EDITORIAL MENTION.
The first railroad dining car was called the Delmonico and was built by the Pullmans in 1866.

A large apple may have a large worm in it. New York has had Crocker and is likely to have Devery.

They had an earthquake in Mindanao just after Gen. Miles announced his intention to visit the Philippines.

Free trade theorists would find conditions in Africa to suit them. All the exports are national products and all the imports manufactured articles.

Unless you repent and believe in the Hon. W. J. Bryan you cannot be saved, so the Commoner says, and the Commoner is the Democratic bible.

A London publisher who has issued a cast of characters similar to the dramatist's personae of the playbills has found the scheme a good one and his books are selling.

Great Salt Lake is at the lowest level since observations of it have been recorded. In nine years it has lost six feet in depth and in some places has narrowed nearly a mile.

The Democrats have paid so much attention to the weeds in the Republican fences that they have quite forgotten the dilapidated condition of their own boundaries.

A man named Feldsmith recently attempted suicide twice in one day. A careful investigation revealed the fact that his wife composes literary poems instead of gastronomic ones.

A would-be assassin threw a bomb at an inoffensive capitalist in styria the other day. The capitalist was very slightly injured, one of his poor laborers was nearly killed and the would-be assassin has gone to his reward.

The army surgeons in the Philippines have succeeded in stamping out dysentery and a dobe itch among the troops. The first was conquered by strict sanitation and the second by thoroughly drying clothes after washing and ironing them with very hot irons.

The Commoner says "The gentlemen who imagine that the Democracy needs reorganizing should consult an alienist." The editor should take heed. Every one knows that the drunkard thinks he is the only sober man and the fool is sure wisdom is confined to himself. Mr. Bryan should not place himself in either category, even by implication.

Col. John A. Joyce and Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox are still quarreling over the authorship of "Laugh and the World Laughs with You." Our knowledge of poetry is rather limited but we prefer to read it to quarrelling over the authorship. Perhaps Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays and Col. Joyce wrote the poem referred to, but as to the latter—we have very little sympathy with a twenty year squabble over a stick of peppermint candy.

Degrees of Efficiency.

Every well-informed citizen shares in the opinion of President Roosevelt, expressed yesterday while at the home of Secretary of the Navy Moody, when he said: "The good work of building up the navy must go on without ceasing. The modern warship cannot with advantage be allowed to rust in disuse. It must be used up in active service even in time of peace. This means that there must be a constant replacement of the ineffective by the effective," says Harrisburg Telegraph. Never throughout the life of our active President has he shown contentment with ordinary degrees of efficiency. In his speeches during the New England tour it has been impossible for him to hide his own vigorous personality. In his striving for the best in all branches of the National Government he typifies the American spirit which is never satisfied with past achievements. We have done well and gloriously in the past, we can do better in the future.

When that happy day comes when wars shall cease and nations shall be at peace with one another there will be no need of ships and the implements of warfare. Unfortunately, however near that day may seem, it has not arrived. Even the most peacefully inclined citizen must realize that it is impossible to fortel the evil hour when the dark clouds of war will appear on the national horizon. After the outbreak of a war it is impossible to improvise either the ships or the men of a navy. The length of the war depends largely on the preparedness of the nation. Since the United States cannot get along without a navy, the President believes that there should be no doubt concerning the quality of the men or the ships. We want no ordinary efficiency; we want the best.

Mr. Pattison's Confession.

The speech of ex-Governor Pattison at Reading yesterday accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor for a third time will strike the reader in general as something he has heard before. The ex-Governor's utterances have become very familiar to the people of the Commonwealth.

In this address—which, of course is the keynote of the Democratic campaign—Mr. Pattison announces that he finds the same evils existing in Pennsylvania that he discovered when he was first nominated, twenty years ago and which he met with again at the time of his second nomination, a dozen years since. From this it is plain that Mr. Pattison's eight years as Governor did not give the people the reforms so abundantly promised. This is an unfortunate report for a specialist in public evils to have to make on his own labors. It must be discouraging to Mr. Pattison's own followers.

It must also be a peculiarly unsatisfactory feeling to the candidate himself that he had promised so much and achieved so little. It can hardly fail to stagger the confidence and admiration of those who look upon the Democratic gubernatorial nominee as the only honest man in the Commonwealth, yet they must believe the facts as he presents them. And they are told that after he has twice been Governor things are just as bad as they ever were—as bad as they would have been if he had never been elected to inform them. It is because two terms have proved such a confessed failure that a third term is asked for?

