Kissed The Wrong Man.

A Phila. paper says: Just as a barber in a shop on Eleventh street, near Chestnut, had finished lathering the face of one of his best customers, a well-known business man, there swept into the place a handsomely-dressed young lady and pretty woman, who, as she rushed up to the man with the soap-sudged face, said "Dearie, they told me at the store that you came here, and as I have to hurry to catch the train, I had to run over here to say good-bye."

The barber, in surprise said: "Why, I didn't know you were married." He was more surprised when the man who had been addressed as "Dearie" answered: "I ain't and what's more, I never saw that woman before."

The barber's laughter was interrupted by a man who was being shaved in the next chair, who said: "That was my wife."

The story was simple enough. The woman was going to Atlantic City, and she was to bid her husband good-bye at his place of business, which is near the barber shop.

The husband was at the barber's and the time being precious, she hurried to the barber shop to say her adieu.

The husband, with a "that's so," agreed. After both men had got out of their chairs the husband extended his hand to the man his wife kissed, and, as the two shook, the husband said: "It's all right; let's have a drink."

A Change Suggested. "What is your occupation?" asked the old physician as he felt the patient's pulse.

A Young Man Becomes an Example to Others who may Attempt to Indulge in Like Conduct.

Before Alderman E. W. Batzle, Saturday morning, H. O. Shaffer, who resides at Williamsport, Pa., was given a hearing, under the act of June 3, 1893 for having secured the publication of a false statement in The Sun.

The Sun, desirous of inflicting upon the defendant no other penalty than a lasting lesson to him, and making an example for others who have indulged, or may be tempted to indulge, in like malicious conduct, announced that there was no desire to press the case further.

Alderman Batzle then sentenced the defendant to pay the costs in the case. He was without funds to pay at once, and at the suggestion of the prosecutor, The Sun, he was not re-committed to the officer having him in charge, but was held in his own recognizance.

HISTORY OF THE CASE. The arrest of Shaffer was the outgrowth of a publication which appeared in Williamsport Sun's social column on July 15th. It was announced therein that on Saturday, July 12, Walter Hoover, of Harveyville, and Miss Nettie Dodson, of that city, had been married.

A few hours subsequent to the publication Miss Dodson called at The Sun office and declared that the item was false. The following day an item to that effect was printed in The Sun.

Remarkably enough, within the next twenty-four hours after the publication of the Hoover-Dodson notice The Sun received four other notices of alleged marriages. The falsity of these, however, was established before they gained publication.

The Sun, however, for the protection of the public and its own columns, and in the interest of all newspapers and periodicals, determined to make an example of these promoters of libelous and untruthful statements.—Sun.

In prosecuting and convicting H. O. Shaffer the Sun has done the public a valuable service.
