EMPORIUM TO MANILA

Mr. Fred Julian Writes a Series of Interesting Letters to the Press.

LETTER NO. 2.

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP VALETTA, ONE DAY OUT FROM SINGAPORE, IN CHINA SEA, JULY 27th, 1903.

Editor Press:—

In my last letter I tried to give you some idea of life on board ship, and endeavored to partially describe some of the cities visited on my way to Manila. I left off, I think, after a short description of Colombo, Ceylon. After leaving Colombo our ship was headed for Penang, an important shipping city on the Malay Peninsula, Sumatra, governed by the Dutch, and the Malay Peninsula, commonly known as the Straights Settlement, governed by Great Britain. In due time we arrived at Penang, about ten p. m. On board our ship was a cabin steward who had a cold and a little fever. He happened to be the steward who cared for my cabin, as well as others. The health officer came on board, examined the steward and pronouncing his case serious, ordered him taken ashore, and we were pronounced a ship with serious cases of bubonic plague on board, so no one was allowed to come on board or leave for shore. The mail was landed and in about two hours we sailed away for Singapore, arriving at Singapore about thirty-six hours later, about nine in the morning. We were now at our most southern point, being about ninety miles north of the equator. Singapore is on an island and is rather a pretty city. A great many small but very beautiful islands are seen on all sides, covered with tropical trees and shrubs, on all of which are seen beautiful residences, a great many of which are owned by Chinese. Here we do not see so many Tassor Coolies or laborers, but mostly Chinese. After our steamer laid in quarantine for a while, the health officer steamed along side and thoroughly examined the passengers and crew, pronouncing us free of bubonic plague or other diseases. At once the yellow flag was lowered from our mast. It is needless to say we all heaved a grateful sigh of relief. It was not pleasant to be cooped up in a ship in this hot climate, with plague on board and we immediately steamed into the harbor and in about an hour tied up to the wharf. After a short wait we were informed we could go ashore, that the steamer would not leave until ten next morning. We gladly donned our lighter clothing, put on white sun helmets and went ashore. We were now four miles from the business portion of the town. There were two modes of conveyance for reaching the town, one by pony and carriage and rickshaw. I chose the pony, the price being forty cents. Immediately upon landing we were forcibly struck by seeing so many Chinese Coolies; they were everywhere and were a fine looking lot of men—not the small, pany Chinese we are accustomed to see, but large men, well built and active, all scantily clad, in fact nothing on but thin pants, and that not reaching to the knee, and a cloth around the loins. About three hundred of these Coolies at once commenced to take freight out of the ship and carry coal aboard. The mode of loading coal is to have a large wicker basket carried on the bare shoulders of the Coolies, the basket suspended on a bamboo pole, perhaps four inches in diameter, each end resting on the shoulders of a Coolie. These baskets hold from 150 to 175 pounds of coal. With this load the two Coolies trot up a steep plank to and over the side of the ship. In this manner they carried six hundred tons on our ship in seven hours. Fancy any of our laborers doing such work with the sun directly over their heads, the thermometer registering 95° in the shade, yet these Coolies kept continually at work and always chanting some kind of a song. We left the docks and in time came to a standstill before the leading house of the town, The Rofflers, owned by two Chinamen. Here we had an excellent lunch or dinner in courses, costing eighty cents. The dinner consisted of fish, beef, mutton, game birds, vegetables, ice cream and tea or coffee, also an abundance of native fruit, including bananas and oranges. After this repast we bought some post cards to send to our friends, changed some money, we sat down under the cool, shady porches for a while, watching the continued stream of rickshaws and carriages, as well as other vehicles, passing and repassing, almost in every instance the driver or Coolie was a Chinaman. It is wonderful the endurance these Chinamen display, hauling a rickshaw. One took me back to the ship, four miles, in twenty-eight minutes for twenty-five cents. We saw some very elegant turnouts, fine horses and carriages; footmen and coachmen in livery; in almost every carriage one or more Chinamen—sometimes Chinese ladies. After inquiring about this I learned that the wealthy people of the city were mostly Chinese. They own the factories, stores, mines and smelters, and more strange than all, they are loyal British subjects.

