

Early Winter Millinery Modes

HERE are signs of a great change coming over the spirit of the millinery world. Birds, wings, and quills are being extensively used for trimming traveling and morning hats; in fact, there is evidence of a "feathery" winter in front of us. The three hats sketched show exactly the characteristic features of the new winter morning hats. The French sailor on the left is of black and white felt, trimmed with white wings and a chow of black silk ribbon. On the right is one of the glorified tammy toques, which are so nice for traveling and golf; it is mounted, as all tammys should be, on a circular bandeau, cut very deep at the side, where it is trimmed with wings and a twist of ribbon. The third hat is sketched with a view to meeting of the requirements of the sportsman. It is made of stitched cloth or tweed, matching the costume with which it is to be worn, and has two pheasant quills held in place by a small clasp at the left side, and loops of ribbon at the back.

It seems that we are also to have a revival of the high "jam-pot" crowns and sharply-turned-up brims for smart winter headgear. These hats usually have rather high upstanding trimming of ostrich plumes, or else one long feather curling over the turned-up brim. Beavers, too, will have quite a vogue of their own; I have seen one, a very silky beaver of a dark strawberry shade with a glint of dead-leaf brown about it, due to some silky brown hairs being woven into the material. This particular hat was of cornet shape, with the left

Seasonable Fashion Gossip

NEW YORK.—There is no doubt that sloping shoulders are going to be the rage, and that the pelerine effects will be much in evidence. It is a quaint, curious, old-fashion, and many people were doubtful whether it would ever obtain a real hold on public fancy. Our couturiers have tried more than once to bring it in, and have failed, but it appears this season as if it has come to stay.

Pelerine collar effects will be seen in fur on evening dress. Black taffeta, black satin, and black velvet will all be used as pelerines for the early autumn, and there is no doubt that velvet will be the favorite fabric for the winter.

The severe, tailor-made toilettes are adorned with the sweetest little cravat vats, which are rapidly taking the place of the old fancy collars.

Very smart are the short trottense skirts in brown cloth, heavily strapped, with a little basque bodice to correspond, adorned with a dainty little cravat in finely stitched muslin and lace.

Small turquoise blue, scarlet, black and brown motifs appear on a great deal of white or cream lace. These motifs are nothing more nor less than a large chenille or velvet spot, resembling those on our velvets. It is a pretty fashion and the lace so treated forms a dainty finish to an otherwise severe toilette.

The real elegant does not dress very elaborately now in the daytime but in the evening the display of picture hats and wonderful toilettes is extraordinary. Nothing seems too gorgeous for the cafes, where the palest colors are worn with any quan-

CASTLES OF MAD MONARCH.

Cozy Residences Erected by Bavarian King Are Rapidly Falling Into Decay.

The castles of the late mad king of Bavaria, Louis II., are rapidly falling into ruin. They are magnificent productions, but in their outward shape, position and interior decoration all betray the strain of madness in the mind of the builder. Some, like Neuschwanstein and Lindenhof, cost fabulous sums, and to keep them in repair would require more trouble and expense than the Bavarian government can spare.

The architectural value of the castles is regarded as small and the government asks itself why it should go on laying out money on perpetuating for posterity what is of no artistic value and which, after all, is only the craze of a mad monarch.

It is in contemplation to preserve in the national museums some of the best specimens of art, like the gorgeous peacock embroidered with brilliant colors at the foot of the poor king's bed, and which is said to have cost $1,000,000, but the rest of the eccentric furniture and bric-a-brac will be put up at auction and the castle will be left to decay.

LAST OF QUIANT SECT.

Franklin Parsons, an Aged Man, and a Vine-clad Ruin Are All That Remain.

One of the interesting sights to be seen along the Chester (Pa.) pike is the ruin of the old Plummer's meeting house, near Crum Lynne station, on the Pennsylvania railroad.

Half a century ago the edifice was a prominent meeting place for the followers of Frederick Plummer, who exerted a wonderful influence among the countryfolk for miles around.

The tottering old vine-clad wall is the last vestige of this denomination, which began to lose its strength after the death of Plummer, who was the elder pastor of a Free Christian church in Philadelphia.

In the rear of the ruins is an unused cemetery. The only living heir to the ground occupied by the ruins and the cemetery is Franklin Parsons, of Glenolden, who is an agile nonagenarian.

Mr. Parsons was a local minister for many years and was a member of the Plummer meeting house.

Bride Objected to Word 'Obey'

"You must omit the word 'obey' from our marriage contract," whispered Katherine Fisher to Magistrate Fitzpatrick recently when she and Edwin Stanton Ross, both of Brooklyn, were married at Philadelphia. After the marriage certificate had been properly filled out and signed Mrs. Ross produced a document which proved to be a sort of bill of rights, in which Edwin Stanton Ross clearly defines what he concedes to be the personal, inalienable rights of his wife, and in which Katherine Fisher Ross sets forth what she will stand for in the way of prerogatives and privileges claimed by her husband. The paper imposes no obligations upon the wife to obey the husband. It was signed by the bride and groom and fourteen witnesses.

The Best Proof.

