Penrose Repeats Prediction.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28-When Senator Quay was asked whether he had anything to say concerning the recent interview with Senator Penrose, to which the latter stated that Colonel Quay would undoubtedly be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate at the next Legislature and would undoubtedly be re-elected, he

"I have not seen the interview and know nothing of it. It seems to me that Senator Penrose is the one to be interviewed about it."

This was all that could be had from the senior Senator from Pennsylvania on the question. Senator Penrose merely repeated his former statements that the people of Pennsylvania would not willingly consent to Colonel Qnay's retirement.

Senator Penrose's statement was no surprise to Pennsylvanians here who have been watching the situation. They have all along believed that Senator Quay would be a candidate for reelection. None of those who are numbered among his most intimate friends have ever admitted their belief that the Senator would retire from public life at the close of his present term in the Senate, which ends March 4, 1905.

To Force Hanna.

In a letter to the Pittsburg Times from Washington, Henry Hall says it is understood at the National Capital that Senators Quay and Platt are behind a movement to force Senator Hanna to declare himself on the chairmanship of the National Republican Committee at its meeting in December to select the place and date for holding the National convention next year. This, it is said, not to arise from any ill-feeling toward Senator 'Hanna, but because it is thought best that there ought to be some understanding as to who shall manage the coming campaign. Thus far the Senator, even urged by the President himself, has declined to say whether or not he will remain at the head of the National Committee. It is known, however, that personally he would prefer to retire, but it is considered equally certain that, should the nominees and the party insist upon his holding the chairmanship, he will yield to their wishes. The Senator has cut out all dead timber. had charge of two of the most imparty has ever waged for the Presidency, and should the coming campaign be as hard fought as many new expect it wili be he is certainly the man to direct the fight from the Republican side.

Speeches of Men. You may search through the annals of all time, and the speeches of men will tell the passions of the periods during which they flourished. The speeches of the ancients that have been preserved through the ages present to us our strongest and most important history of the past. They constitute the living sentiment of the lit-erature of fame. In all the mighty tumults of war, the tranquil periods of peace and the convulsive shocks of revolution the orator stands in clear relief as impressive and enduring as the soldier. The great speeches of the great men of antiquity are in the mouth of the schoolboy. He cannot know Greece without Demosthenes. He cannot know Rome without Cicero. Still the stenographers of those centuries were unlike the stenographers of this, and so it will always remain a lasting regret that many of the most brilliant utterances of ancient oratory and wit have never been recorded.—Schoolmaster.

Origin of the Peach.
Nothing is now more universally accepted than the fact that the peach is an improved variety of the almond. The almond has a thin shell ground the stone, which splits open and shows the stone when mature. This outer skin has simply become fleshy in the peach, so that it is all that gives it its specific character. It seems now clear from investigation in the history of ancient Babylon that in their gardens, nearly 4,000 years ago, the peach was cultivated then as it is now

It must have been many years before this that the peach was improved from the almond, and this fact goes to show the great antiquity of the fruit. Possibly gardening in some respects, at least so far as it relates to many of our cultivated fruits, was as far advanced 6,000 or 8,000 or perhaps 10,000 years back as it is today.

Phænicians, many thousands of years ago, as is proved by the records, had in their gardens almonds, apricots, bananas, citrons, figs, grapes, olives, peaches, pomegranates, and even sugar cane was in extensive cultivation. Certainly this shows how far advanced these nations were in garden culture many years ago.

Ashburn Ontario, Testifies to the Good Qualties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

ASHBURNHAM, Ont, April 18, 1903 I think it is only right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamber-lain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duries the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough, The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy.
