EDITORIAL MENTION.

The total number of delegates in the Republican convention at Chicago will be 299,—two of them from the island of Porto Rico.

Queen Liliuokalani is in St. Louis as a guest, but she has to move around with considerable celerity to avoid being classed by the managers as an exhibit.

The Republican party is rich enough in men who are fit to be President not to be obliged to force the nomination for Vice President on a man who does not want it.

Whatever may be said of Colonel Bryan, it cannot be denied that he is a lingual artist. He keeps still some of the time and he always puts in his talk where it will do the most damage.

The Oriental war is comparatively harmless, after all. In the three land battles already reported, there have been fewer men killed on both sides than suffered violent deaths in Chicago last month—266.

There is considerable effervescence at Republican conventions this year, and the turbulence of a gathering is sometimes sufficient to tempt the Democratic press to name it a riot. Of course it is only the vivacity which indicates an interest in the cause.

Those who make pilgrimages to Esopus declare that Judge Parker is a delightful conversationalist. He has learned the art from Madame de Staël who became renowned for her eloquence by keeping still and letting her guests do the talking.

The Democratic National platform will probably declare that the Philippine Islands ought to be free and to be endowed with self-government ultimately. Will Governor Boutwell or Colonel Bryan or Gambel Bradford or General Miles tell us what "Ultimately" means?

There is no truth in the insinuation which has been made that Mr. Ware, the Commissioner of Pensions is anxious to resign his position on account of the extra work and criticisms as a result of the celebrated Executive order number 78, granting pensions to Civil War soldiers over 62 years of age. It has long been known that the Commissioner never wanted the position; that he consented to take it only to oblige the President who threatened to "draft" him if he declined to "volunteer."

That Beautiful Gloss comes from the varnish in Devoe's Varnish Floor Paint; costs 5 cents more a quart though. Sold by Murray & Coppersmith.

Left-Handedness.

Is it to appear after all that the ancient were right in attaching an ill meaning to everything that is on the left? The word "sinister" which is so suggestive of what is inauspicious, dark and malign, means literally "left handed."

Is there any scientific justification for this derived meaning of "sinister"? It would seem so if we may accept the results of an investigation by Dr. Austin Flint, an authority of high distinction. According to Dr. Flint the normal man is right-handed. In other words, left-handedness is an abnormal or defective condition. This appears from the fact that among the criminal and morally defective class, the proportion of left handed people is considerably larger than is the proportion among people generally.

Why this is so it is not so easy to explain. It is a known fact that the left lobe of the brain, which controls the movements of the right side of the body, is slightly larger than the right lobe, which controls the movements of the left side. But why should nature show a preference for the left lobe of the brain? Perhaps the position of the heart, which lies slightly to the left of the medial line of the body, may have something to do with the matter.

But whatever may be the explanation of right-handedness the fact remains that left-handedness is an abnormal condition, and that left-handedness in children should be watched and counteracted as far as possible.

The Nation's Right-Arm.

Scientists are telling us—what indeed we knew before—that the normal man is right handed. Man would indeed be badly off if he were without his left hand; but, having both a right and left hand, it is upon the former that he will depend for strong, aggressive and effective action. The function of the left hand is chiefly to guard and conserve. Its greatest positive skill lies in playing a secondary and subordinate part to the right hand.

The nation, like the individual, has its right and left arms. These are respectively the Republican and Democratic parties. The Democratic party is the nation's left arm. Its underlying principles are negative and conservative. Its emphasis is upon the limitations rather than upon the powers of the government. It is in its native element when it is proclaiming what ought not to be done.

The Democratic party is the nation's left arm. Its underlying principles are negative and conservative. Its emphasis is upon the limitations rather than upon the powers of the government. It is in its native element when it is proclaiming what ought not to be done.

This theory has never satisfied the nation. According to another way of thinking, the end of government is not merely to take the baiter from off the individual and to tell him to make himself at home in all outdoors. Government has something positive to do in the way of creating conditions and in opening up opportunities, and in general concerning itself in a positive and constructive way with pursuit of human progress.

The "Mother of Trusts."

[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

Our Democratic friends, hunting for an issue, have declared in most positive terms that "protection is the mother of trusts."

Of course, if you smash tariff schedules and aim at the trusts, you bring down at the same time every independent concern. In other words, you produce general business ruin, and the trusts, being the stronger, would be the first to pull out from under the wreck.

That is not the way to do it. Judge Gayner, of the Supreme Court of New York, apparently does not agree with the favorite Democratic prescription for the cure of the evil. He says that "freight favoritism is the mother of trusts. The first trust was built up wholly by discrimination on the part of the railroads."

He refers to Standard Oil, and he has history to back his contention. Listen to him: "When the oil of the man or set of men, for instance, and speaking approximately, was carried to the market by the railroads for one dollar a barrel when all competitors had to pay two dollars, the latter were ruined and had to quit. They could dig wells and refine oil just as well as their rivals, but when such rivals got a reduction or rebate in freight rates which enabled them to ruinously undersell all others, that was the end of rivalry."