A woman in Jeffersonville, Ind., has just married for the fifth time. This, says the Buffalo Express, is a more forceful argument for matrimony than all the preaching in the world could be.

Exports of Canada.

Canada's export trade per capita is just two and a half times as much as ours.

"I'll never forget my feelings when you asked me to marry you." He—"Why, was it such a hard thing to answer?" She—"No, but you were such a soft thing to answer."—Philadelphia Press.

"But, son," said the practical mother, "do you think she will make you a wise, steady, reliable wife?" "Why, mother!" exclaimed Cholly, "the very ideal! She makes the most delicious judge! Weally!"—Baltimore News.

First Soaked Creditor—"I understand the cashier stole so much money from the firm that the thing had to be placed in the hands of a receiver." Second Soaked Creditor—"Yes, and now I hear they've found out that the receiver is as bad as the thief."—Baltimore American.

Mejigger—"Poor fellow! He's terribly cut up because Miss Oidenitch rejected him." Thingumbob—"Rejected him? I thought she'd jump at a proposal." Mejigger—"She was going to, but first she asked him if he would love her when she was old, and he absent-mindedly replied: 'I do.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Kitty—"So you have been to Paris. You must have had a nice time there, you understand the language so perfectly, you know." Bessie—"Why, the fact is, though you'd hardly believe it, they speak such queer French there it's quite impossible to converse with them with any degree of intelligence."—Boston Transcript.

AT HOME IN A HACK.

Good Listener Had No Thrilling Tales to Relate, But He Made a Hit.

President Roosevelt, John Burroughs, John Muir, one or two statesmen and a couple of cowboys were sitting around a campfire in the west swapping anecdotes, relating an exchange. Mr. Muir told of an encounter with a polar bear in the Arctic circle. Mr. Burroughs had had several exciting experiences. One of the statesmen had participated in a whale hunt. Both cowboys had passed through strenuous moments. The president's reminiscences included an encounter with a mountain lion and a conflict with a grizzly. One of the statesmen in the party, a man of much ability, vouchsafed no stories. "Come," said the president, "tell us some of your experiences." "Mr. President and friends," replied the lawmaker, "there are no thrilling natural history chapters in my career. Lions, Indians, bears and wild horses have never come across my path. In fact, I have never been struck by a horse of any description in my life, but," he added, solemnly, "I am simply out of sight in a hack."

More Cause for Divorce.

The general run of allegation in divorce proceedings is commonplace, but sometimes we get a case in which the charges are really amusing. remarked a man who is well known as a member of the bar, "Some time ago," he continued, "a neat little woman called at my office and inquired as to how to go about instituting a suit for divorce against her husband. I gave her the necessary information and she placed the case in my hands. The first charge that she made against her spouse was that 'He refused to kneel down and say his prayers the first night we were married, the brute!'"—Chicago Chronicle.

"I Found It So."

McCormick, Ill., Sept. 28th.—Miss Ethel Bradshaw, of this place, has written a letter which is remarkable for the character of the statements it contains. As her letter will be read with interest, and probably with profit by many women, it has been thought advisable to publish it in part. Among other things Miss Bradshaw says:—

"I trouble with the various unpleasant symptoms which always come with that disease, and I have found a cure. I would strongly advise all who may be suffering with any form of Kidney Complaint to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which I have found to be entirely satisfactory. This remedy is within the reach of all and is all that is recommended to be. I found it so, and I therefore feel it my duty to tell others about it." Dr. Dunaway, of Benton, Ill., uses Dodd's Kidney Pills in his regular practice, and says they are the best medicine for Kidney Troubles. He claims they will cure Diabetes in the last stages.

Nothing New.

"The longer I live," sighed the sage, "and the more I learn, the more firmly am I convinced that I know absolutely nothing!" "I could have told you that 25 years ago," said his wife, "but I knew it would be of no use."—London Tit-Bits.

WORN OUT, DRAGGED OUT,

Are Most Women in Summer. —Pe-ru-na is a Tonic of Efficiency.

JOSEPHINE MORRIS, 236 Carroll St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Pe-ru-na is a fine medicine to take any time of the year, but I have found it especially helpful to withstand the wear and tear of the hot weather. I have taken it now for two summers and feel that it has kept my system free from malaria, and also kept me from having that worn-out, dragged out look which so many women have."

"I therefore have no hesitancy in saying that I think it is the finest tonic in the world."—Josephine Morris.

Pe-ru-na is frequently used as a mitigation of the effects of hot weather. What a bath is to the skin, Pe-ru-na is to the mucous membranes. Bathing keeps the skin healthy, Pe-ru-na makes the mucous membranes clean and healthy. With the skin and mucous membranes in good working order, hot weather can be withstood with very little suffering. Frequent bathing with an occasional use of Pe-ru-na is sure to mitigate the horrors of hot weather. Many ladies

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Pe-ru-na has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I have."

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going."

"A good friend advised me to use Pe-ru-na and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."—Mrs. Tressie Nelson.

have discovered that the depression of hot weather and the rigors they have been in the habit of attributing to malaria, quickly disappear when they use Pe-ru-na. This is why Pe-ru-na is so popular with them. Pe-ru-na provides clean mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes do the most.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
