The "Business Engineer."

Not long ago the magazine called System spoke of the "business engineer." That is, it implied that the man who is to conduct a business requires a technical training and stands on as high an intellectual plane as the man who constructs a bridge.

By a curious and most significant coincidence the University of Brussels at just about the same time announced that it would bestow the title of "business engineer" upon the graduates of its newly established department of commercial studies.

Commercial education, which is as technical as engineering education, has raised its head almost simultaneously in the three great commercial countries of the world. In Germany there are three new "commercial universities," one at Frankfurt, one at Leipzig, and one at Cologne, while a fourth is about to open at Berlin.

In England the University of Manchester has added commercial courses to their curricula and the University of Birmingham, at the suggestion of Joseph Chamberlain, has erected a "faculty of commerce." In the United States commercial high schools are numerous and departments of commerce have been introduced into many colleges and universities, notably those of Dartmouth, Michigan, Chicago and Wisconsin.

Under such circumstances is there not something to be said for the suggestion made by Prof. Waxweiler, of the University of Brussels, that as the nineteenth century made manufacturing processes scientific so the twentieth century will do commercial processes the same service?

It is Prof. Waxweiler's conviction that during the twentieth century the process of distributing manufactured goods through the markets of the world will become so complicated a profession, demanding so intimate an acquaintance with labor and time-saving devices, with methods of transportation, and with the habits and customs of the people in various countries, that in the first place rigid preliminary training will be required, and that in the second place the business man will be set off in a professional, technical class by himself, just as much as the civil engineer, the architect, the chemist, or the physician.

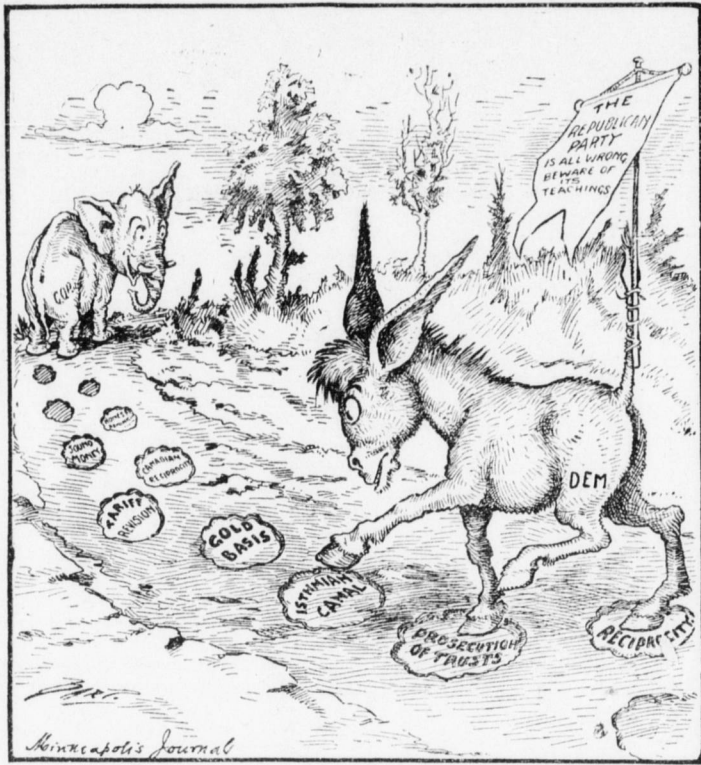

Crowding and Crime.

The Brooklyn Eagle thinks it ought to be worth the while of our sociologists to investigate the effect of tenement life on the psychology of city populations. We have had the results in vital and sanitary statistics, in prison reports, in educational pamphlets, and all that, but it is evident that the pressure of dense populations, the ceaseless all night glare, the racket of streets, the poor food, the want of play room, the lack of even minutes of solitude and self-communion, by the year together, are producing an evil effect on the young. How else are we to construe those attacks on people who go about the town minding their own business, or who attempt to walk or row or ride in city limits? We can regard them only as a form of social insanity. This phenomenon is not peculiar to New York. Melbourne, even, as its "Larrigans," a turbulent and dangerous element, and London has recently been confronted with its horde of "hoodlums," who smash windows, destroy park shrubbery, frighten women, assault old men and children and take life in a manner quite dissonant from all that we have been led to respect of English courage and love of a fair fight.

The Absent Chaperon.

Chaperons have no serious part to play in an American engagement, says the London Telegraph. The chaperon has never been taken seriously by Americans. It is in only a few of the great eastern cities that the idea obtains at all, and then only among a very limited class. Published columns on etiquette advise the chaperon on every occasion, but in reality she is as much a matter of tradition in most American communities as the obedient child or the stern father. Like them, she is known in the novel and drama only. When she does hold a place in the community it is as the friend of both wooed and wooer, and the official smoother of differences.

