CHAPTER VI.

MYSTERY ON MYSTERY. The hundreds of columns of space devoted by the New York morning papers to the great event could have been condensed into a few paragraphs, so far as any true explanation of the mystery was concerned. Six men, whose combined wealth variously estimated at from $800,000,000 to $1,250,000,000, had disappeared as suddenly and completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed them. Four of them-Messrs. Pence, Kent, Haven and Morton-had been in the latter's office about four o'clock on Monday aftermoon. Mr. Morton's secretary was sure they held no conference at this time, and said they soon left the building. He thought they left together, and supposed they went away in carriages or in an automobile. It was not uncommon for men distinguished in the world of affairs to clerks and customers cheered from meet at Mr. Morton's office. Mr. every window. Morton had arranged for an important conference with some railroad men at his office for the following morning at 11 o'cblock. The corre-spondence files showed that fact conclusively. Mr. Morton had telephoned to his residence that he would not be home to dinner. This was not unusual. That was absolutely all that was known of Mr. Morton's movements or plans

John M. Rockwell was in his office from 11 o'clock until about two in the afternoon. He transacted busimess as usual and had planned to start on a trip to Chicago the following day. His private car had been ordered to the Pennsylvania depot. ordered to the Pennsylvama depute Andrus Carmody was to accompany him on this business journey. Both of these centlemen had left word at were so small as to show that they expresented but profit taking for their residences that they would not be home to dinner. Hiram Haven did not leave his office until nearly four o'clock. This was about his nearly had been absorbed dury stock which all interests. But the great heads of the money power had vanished. The smaller lights who remained were in a state of physical as well as financial panic. Each imagined himself the next victim. Special policemen guarded all the offices, and every visitor was scrutinized as a possible kid-napper. Hundreds of extra police offiwere thrown into the financial district. All suspicious characters were arrested. Crowds were not per-mitted to assemble and a condition approaching marital law prevailed. The governors of the Stock Exchange finally decided to open the session as usual, reserving the power to suspend business if conditions warranted such procedure. The market opened from two to five points below the close of the previous day. Several failures were an-nounced. Street & Rogers bought about 300,000 shares of stock in the first hour and then stopped. With their support withdrawn the panic increased. There were rumors that Street & Rogers were heavily "long" and on the point of suspending. This the firm emphatically denied, and stated that they could stand a fur-ther drop of 25 points. On a call for margins they promptly furnished

With the panic at its height the governors met to take action. A mo-tion was made to suspend business on the exchange. As a member arose to discuss this proposition, a messenger entered and handed the president a letter. It read as follows:

Mr. M. L. Morton, New York City: Dear Sir: This is to inform you that I am alive and well. I shall be obliged to remain away from the city for a short time, possibly several weeks. You and my relatives and friends need not have the slightest fear for the safe return of myself and the gentlemen who are keep-ing me company. I remain, very truly g me company. I remain, very truly ours, PALMER J. MORTON. May 2.

The letter was in Mr. Morton's handwriting and had been positively identified as genuine by his private secretary and by the oldest clerks in his office. These facts were hurried-ly explained to the president of the board of governors, who adjourned the meeting and sounded the gong for attention on the floor of the ex-change. At that moment pandemo-nium reigned. A score of trading houses had failed, and others were on the point of suspension. Banks were calling loans. Money was quoted at 200 per cent. on call loans, quoted at 200 per cent. on call loans, with gilt-edged stock as security. Sugar was hovering around par, a drop of more than 60 points in less than 48 hours. The nerve-racked brokers expected the announcement of yet more disastrous news, and lis-tened stolidly as the chairman waved his head for mitching the store of the store o his hand for quiet, cleared his voice, and began his reading. No one heard more than the close of the first sen-tence: "I am alive and well." The joyous voice of the gray-bearded old chairman told them that the mes-sage was from Palmer J. Morton. What a shout went up! It was re-echoed by the vast mob which defied the police and swarmed into Broad and Wall streets. The enthusiastic

The panic was ended. Prices moved violently upward. In half an hour the face of the market was changed. In the whirl of speculative joy some stocks passed the high figures which had been reached at the opening on Monday morning. But while the agony of suspense was passed, and it was known that the missing men were safe, the case was yet shrouded in a mystery deep as ever. At the close of the day the market stood on a plane which aver-aged about ten points below the level established before the leaders of finance and speculation had vanished. It was noticed that Street & Rogers were persistent buyers from the mo-ment the first news of the Morton

Probably no town in America affords less op-portunities for secretiveness than Provincetown. There is but one street in the village—a narrow, wind-ing lane which follows the sinuosity they ask, and the things they do, they take the secretiveness that one street in the village and the sinuosity they ask, and the things they do, they take the secretiveness that one of the center of the stage. father-for it certainly is a case of abduction. I wish to place a sum of money in the keeping of the New York Record, a part of it to be offered by it as a public reward for the return of the men who have been kidnapped, and the other portion to be used under your personal direc-tion for the same purpose."

Mr. Chalmers smiled; and reaching into his desk produced the proof of the copy of a headline which was yet wet with the printer's ink.

"In a small way I had anticipated your plan," he said, as he handed

Friday the New York papers contained brief accounts of the disappearance of one L. Sylvester Vincent, a Chicago gentleman, who followed the profession of promoting enterprises and inventions. Mr. Vincent had been stopping at the Broadway Central hotel. He was described as a gentleman of impressive bear ing and rare charms of conversation. Mr. Vincent had registered in the hotel two weeks before the time when his absence was noted. His ho tel bill was due, and repeated efforts to present this little matter to Mr. Vincent's attention disclosed the fact that he had not been in his rooms since Monday night. An examination of his effects revealed ; much frayed evening suit, a small collection of unwashed linen, the prospectus of a plan for a ship ca nal connecting Pittsburg with Lake
