On Deck Again.

The editor of the Press has returned from his enforced vacation, caused by illness, and sincerely hopes he may be able to "weather the storm." During our absence our regular force of workmen, under the leadership of our competent foremen, aided by Jno. A. Johnston, who kindly volunteered to assist and nobly stood by us for five weeks, received valuable aid from many personal friends, whose extreme modesty forbids our mentioning names. We cannot find words to express our thanks to those dear friends. "A friend in need is indeed a friend." However, we shall consider it a kindness if any of our friends will kindly send in items of news or personal gossip.

Sinamahoning Items.