Singapore, or the Straights Settlement, is the greatest tin producing district in the world. Here are the greatest mines, tin smelters and tin deposits in the world. Tin here is in vast deposits, almost pure, miles long and miles wide, within four feet of the surface and going down in the earth 200 or more feet. Most of this vast wealth is owned by these Chinese. I learned that recently a large company, from San Francisco, came here and erected a large tin smelting works, costing a million of dollars to erect, intending to smelt the ore here and send the block tin to America for use in our tin plate mills. When the smelter was completed and ready to run the Provincial government informed them that they could not export the block tin unless they paid an export duty of $107, which of course they had to do. Up to this time no one paid or thought of paying export duty, yet Britain believes in non-protection or free trade. This does not look like it.

After resting and feeling quite cool we took a stroll around. We could not but admire the beautiful turnouts, (no matter who occupied the carriages), as well as the beautiful Burgholms, always surrounded by beautiful shade trees, some covered with large crimson flowers or berries, all magnificent and green. But with it all we were constantly reminded that it was Singapore—if nothing else would remind us our nostrils would—for Chinatown was at one end and the Malay towns with native settlements were scattered here and there along the shores, and all were filthy. Opposite one part of the harbor, on a beautiful level spot, the English were playing a game of cricket, although the sun was pouring down. I was informed that the better class of Chinamen also played cricket here. After taking in the sights darkness set in and we took a rickshaw out to the ship, to find the Coolies still

A Gratifying Success.

The first Agricultural Fair and Picnic, of Cameron county, though held within ten days of its conception, may be characterized as remarkably successful. The live stock exhibit, while not particularly significant as to quantity, fully supplied that deficiency in quality and will rank favorably with the majority of county fairs. The specimens of vegetables were most excellent, the variety, size, beauty and quality of fruits were of a high order; the poultry and pets gave evidence of great care and skill in breeding and selecting the needle and fancy work was pronounced by competent judges as superb; and the baby show—well, that was a show by itself. A finer lot of sweet faced, bright eyed, rosy cheeked, and healthier looking babies were never brought together in any town or country. Every one who carried a baby there and had it on exhibition was justly proud of her charge.

The management seem highly encouraged by this first attempt and we hope they may see their way clear to repeat the enterprise another year.

Following is the list of prizes won at the Cameron County Agricultural Fair held at Keystone Park, Aug. 3, 1903:

For the best ewe lamb, W. R. Johnson; best buck sheep, W. R. Johnson; best spring lamb, M. Ledbetter; best cold under one year, M. Ledbetter; best stallion, Frank Kinsler; best barred Plymouth Rock chickens, W. G. Bair; best Belgian hares, Ralph Hout; best pen of rabbits, John Fleming; best six pumpkins, E. C. Davey; best six squashes, Mrs. W. J. Hughes; best bu. beets, A. Dalphy; best bu. potatoes, Hobson & Cousins; best bu. turnips, Frank Kinsler; best bu. corn, N. A. Ostrum; best bu. wheat, R. P. Heilman; best bu. oats, W. L. Thomas; best half bu. tomatoes, Mrs. W. H. Howard; best bu. apples, Mrs. W. J. Hughes; best six heads of cabbage, Hobson & Cousins; best exhibit canned fruits and jellies, Mrs. M. H. Bissel; best exhibit several varieties of apples, Zora D. Lewis; best general display of vegetables, Hobson & Cousins; best cake, Annie Quigley. Needlework, Mrs. E. C. Davey. Quilt, Mrs. E. F. Close; general fancy work, Mrs. Frank Shives; first best baby, Mrs. Gordon Baker; second best baby, Mrs. France; third best baby, Mrs. Ed. Murry.

Young men under 20 years old, ten starters: 1st, Claude Carpenter; 2nd, Fred R. Heilman.

Men over 20 years old, seven starters: None wanting to run, the race was opened to anyone. 1st, Claude Carpenter; 2nd, Will Farrell.

THE JUDGES.

BABIES.—W. H. Howard, Mrs. W. J. Hughes, Mrs. R. P. Heilman.

