Unexpected Humor.

In my early days I once tried to en-gage as model a big negro who made a living out of chewing glass in sundry the entertainment of barrooms for those gathered there. "I want to paint you," I said when he had taken round the hat after his performance

'What cullah, boss?" he asked suspiciously.

"Why, natural color, of course," I re plied. "I want to paint your face, you know."

"Yah: I'se not taking any, boss," he said firmly. "The cullah I'se got is good enough for this chilg."

I once nearly got hammered for making a colored sketch from life of a very respectable golf caddle in an attitude of ease, subsequently adding a street corner as a background and sending it to an exhibition under the title "A Loafer." The man came round to see me in a violent rage, said he was "a bloomin', respectable, 'igh class golf caddie and no loafer," and if I didn't alter the title of that dashed picture he'd either put his solicitor on to me or jolly well bash me.

Oh, yes; there's a lot of humor about if you only look for it in places where you don't expect to find it. -- Tom Browne in Booklovers' Magazine.

The Hundred and Fifty-first Psalm. Your Bible, if it is of the regulation sort, closes the book of Psalms with the One Hundred and Fiftieth. In the Greek Bible, however, there is another, entitled "A psalm of David after he had slain Gollath." Athanasius praises it very highly in his "Synopsis of the Holy Scriptures." It was versified by Apollinarius Alexandrius, A. D. 360, and a Latin translation of it may be found in the works of Fabricus. The English translation is by Baring-Gould, the well known antiquarian:

the well known antiquarian: PSALM CLI. 1. I was small among my brethren, and, growing up in my father's house. I kept his sheep. 2. My hands made the organ and my fingers shaped the psaltery. 3. And who declared unto my Lord. He, the Lord, he heard all things. 4. He sent his angels and they took me from my father's sheep. He anointed me in mercy from his unction. 5. Great and goodly are my brethren, but with them God was not well pleased. 6. I went to meet the (giant) stranger, and he cursed me by all his idols. 7. But I smote off his head with his own drawn sworn, and I blotted out the re-proach of Israel.

The Bee and His Useful Sting.

It will be a surprise to many to learn that the most important function of the bee's sting is not stinging, says a bee raiser. I have long been convinced that the bees put the finishing touches on their artistic cell work by the dex-terous use of their stings, and during this final finishing stage of the process of honey making the bees inject a minute portion of formic acid into the honey. This is in reality the poison of their sting. This formic acid gives to honey its peculiar flavor and also imparts to it its keeping qualities. The sting is really an exquisitely contrived little trowel with which the bee finishes off and caps the cells when the bee finishes off brimful with honey. While doing this the formic acid passes from the point of the sting, and the beautiful work is finished.

A Bird That's Hard to Kill.

Penguins have an extraordinary amount of vitality and are harder to kill than any ordinary cat. The writer once had occasion to kill a large bird aboard his ship, the Southern Cross, and, making use of the weapon next his hand, he drove a large spike squarely through the creature's head and fin ished the operation by nailing it fast to the deck. That seemed to make the job very complete, and he went below decks for dinner. Coming up an hour later, his astonishment was prodigious on beholding the penguin, head erect, flippers out, waddling about, apparently without thought of the spike, which still remained transfixed in his cranium.

The Ancient Girdle. In Rome a man's investiture of his

it off and let his tunic fall it was patent to all that business was over and that he was free to speak to his friends at his and their leisure. Thus the girdle served a purpose-negative in its character, of course, but a purpose nevertheless. Its sphere of usefulness did not end here. It was figurative of property. When a man or woman put off his or her girdle it was a token of renunciation of some right or privilege.

Among the many canine qualities worthy of imitation a lover of the 'four footed brothers" emphasizes their contented resignation to the cir-cumstances of life. Dogs, he says, do not go about trying to do good to other dogs by urging them to bark in the same key and bite with the same tooth as themselves, nor, which is a merciful provision of nature, do they become bored by the people with whom their lot is cast and want to try a new mas-ter every few months. Whatever the disadvantages of their homes may be, they stand by them and make a cheerful best of it. Over and again a dog puts his heart before his outraged stomach and lets his affections dominate his indigestion rather than desert his master for a better board. Many a master, concludes the dog champion would do well to emulate in points like these the meanest of his "little yellow curs,"

How to Take Coffee. The London Lancet commends the practice of drinking coffee after din-ner, as coffee is an antidote to alcohol. Those whose digestions are disturbed by the use of hot coffee are advised to secure the advantages of its stimulating properties by taking it in the form of jelly. We are assured that a clear coffee jelly after dinner is every bit as good as the hot infusion, while it is free from some of its drawbacks. Cof-fee, unlike alcohol, diminishes organic waste, rouses the muscular energy without the collapse which follows alcoholic imbibition, and gelatin in the form of jelly is cooling, assuages thirst, is soothing and has a tendency to absorb any excessive acidity of the stomach

The Yankees of Portugal.

"Observe them, senor," said a hotel keeper in Lisbon to one of his English guests. "They are the Yankees of Portugal." He indicated a group of Brazilians, consisting of a prosperous sugar plant-er, his wife, who literally blazed with diamonds, and two pretty daughters. "They regard Portugal as their 'old country,' for they broke away from us as the Americans broke away from They make immense fortunes in Brazil and come here to spend them, just as the American millionaires go to England."

How a Chinaman Buys Egg

Many Chinamen frequent Philippine markets and are good patrons, as many have restaurants and need large supplies. A Chinaman usually buys a number of eggs and always carries with him to market a small tin pail full of water to test their usefulne If the egg falls to the bottom of the pail it is good; if it rises to the top it is bad and is refused, only to be carefully wiped off by the vender and put back in stock to catch a customer without the pail.

The widow of Philip I., duke of Bur gundy, for instance, renounced her right of succession by "putting off her girdle on the duke's tomb." Per contra, the princes of Ireland in taking the oath of fealty to King John, laid aside their girdles, their skeans and their caps. "In the ceremony of ex-communication," says a writer, "the bishop cut or tore away from the culprit the girdle that was about him and the newly made husband in Rome took from his wife the maiden girdle of sheep's wool in which she was bound up to the day of her marriage."
