The Matter of "Rings."

It is usual for persons who delight in finding fault and trying to kick up a row in any organization to which they belong, to talk mysteriously and with bated breath about the enormous iniquities of "The Ring." But if called upon to describe the bugaboo so that anybody could recognize it, they would have to draw very liberally upon their imagination.

There are always people who are by nature insubordinate. You will find them in churches, in politics, in lodges and everywhere else that organization exists. They want to tear down instead of build up. They are envious, and love to attribute bad motives to everybody. They do not care to take hold and help push things along themselves, but take great pleasure in standing with their arms folded sneering and criticizing those who are tugging away in the harness.

In every organization there are always some persons who take a greater interest in it than others. They naturally go ahead and do what they think ought to be done for its welfare and success, and because of their energy and zeal they come to be looked upon by others who are interested in the success of the organization as leaders, and their opinions are accounted of more value than the opinions of those who take little or no interest. These are denominated by the drones and kickers as "The Ring."

If you want to improve an organization—if you are interested in its welfare—get into it, and give it the benefit of your advice and council. To stand aloof and howl like a coyote only makes you ridiculous. "All the world loves a lover," and all the world feels like kicking a kicker.

We hear much of political rings, but very little that is rational—very little that is not dictated by revenge, wounded vanity, or a chronic disposition to refuse to be anything unless you can be the "whole thing." Like Cassius, these fellows "will not follow anything that other men begin," and they will not begin anything but a row.

A political organization in any civil division in which the popular vote is used to determine issues, must be composed of a majority of the voters, or it cannot succeed. Those who take the most active and intelligent interest, who display the most zeal for the success of their party—naturally come to be regarded as leaders. Such has ever been the case since man has kept a record of events, and such will continue to be the rule till the end of time. If leaders become corrupt and selfish, and it is apparent that they are looking more to their own than to their party's welfare, the rank and file of the organization will soon lose confidence in them, and their influence will die—as it should. New leaders will then arise spontaneously, but they will never come from the ranks of the chronic fault finder, whose business it is to destroy, and not to build. Leaders must be of the constructive, and not of the destructive, temperament.

Every Republican, and every Democrat, who takes an interest in his party, is a member of the organization. Those who oppose it call the active list, or workers, the ring, and point to it as a diabolical thing. The oldest man living cannot remember when the disgruntled ones of his party did not talk about "The Ring," and if he should live a thousand years longer he will continue to hear the same thing.

No considerable body of men can work together successfully without organization. If the Republican party had no organization in the county, State or Nation, the Democrats would whip us out of our boots every time. Without organization an army would be a helpless mob, in more danger from itself than from the enemy. Without organization a church is incapable of aggressive work in the cause of right. Without organization no large business enterprise can succeed, and without organization Labor cannot maintain its rights and keep up a just and equitable standard of wages.

Those who are too ill conditioned, too indolent or too timid to take hold and be an active and earnest worker in any of these organizations, are always the ones who try to tear them down. They think it is their peculiar duty in life to snarl and blubber and have conniption fits about a purely imaginary "Ring," while if you would place in the hands of any of these fellows the sceptre of authority, you would find them to be the most arbitrary and tyrannical of masters. It is an old and well established truth, that he who will not trust others cannot be trusted.—Hon. W. O. Smith in Puxsutawney Spirit.

"Some years ago while at Martinsburg, W. Va., I was taken with cholera morbus which was followed by diarrhoea. The doctor's medicine did me no good. I was advised to get a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I did, and it cured me sound and well.—G. A. Morris, Embreeville, Pa. Sold by L. Taggart.

Our Next Congressman.

The readers of the "Journal" are aware of the fact that we are now in a new Congressional district, created by the last Legislature, and composed of the counties of Centre, Clearfield, Cameron and McKean, and designated the Twenty-seventh Congressional district. The vote in the new district on Tuesday, November 5, indicates that the nominee of the Republican party of the district must be a positive protectionist and one who has not been crippled by factional quarrels; a business man of broad gauge and a man of unsullied reputation. Such a man is A. E. Patton. His devotion to Republican principles and his patriotic position on the leading public questions come to him by inheritance, as his father, the late Hon. John Patton, was a sincere, unwavering Republican, who led Republican forces to victory against the most formidable opposition twice in a Democratic Congressional district. While the young man of whom we write has never sought a nomination of any kind at the hands of his party, he has, nevertheless, been active in the support of every candidate ever nominated on the Republican ticket, in the county, district and State. While he may have differed slightly with party leaders on questions of party policy, he never hesitated to give loyal support to the candidates nominated by the Republican party. Since he has reached his majority he has been a contributor to the campaign fund in the county as well as a financial supporter in the wider fields of the party's operations. Not one year alone has he contributed to our county campaign fund, but every year for many years past his name has been regularly placed at the head of the list of positive contributors.

To the Public

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I can recommend it with the utmost confidence. It has done good work for me and will do the same for others. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64, Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by L. Taggart

"It will soon cure the cough too," writes Mrs. S. Himelburger, "for three generations of our family have used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and never found it's equal for Coughs and Colds." It's an unrivaled life-saver when used for desperate lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00 at L. Taggart's. Trial bottles free.

Spreads Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in 20 years." You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by L. Taggart druggist.

Love and poverty are hard to hide.

A Violent Attack of Croup Cured.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by L. Taggart.

Love and a cough cannot be concealed

Modern Surgery Surpassed.

"While suffering from a bad case of piles I consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," says G. F. Carter, Atlanta, Ga. "I procured a box and was entirely cured. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a splendid cure for piles, giving relief instantly, and I heartily recommend it to all sufferers." Surgery is unnecessary to cure piles. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, burns, bruises and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits. R. C. Dodson.
