WASHINGTON LETTER.

n our Regular Correspondent.) Washington, Feb. 16, 1903.

President Roosevelt, by the firm stand he has taken in support of adequate anti-trust legislation, has secured the completion by Congress of the anti-trust program outlined in these letters last week. In order to accomplish this end, Mr. Roosevelt has talked very plainly to the leaders of his party. He has stated the varnished facts and in some instances has seriously offended, by what they term his "brutal frankness," the men who have the greatest weight in he republican national conven on. The President states his osition very simply. He says, " have done my duty by the whole cople as I have seen it and I am q ite prepared to stand or fall by their verdict." In this connection no one denies that the Attorney General will find his position materially strengthened in the further prosecution of the unlawful acts of the great corporations known as trusts.

In view of the President's position of the subject of trusts it has become a well recognized fact, in the inner circles of the party, that | plies. all that element which believes there should be no legislative interference with the business interests of the country will work assiduously against Mr. Roosevelt's nomination in 1904. As to the trusts themselves it is a common expression that they have "no soul" and it is equally true that they have no politics. With Mr. Roosevelt as the Republican candidate and a man whom they would describe as "safe" at the head of the democratic ticket, their influence and their extensive campaign contribution would go into the democratic fund. The democrats realize this fact and such men as Arthur P. Gorman, Richard Olney and others, whose standing with the capitalists of the country is unimpeachable, are being earnestly, openly, discussed as probable democratic candidates. Always trimmers, the democrats will have no hesitation in trimming their sails to catch the trust wind in the next election. The friends of the President are discussing the situation very seriously and all believe that the people will have to choose, either at the republican national convention or at the polls, between an honest and fearless advocate of the rights of the people and a servant of the corporate wealth of the country.

are known to be against him in his important position a man who would carry considerable political influence in one of the doubtful To their argument Mr. Roosevelt replies that his brand of politics is that policy which he begood of the people. No one questions Mr. Cortelyou's ability and the President knows that he will administrate this important office in the interests of the people. is in perfect accord with the President on the subject of trusts, with have much to do. Even under the provisions of the Nelson Amendment providing for publicity of corporate statistics the officer in charge will have the widest latitude and with an administrative officer whose sympathies were with the corporations the law might be made wholly useless. No one denies the correctness of this argument, although some fear that when comes to the point of votes in the convention Mr. Roosevelt's fearlessly honest policy will not win.