He goes on to remark that it is said that rebates by railroads are no longer paid in cash, and then tells a story of the Boston and Albany line, which was once shown to have billed cars for a certain trust of having a capacity of twenty-four thousand pounds, whereas the capacity was fifty thousand. This story he tells as an instance of how discrimination may be managed.

But what is Judge Gayner's remedy? He holds that the law is too slow; that the Interstate Commerce Commission is too unwieldy, and that complaints brought before it meet with all sorts of delays. So he would at one stroke settle the whole question. He would have the general freight agent of every railroad company appointed by the government.

We can follow and agree with Judge Gayner through his assertion that freight discriminations were really the breeder of original trusts. There is no doubt of that. But it will be a little difficult for most thinking men to agree with him that the government has a right or should acquire the right to control the general freight agency. If the Judge would advocate the national acquirement of all public carriers, that would be quite legitimate, at least for nationalization is a standard topic of the day. But to depend upon a general agent appointed by the government for private corporations would be to confess that there is no law that amounts to anything, and that is the very last thing which a judge of high standing should do. He knows better.

And what would be gained by such an appointment, even if it could be made? Who is going to guarantee the strict integrity of the agents? He is one individual—and he would be under very grave temptations if the road were inclined to be crooked—whereas there are several members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, with ample law back of them to make searches and lay bare any underhand work. After the Commission, and supplementing its work, comes the Attorney General of the United States.

The Judge complains of the slowness of the law, but he should remember that it has only been recently that the Supreme Court has interpreted existing law so that it can be brought to bear upon combinations organized to restrain trade. The way is now clear, and all that is necessary is the willing mind. He have had the Northern Securities case, and it may be anticipated that all other corporations that are engaged in conspiracy will be brought to toe the mark. The law properly applied against discriminating railroads will be far more potent for good than the appointment by the government of freight agents, for who is going to guarantee that every freight agent thus appointed will be immaculate?

Will Judge Gayner? We prefer the law.

Letter to Geo. Metzger Jr.

Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: Father and son; one is glad the other is sad. Devoe; lead-and-oil.

Mr. Charles Hollenbeck, Fair Haven, N. Y., painted his house Devoe three years ago; his father, same time, painted his house lead-and-oil.

The father's house is all chalked-off; the son's is as good as new. They'll paint the same way next time.

Yours truly F. W. DEVOE & Co.

P. S. Murry and Coppersmith sell our paint.

Church Notes.

The finest city and village Churches are painted with the Longman & Martinez Paints, and we want every Church to accept our donation whenever they paint.

S & G make 14, therefore when you want only eight of L & M; and mix six gallons of pure Linseed Oil with it, making actual cost of paint about $1.20 per gallon.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for Linseed Oil (worth 60 cents) which you do when you buy other paints in a can with a paint label on it.

Many houses are well painted with four gallons of L & M. and three gallons of Linseed Oil mixed therewith. Wears and covers like gold.

These Celebrated Paints are sold by Harry S. Lloyd.

Quick Arrest.

J. A. Gullede, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing 24 tumors. After doctors and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him.

The man who thinks he is drifting at pleasure is really driven by passion.

When you want a pleasant physic try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by Jno. E. Smith Sterling Run.

God is never afraid of putting a life time of training into an hour's service.

Ladies and Children.

Who can not stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups and cathartic pills are especially fond of Little Early Risers. All persons who find it necessary to take a liver medicine should try these easy pills, and compare the agreeably pleasant and strengthening effect with the nauseating and weakening conditions following the use of other remedies.

It is no use praying against sin while you are sinning against prayer.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough."

Many people can criticize, the number who can create is much smaller.

Made Young Again.

"One of Dr. King's New Life Pills each night for two weeks has put me in my teens' again" writes D. H. Turner of Democetown, Pa. They're the best in the world for Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Purely vegetable. Never gripe. Only 25c at L. Taggart's drug store.

Some men never appreciate home until they are miles away from it.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried. In fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain she was formerly troubled with."

A Cure for Piles.

"I had a bad case of piles, says G. F. Carter, of Atlanta, Ga., and consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. I purchased a box and was entirely cured. It is splendid for piles, giving relief instantly, and I heartily recommend it to all sufferers."

Rather than become a spinster the average girl will marry the wrong man.

Protruding Piles Cured.

Five years ago I was troubled with protruding piles. They were very painful, and for six weeks I was unable to replace them. I used one 25c bottle of San-Cura Ointment, which relieved the pain and cured me entirely. I have had no return of them in five years.

Proof of a woman's temper is the arrival of an unexpected guest to dinner.

Some girls would rather flirt than eat, and some do both simultaneously.

Mr. Joseph Pomerville, of Stillwater, Minn., after having spent over $2,000 with the best doctors for stomach trouble, without relief, was advised by his druggist, Mr. Alex. Richard, to try a box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. He did so, and is a well man to-day.

Nothing worries some men like the expected troubles that never happen.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News. Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea and so severe were the pains that we called a physician who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household.