LIVE STOCK.—W. J. Hughes, E. C. Davey, Wm. McGee.

POULTRY AND PETS.—W. J. Hughes, E. C. Davey, W. R. Johnson.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS.—W. L. Thomas, Mrs. E. H. Gregory, Mrs. Walter Morrison.

FANCY AND NEEDLEWORK.—Mrs. Josiah Howard, Mrs. Harry Lloyd, Mrs. Frank Moon.

GENERAL EXHIBITS.—F. G. Judd, R. P. Heilman.

There were several exhibits in live stock, poultry and pets, vegetable displays and in baking and candy making, that passed extra merit and deserved and received special attention, but on account of there being no competition, or in non-compliance with the conditions incident to receiving a prize, no premium for them could be awarded. The judges appointed to award the prizes for babies had an exceedingly difficult task to perform, for the reason that every baby placed in competition was a really handsome specimen. The difference in them being so very slight that it was almost equal to a game of pitch and toss to decide. Every child there was worthy of a place in the gallery of beauties. It is, indeed, rare that a more handsome collection is found anywhere.

The Farmers' Dinner serving in the pavilion on Saturday was an ideal farmers' dinner and hugely enjoyed by all who partook of the meal. The elegant coffee served was prepared by Mrs. Josiah Howard. How we came to miss that coffee is what mystifies us.

One of the most enjoyable portions of the day's sports was the game of ball between the fats and leans, which resulted in favor of the leans, by a score of 35 to 15. In justice to the fats, will admit that Empire Fitzpatrick sold the game for one of Tom Lysett's best cigars.

Eating Room.

Mrs. L. Easterbrooks has opened in connection with her confectionery and fruit store, a first-class eating room, where oysters in every style will be served; also lunches served at all hours. Oysters by measure. 33-34.

Up-to-date Barber Shop.

W. B. Thompson's barber shop, located in Parsons' Bazaar is the neatest fitted up and furnished establishment to be found outside of larger cities. Always clean and tidy. Mr. Thompson has recently completed in connection with his tonsorial rooms a first-class bath room, where hot and cold baths may be secured at reasonable prices.

Poor Men.

The poor much abused men have really suffered this week and all on account of the cooking school keeping their wives busy learning how to cook for the other man "when our poor souls are starved to death." But then you know the meals will be so much better, which will make up for all that aching void.

Penny Officials.

President A. J. Cassat, of the P. R. R. Co., accompanied by a number of officials, arrived in Emporium Monday morning at 5:30. They remained here until 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, when they departed on P. & E., for the west. Of course nothing is known as to the result of their inspection at this place, yet it is hoped Emporium will be the gainer by their visit.

Good Long Ride.

Edward Viner, one of Emporium & Rich Valley R. R. Co's engineers, left on Tuesday accompanying an engine to Eldorado, Ark., where the stem-winder will enter the services of Summit Lumber Co. Several months ago the Emporium and Rich Valley sold an engine that went within six miles Eldorado. "Teddy" is well supplied with "grub" and hopes to get a good view of the country during his long ride, which will take about three weeks. Messrs. Howard & Co., have recently purchased large engines, hence the sales.

Institute—Night Attractions.

The attention of our citizens is again called to the meritorious character of the musical and literary attractions for the week of Institute, Oct. 19-24. The opportunity to hear talent of this high order is seldom enjoyed outside the large cities. In fact, no county in the State provides a better class of night attractions than Cameron. Our people must have the best—has ever been the controlling principle. Let the patronage be the largest. A perusal of the following press notices will interest:

Monday night—The Dunbars. "The Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A. opened its winter entertainment course with a pleasing concert by the Dunbar Hand Bell Ringers and Male Quartet. The Auditorium was crowded with a very appreciative audience. The company made a great hit and was encored again and again."—St. Louis (Mo.) Chronicle.

Tuesday night—The Labadies. The literary entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Labadie in the Homestead Carnegie Hall, on Friday evening was one of the most enjoyable events of the season. The readings from Shakespeare were especially fine and the appreciation of the audience was a noticeable feature of the evening.—Pittsburg, (Pa.) Press, Dec. 11, 1898.