The assurance of Mr. Pattison that the evils he was twice elected to wipe out were not wiped out makes it quite certain the people of Pennsylvania are not going to waste another chance on him. Why should it be expected he would do in another term what he failed to do in the two terms he has already had? It the esteemed Democrats really wanted to eradicate the various evils they complain of they would have shown much more sincerity by nominating some one who had not shown himself in eight years of experience to be a failure at the job. Their candidate does not even now tell how it is to be done; he merely states that after he had been twice elected to do it it is still undone.

This does not present a single reason why any Republican should reject Judge Pennypacker in favor of the Democratic candidate. The issue is not a personal one between two candidates. The questions involved are those which divide the two parties. When has ex-Governor Pattison lifted his hand in any service but that of the Democracy, with all that it is to-day, nationally and locally?—Phila. Press.

Education in the Philippines.

It is a genuine pity that the Democratic managers, in their recently issued campaign text book, should have wasted so much valuable effort, space and time in their endeavor to make a substantial issue, by asserting that the acquisition of the Philippine Islands was a monumental error and a desparing experiment on the part of the government. It would have been an easy matter for the managers of this party without an issue to have proven to their own satisfaction the fallacy of this contention, for facts have recently arrived from the Archipelago which are gratifying in the extreme to the great mass of the American people who have an abiding faith in the destiny of our flag and who believe that the advancement of civilization is a stern duty and a righteous cause.

The facts which prove beyond question that the native Filipinos are making rapid strides towards the institutions of modern civilization, under the paternal and guiding hand of the government, are embodied in the most recent annual report issued by the Secretary of War. The best evidence of this progress towards enlightenment is furnished by a review of the facts in the report concerning education and the public schools in the Islands. When this phase of the situation was advocated in Congress by Republican statesmen, it will be remembered that a clamor was instantly raised by the Democratic press that the scheme was impossible and impracticable because of the fact that the Filipinos were of that benighted class that would have nothing to do with civilization. What has already been accomplished in that so-called land of darkness proves the fallacy of this.

The Department of Public Instruction in the Island is now under the head of a general superintendent, who has divided the territory into eight divisions, and has appointed a competent head to each division. In his last report to the Secretary of War the superintendent states that he already has at work eight superintendents, eight principals and assistants for normal, agricultural and manual training work, who have under their supervision 781 teachers from the United States; besides these are 80 teachers selected from Americans who made applications in the Philippines, as well as two superintendents.

The most surprising feature of the educational experiment, however, shows the commendable eagerness with which the natives come forward to receive instructions as native teachers. On April 10 last, when this particular branch of the project was started, accommodations had been provided for but 350 scholars. This was thought to be ample, but on the opening day 450 enrolled and soon after it was necessary to make provisions for 600. Of these 570 studied faithfully to the end of the term, and the report is to the effect that their progress in acquiring English is gratifying in the extreme. At the present time there are 4,000 native teachers being employed and 2,000 of them are receiving instruction in English.

But the good work has gone much further than this. It is now estimated that 150,000 children are enrolled in the public schools, but only about one-half of that number can be provided for at present. The adult natives have not been neglected, as over 10,000 of them are receiving instructions in English at night schools, and many more are applying but cannot yet be taken care of.

It would seem from this casual array of facts that the authors of the Democratic Campaign Text Book would do well to withdraw that misleading document and change the title so as to make it conform more closely to its unreliable contents.

Farm Prosperity.

Henry Herr, of Lancaster township, Lancaster county, last week sold thirteen head of cattle in Philadelphia. Their average weight was 1,326 pounds, and he received for them $9.05 per hundred, amounting in the aggregate to $15,600.39 or a little more than $120 per head, and yet the free trade calamity organs try to make us believe that farmers are not participating in the general Republican prosperity.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

His Life Saved by Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"B. L. Byer, a well known cooper of this town, says he believes Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved his life last summer. He had been sick for a month with what the doctors call bilious dysentery, and could get nothing to do him any good until he tried this remedy. It gave him immediate relief," says B. T. Little, merchant, Hancock, Md. For sale by L. Taggart.

A grass widow generally makes hay while the sun shines.

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Sumner counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours.
