterian clergyman. He is of Scotch-Irish ancestry, his great grandfather, Henry Potter, having emigrated from the north of Ireland about the year 1800, and settled near Pittsburg, where the subject of this sketch now resides with his wife and two daughters, he having married Miss Jessie Deacon, of Des Moines, Iowa, in 1884.

His early life revealed an ambition to accomplish something in the world and that youthful restlessness so common to the majority of ambitious young men, induced him to leave Lafayette College, at Easton, before his course had been completed in order to accept a position in a bank and earn his own livelihood.

His love for books, however, continued to assert itself and a strong predilection for the law finally led him to enter upon a course of legal studies, as a result of which he was admitted to the Iowa bar in 1880. In the following year he returned to Pittsburg, where he devoted himself to an additional and thorough course of study, qualifying himself for a rigid examination for admission to the Allegheny county bar, of which he became a member in 1883. After six years' practice he formed a partnership with William A. Stone, then a member of congress and at present Governor of Pennsylvania.

SECRET OF HIS ADVANCEMENT. From the date of his admission to the Pennsylvania bar he made steady and substantial progress, and if the query were asked, what has been the secret of that advancement the answer would be this:

Eighteen years of unremitting toil over books and briefs; 18 years of battles with the most astute adversaries of the profession from all of which struggles he emerged with honor and from most of which he emerged with victory; 18 years of determination to win the esteem of his contemporaries by keeping abreast with the progressive thinkers and workers of his time.

His practice at the bar while touching almost every branch of the law has been principally directed to commercial causes. His widely known devotion to the law, his skill in the conduct of critical cases and his marked fidelity to the interests of his clients brought him an enormous practice, an idea of the extent of which may be gleaned from the fact that during the two years immediately preceding his appointment to the supreme bench he tried more cases than any other of the 800 members of the Allegheny county bar. His direct examination of witnesses was always concise, clear, and thorough, bringing out all the pertinent facts in an orderly manner enabling the jury to grasp every detail. In cross-examination he excelled, and during the latter years of his practice he was regarded by the bar as one of the leading authorities on medical jurisprudence.

ALWAYS COURTEOUS; ALWAYS CLEVER.

Invariably courteous to witnesses and opposing counsel, he succeeded in developing his own case and weakening the force of adverse testimony, while retaining the good will of even his opponent. While invective formed no part of his nature, he could still be sufficiently severe with a dishonest or untruthful witness to break the force of his testimony before the court and jury. His questions, though they came like thunderbolts, were so evidently fair that they aroused no prejudice against him.

Uniformly considerate of his brother lawyers, he retained their good will even after the hardest fought legal battle. While not afraid to antagonize the position of the court if need be, his demeanor towards the bench was always most profoundly respectful and his arguments were always listened to with the most careful attention.

One of the most effective testimonials to his high standing at the bar is to be found in the fact that in presenting petitions and documents for the signature of the judges, Mr. Potter's brief verbal statement of their contents seemed always sufficient to secure the proper action without further scrutiny by the court as to what the papers contained. This confidence in him on the part of the court, as in all other cases, was gained only by years of the strictest adherence to truth in all his dealings with the bench and bar.

His early association with banking developed a taste for economics, and he has been for many years a careful student of finance and kindred subjects and has acquired a reputation in that field. His intimate knowledge of corporation and fiscal matters give him a leadership in a community in which he organized and developed to successful operation a number of financial institutions. Trust companies, national banks, state banks, insurance companies and corporations of a general nature, he has handled with a close of a long practice at the bar, and by his ability plotted to prosperity. In many of these he was a director, and for all of them he was counsel.

A HARD AND DEVOTED STUDENT. He is a hard student in the very broadest sense, having acquired a fine library covering the very widest range of scientific study; he is, moreover, a devoted student of current history and keeps thoroughly informed of all the passing problems of any moment. As the best key to a man's real character is always the reputation he enjoys among those with whom he comes in daily contact, it would gratify any citizen of the commonwealth interested in the supreme bench to hear the unvaried expressions of members of the legal profession and others who are familiar with the character and ability of Mr. Justice Potter. His whole life has been characterized by industry and integrity of the highest order. His standing and success as a citizen, a business man and a lawyer form the basis of that firm confidence which the community at large has in his future, as one of those into whose keeping has fallen the most sacred trust of the commonwealth.

Viewed from the standpoint of the lawyer, in that cold, unsympathetic light under which the legal profession scrutinizes the judge, he is a reliable and substantial figure. In brief, he is a man whose nature abounds in those sturdy qualities which despise pedantry and pretense and look askance upon sham and sophistry.

He brought to his present position a broad general equipment and a deep human sympathy which has made him a most valuable acquisition to the bench.

FIRM AND COURAGEOUS. While possessing a demeanor that is simple and unaffected and a modesty that is native, his bearing is such as always to bespeak that dignity which is so becoming to the exalted position to which he has attained.

Justice Potter, while firm and courageous in his convictions, is of a kindly, chivalrous disposition, and with a charming magnetism of person that makes lasting friendships, and it was these characteristics that enabled him, eral character were successfully established in which he was often obliged to employ the utmost limit of insistence with his brother attorneys and the court, in the trial of causes, to lay aside the weapons of forensic strife, and take with him the respect and hearty good will of his late opponents at the bar.

Justice Potter is a staunch Republican, and in state and national politics always took an active interest, believing that the good citizen should enlarge his field of usefulness by embracing all the opportunities afforded to aid in the selection of properly equipped public officials. He is eminently equipped, both physically and mentally, to discharge the trying duties devolving upon a justice of the supreme court, with ability, fidelity and fearlessness, and an examination of his opinions, already filed, shows evidences of legal ability of a high order, and bespeaks for him a long and useful career.

The Young of the Sea Devil. You may find in the sea devil a curious illustration of nature's system for adjusting reproduction. The cod lays several hundred thousand eggs at a spawning because nearly all of them must necessarily be lost while floating on the waves and those which hatch are mostly devoured. But the sea devil, which produces but a single young one at a time, retains the latter in its belly until the infant creature is from four to six feet in length, so that when born it is able to take care of itself and is in no danger of being destroyed.

Paper Covered Books. The life of the paper covered books that accumulate on everybody's hands and among which one sometimes finds one she would like to keep may be prolonged by this process: Cut a piece of gingham or print a trifle larger than the cover. Paste it to the paper covers and trim the edges. Dry under a weight and letter the title on the cover. The cloth should be in one piece.

A Fallible Sign. Mrs. Housekeep—I don't know much about the new girl, but she's good natured and harmless, at any rate.

Mr. Housekeep—How did you find that out?

Mrs. Housekeep—I notice that she sneezes at her work.

Mr. Housekeep—Hugh! That's no sign. A mosquito does that.—Exchange.

Original. "What do you think of my ideas?" inquired the would-be contributor. "Well," replied the editor, handing back the manuscript, "you've got one very original idea."

"What's that?" "Your idea that your ideas are original."—Philadelphia Press.