Wednesday night—Dr. Hill. All classes, ages and conditions were represented as the crowd came from far and near to hear Rev. J. Wesley Hill. Before he had finished he arose from a hill to a mountain. He tickled the fancy, convulsed the risibles, convinced the judgment and played at will upon every chord of sympathy. The audience laughed, wept, applauded and held their breath by turns.—Helena Independent.

Thursday night—Ernest Gamble. Sure in his work, wonderful in his range, conscientious in his effort, pleasingly varied in his numbers, easy in his stage presence and full of virile youth, his appearance here will rank with the most pleasing musical treats that have fallen to our lot.—South-Bend, (Ind.) Times.

Eye Specialist.

Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., October 16th and 17th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

Marriage of Don M. Larrabee and Miss Olive Elizabeth Floore.

The pleasant little village of Summerville, situated seven miles west of Brookville, was the scene of a happy home wedding yesterday at high noon, which united two loving hearts, the contracting parties being DON MARSHALL LARRABEE, of Emporium, to MISS OLIVE ELIZABETH MOORE, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David K. Moore, respected citizens of Summerville. It was a large gathering of relatives and friends of the contracting parties, the out of town guests being received at the depot and driven to the Commercial Hotel, kept by Mr. J. B. VonDevort, where after a brief rest and the usual preparations for great events, the carriages conveyed the party to the ideal home of Mr. and Mrs. Moore, who received them in that open-hearted manner that at once made all things move along merrily. The large and spacious residence, decorated in asters, white chrysanthemums, dahlias, smilax and autumn leaves, with its wide verandas, accommodated the large gathering in social intercourse until the hour of 12 arrived, when Revs. Merrill, of Meadville, Pa., and O. S. Metzler, of Emporium, took their stations in the parlor, the soft notes of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, rendered by Miss Ella Carrier, cousin of the bride, was notice that the bridal party was slowly wending its way to the parlor. The groom accompanied by his best man, Dr. Harry Spaulding Fish, of Waverly, N. Y., a former college chum and member of the same Greek letter fraternity at University of Pennsylvania, entered the parlor, being met by the Flower Girls, Misses Mary Carroll Bentwell and Mary Carrier, followed by the Maid of Honor, Miss Millie Moore, sister of bride. The bride and her maid, Miss Marrion Larrabee, sister of groom, met the groom and his best man immediately in front of the white ribbon fence, facing the clergymen, when Mr. DON M. LARRABEE and MISS OLIVE ELIZABETH MOORE were united for life, according to the rites of the M. E. Church, using the ring service. Congratulations now being in order, the happy and popular young couple were heartily congratulated by the loving relatives and friends. The festivities continued joyously until time for course dinner which was served in elegant style by a popular caterer engaged for the occasion. It was one of the finest spreads that can well be served and in many ways, manifested the love and respect of the father and mother for the pleasant little lady who will grace the home of one of the grandest, noblest and dutiful sons Emporium has ever produced. The wedding was one of the happiest it has ever been our pleasure to attend. The bride, a very elegant and refined young lady, is a graduate of Allegheny College, class of '99, and a graduate of Meadville Conservatory of Music. That she will make a lovable and dutiful wife those who know her best most profusely concede.

The groom is so well known and highly respected by our citizens that anything we could say would add nothing to his laurels. He is the eldest son of our respected citizens, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Larrabee. After graduating from Allegheny College, where he met and fell in love with his bride, he entered the University of Pennsylvania Law Department, and graduated with honors after a three year's course, at the same time filling with credit a responsible position with the New York Life Insurance Company. So well did he serve this great Company that immediately upon his graduation he was offered a still better position in their Philadelphia office, which he accepted, at the same time entering upon the practice of law in Philadelphia. Full of energy, confidence and honesty, our citizens, all of whom take pride in his welfare, have looked upon him battling to climb the ladder of fame with no little pleasure at his success. The Press, especially, is more than delighted to see this young man advancing, for it was first under our tutorage, in part, that he first rubbed up against the business world. We know he has the true principles of manhood, that will count in the long battle with the business cares before him. An exemplary young man, he must and will succeed. The best wishes of the old Press follows him and the elegant lady of his heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Larrabee left on Pittsburg Express at two o'clock amid a shower of rice, and will pass their honeymoon visiting scenes in the South, principally at Richmond, Va., and Old Point Comfort, after which they will return to Philadelphia, where they will reside.

