EDITORIAL MENTION.
The President didn't strike oil; he struck coal.
The Commoner is getting commoner.
David B. Hill's jack-ass brayed too soon.

We love animals and therefore cannot subscribe to the doctrine of metempsychosis.

Mr. Bryan says he is fighting to preserve the work he did for his party in 1896 and 1900. He might accomplish this task without upsetting the world.

When President Roosevelt secured a settlement of the coal strike, he buried the last ghost of Democratic hope.

Ohio is experiencing Democratic single-tax-ism; New York, Democratic socialism; and Democratic anarchy is knocking at the doors of several states.

The Democratic Campaign Book is proving as great an obstacle in the Democratic campaign as would Democratic legislation to the prosperity of the nation.

With the coal strike of 1902 settled, the Smolenshis, the Strifskis, the Alkicksis, the O'Flarhatis and the Fahays will now proceed to inaugurate the basis of another strike.

Mr. Bryan says he would rather be right than be President. An exchange adds that he runs no risk of being either. Mr. Roosevelt is trying to be both right and President at one and the same time.

Probably the reason that this country is free from revolutions is that all the revolutionary spirits find their way into the Democratic party and become lost in the mazes of intricate conflicts.

Some papers think they can make a funny supplement by a liberal use of colored ink and a few pointless legends attached thereto. They are right; their supplements are funny, but they are far from humorous or witty.

William Allen White writes that President Roosevelt is the first president since the civil war that has conducted his office and has done things about as the average man believes he would have done them had he had the chance.

The Commoner's Macedonian cry to come over and help us by sending in subscriptions at once is getting a little urgent. In view of the scarcity of fuel, perhaps one might do worse than subscribe for Mr. Bryan's paper.

In spite of Democratic anxiety to see their fellow men suffer privation in order that the Democratic party may win at the polls, Republican prosperity will not down.

In the coming election no man should offer the excuse of being too busy to vote. Republican defeat would produce more idleness than should be desired in which to repent.

ASK YOURSELF AND THEN YOUR NEIGHBORS. Twice in recent History votes for Pattison elected Cleveland. May not a vote now for Pattison defeat Roosevelt?

Suppose the State of Pennsylvania elects a free trade, free silver Democrat to the United States Senate? The effect upon the country at large, that this Commonwealth, which is a beehive of industry, had repudiated the policies of Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt would be alarming to the conservative interests. Hope and courage would spring in the bosoms of Democrats in every close State in the Union, and it requires no fevered imagination to see that a Democratic President might very easily be the fruit of the seed carelessly dropped in the ground during Pennsylvania's legislative election.—Bucks County Gazette.

In 1892 the country was happy and prosperous. To bring the matter home and permit of a clear realization of that time, every mill in Bristol was then humming with industry, houses were fully occupied and men, woman, boys and girls had no difficulty in selling their labor. There was a constant cry for help. In November a Democratic President was elected and from a state of prosperity in fifteen months we got to the condition when free soup houses had to be established, AND NOT A SINGLE LAW HAD BEEN CHANGED UPON THE STATUTE BOOKS! That was the moral effect of a Democratic national victory.—Bucks County Gazette.

Give Credit Where it is Due. At Kittaning Judge Pennypacker very truthfully said: "There is a matter of recent date to which I want to briefly call your attention. There has been a very serious disturbance in one of the great interests of the Commonwealth. Employers and employees came into collision as to which side should have the greater advantage in the sale and disposition of material they produced. Now, that was a matter which affected not them alone; it affected every railroad, every mill, every factory and every business interests in this broad land. But more than that. The most important things in life are not our material interests. It affected the homes and happiness of every man, woman and child living in this land. The poor in their homes wandered what they were going to do, threatened as they were with the cold of the approaching winter.

This was a most grave and serious situation. While it existed what Democrat in this country, what Democratic newspaper publishing editorials daily, what Democratic Statesman or politician raised a hand to remove those difficulties? You are sensible men and there are many things you know of and about which you need not be told, and you know that the hope of the Democratic party in this campaign rested upon the continuance of those difficulties. "Now look at the other side. The Republican Senators of Pennsylvania, the Republican Governor of New York, the strenuous and able Republican President of the United States combined their weight in an effort to bring about a fair and reasonable solution of the trouble. They succeeded. The strike is over. The dark cloud that was hanging over the land has disappeared. Those miners who had been out of work for four or five months may now return to their occupation and get their customary wages, but the hopes of the Democratic party in this campaign have disappeared.

There was a renewal of the enthusiasm when former Senator Brown was introduced. It became even wilder than before and reached a pitch bordering on frenzy when a man in the audience asked: "What of the anthracite strike?" Mr. Brown paused, looked in the direction from which the query had come and in a dramatic manner said: "The anthracite strike? the answer to that is Roosevelt."

For some time it was impossible for the speaker to continue. Men sprung to their feet and waved their hats and shouted until they were hoarse, and even the woman joined in causing such a volume of sound as has probably never been exceeded in a courtroom.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION PROPOSED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

A JOINT RESOLUTION. Proposing an amendment to section ten of article one of the Constitution, so that a discharge of a jury for failure to agree or other necessary cause shall not work an acquittal.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met. That the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, that is to say, that section ten of article one, which reads as follows:

"No person shall, for any indictable offense, be proceeded against criminally by information, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger, or by leave of the court for oppression or misdemeanor in office. No person shall, for the same offense, be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; but a discharge of the jury for failure to agree, or other necessary cause, shall not work an acquittal. Nor shall private property be taken or applied to public use, without authority of law and without just compensation being first made or secured."

Section 2. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met. That the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:

Amendment. Add at the end of section seven, article three the following words: "Unless before it shall be introduced in the General Assembly, such special or local law shall have been first submitted to a popular vote, at a general or special election in the locality or localities to be affected by its operation, under an order of the court of common pleas of the respective county after hearing and application granted, and shall have been approved by a majority of the voters at such election: Provided, That no such election shall be held until the decree of court authorizing the same shall have been advertised for at least thirty (30) days in the locality or localities affected, in such manner as the court may direct."