HANDSOME PRESENTS.

The bride was generously remembered by her relatives and friends, the very large number of handsome presents being up in the hundreds in both number and value. The groom's present to his bride was a brooch, set in diamonds and pearls. The presents from the immediate family were principally in gold. Mr. and Mrs. Moore presenting their daughter with $100 in gold; D. M. Moore, a brother, $10 in gold; Dr. D. C. Moore, of Atlantic City, brother, $25 in gold; Mr. M. M. Larrabee, father of groom, $30 in gold certificate; Mrs. M. M. Larrabee, mother of groom, a China tea set of 100 pieces, hand painted; Clifton Larrabee, brother, $15 in gold. We should like to publish the large list of handsome remembrances, but such is not now the practice—and wisely too. The Emporium guests all returned last evening, delighted with the royal manner in which they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Larrabee.

Bachelor Boy's Reflections.

After a man gets used to being managed by a wife he has to get used to being managed by children.

The girl is yet to be born who seems to a man to be an angel of loveliness when she has a cold in her head.

After a man has tried to get something and failed, his next ambition is to try to keep his friend from getting it.

It is very selfish of a girl to wear sharp hats when she has got to say good night to the man who brings her home.—New York Press,

PICTURESQUE SCENERY ROUTE.

The Beautiful Emporium & Rich Valley Railroad Ride—Beautiful Scenery Equalling the Kinzua Viaduct—The Wonderful Engineering Feats and Switch-backs.

No doubt it is a fact that few of our citizens are aware of the grandness and pleasure of a ride over the Emporium & Rich Valley Railroad since the line has been extended up Cook's Run into the vast wilderness of hemlock and hardwood, presenting one of the most beautiful views to be seen in this country. At this time of the year, especially, the foliage is beautiful and beyond the power of man to describe. It has to be seen to be appreciated and after spending a day visiting the scenes of activity along the line of this busy road, watching the ponderous eighty-five ton engine pull a train or loaded cars up a grade averaging from five to nine feet to the hundred, on up the mountain to the top, nine hundred feet from the starting point, then quietly gliding down the mountain side into North Creek Valley, supply the camps with material to feed the hundreds of men employed, hitch onto some cars loaded with bark, silently retract its steps and switch-back its way until the main line is again reached. Without stretching the truth, it is a ride fully as interesting as a ride over the Kinzua route. It is grand and beautiful. Ye editor and wife and Mrs. Wm. Van Meter, of Philadelphia, accompanied Mr. Henry Auchu, President of the road, and Mr. Jos. J. Lingle, Supt., over the line last Friday and certainly did enjoy the day's outing, and appreciate the kindness and courtesy of Messrs. Auchu and Lingle, who took special pains to point out the most interesting scenes.

After partaking of an excellent dinner, prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Reigel at camp No. 21, we returned home tired but highly pleased with the trip.

Emporium Boy Getting to the Front.

It may interest the friends of Mr. Harry F. Jordan, to now that he is now in the employ of a large and old real estate firm, as office manager and confidential clerk, at a salary which will make life pleasant sailing.

Harry has been with the one firm since his arrival in Chicago nearly four years ago, having been repeatedly promoted. These people were very reluctant to part with his services but knowing that he was stepping into a splendid position, gave him a recommendation, of which any young man might be proud.

Will Locate in Emporium.

Dr. H. W. Good, of Philadelphia is in town to-day calling on his friends, and they are many. The Dr. has decided to locate permanently in Emporium, expecting to move here Nov. 1st. Dr. Good is a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, and is an elegant gentleman and with his wife and son, will make a valuable acquisition to our county. Emporium is fortunate in securing the services of Dr. Good, who is in touch with our home physicians, having met in consultation.

The well dressed people in Emporium all buy their clothing at N. Seger's.