THE CONSISTENT DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

CHANGES PARTISAN FAITH.

Chicago Chronicle, Prominent Democratic Organ, Will Hereafter Advocate Republicanism.

The Chicago Chronicle, since its founding a democratic newspaper, continually friendly to sound money, announces in its issue of July 12 that hereafter it will advocate the principles and candidates of the republican party. The editorial in which it makes this declaration follows:

THE CHRONICLE REPUBLICAN. When 1,000 men, representing the democracy of the United States, most of them chosen with much difficulty as representatives of what is called conservative democracy, permit a mere demagogue to bully them into wrongdoing it must be that a demagogue is greater than the party.

Two-thirds of the delegates to the national democratic convention voted for Judge Parker on the first ballot—the man whom Mr. Bryan had traduced for three months, the man whose friends Mr. Bryan had vilified, the man who Mr. Bryan had said should not be nominated and could not be elected.

When a cowardly committee representing these delegates brought in a platform which was silent on the money question not a voice was raised in expostulation or protest. While hundreds were ready to shout for Parker, not one appeared in defense of elementary democracy.

Mr. Bryan not only graciously permits the democratic party to name a candidate whom he has done his best to defeat in advance, but he places him on a platform with a hole in it big enough to drop the entire party through.

It is bad enough to have Mr. Bryan dominating radical democratic conventions. When Mr. Bryan is able to silence a "conservative" democratic convention the situation becomes intolerable. A mixture of William J. Bryanism and David B. Hillism is insupportable.

The Chronicle is not in sympathy with Mr. Bryan's ideas. For eight years it has refused to believe that Mr. Bryan's ideas were acceptable to the real democrats of the country. The result at St. Louis appears to end the discussion. He and Hill are in control. He and Hill have named the ticket and made the platform.

A timid eastern democrat, who fondly imagined that he could be nominated as an unknown, has been placed on the ticket with an octogenarian free silverite from West Virginia and supplied with a platform which amounts to an endorsement of the platforms of Chicago and Kansas City. The populist west and the reactionary south are again in alliance, with a new ticket, it is true, but with no change in principle and purpose. The ticket bears the stamp of populism. There is not a plank in the platform which was not modified by populism.

The democratic party is attached to Bryanism. It is subservient to Bryan. It has been persuaded against its natural inclinations to nominate an unknown candidate, whom Bryan has antagonized, but it has permitted Bryan to do the rest. The democratic party is Bryan, and there is no reason to suppose that its triumph under the leadership of a man who voted twice for Bryan and free silver, and boasted of it, would be anything else than a triumph for Bryan.

Disagreeing fundamentally with this leader and his party in most things, and agreeing with the republican party in the essentials of its creed, the Chronicle to-day takes leave of the democratic party and allies itself with the republicans.

As at present constituted and led, the democratic party is a menace to the peace, the prosperity and the integrity of the United States and its people. It has discarded democratic principles and taken up with the radicalism of populists and socialists and the obstructionism and the cowardice of wreckers and demagogues. No good can come out of it. With a blank for a candidate and a blank for a platform, it will become more and more a contemptible instrumentality for the exploitation of William J. Bryan and the school of demagogues following in his train.

The Chronicle believes that the republican party, while not free of fault by any means, offers the American people at this time the only prospect of efficient, intelligent and honest government that is anywhere to be seen, and, so believing, it will do what it can to advance its principles and to strengthen its candidates.

The campaign itself will not injure business at all. Whatever injury there is will be due solely to the superstition of business men that presidential campaigns and poor trade necessarily go together.—Chicago Record-Herald.

One swallow does not make a summer, neither does it cut much figure in a national campaign, even though it be a presidential candidate.—Pueblo Chieftain.

The declaration against trusts in the democratic platform will hardly surprise their promoters. The business is one which does not depend on complimentary notices.—Cleveland Leader.

Bryan was in the army and would have helped storm a hill if it had come within his line of duty. His direct courage in dealing with political sneaks and shufflers has been proved.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE PUBLIC IS SATISFIED.

Whatever the Roosevelt Administration Has Undertaken It Has Carried Through.

The speech of John Sharp Williams, temporary chairman of the democratic national convention at St. Louis, indicates that the time is at hand when the administration at Washington is to be "arraigned," "indicted" and "viewed with alarm" because of its most noteworthy acts in the last four years.

What are those acts? asks the Chicago Inter Ocean.

The administration interfered in the hard coal strike. At the time the people of Chicago, New York and a hundred other cities were on the verge of mob law. Yet no sooner did President Roosevelt interfere than there was tranquillity throughout the nation. The administration got there, and the results were what the people wanted.

The administration proceeded against the Northern Securities company. It established beyond doubt or question the fact that in this country no individual, no corporation is above the law. Again the administration got there, and the result was what the people wanted.

The administration grappled with the problem of half a century on the isthmus of Panama. Despite tempestuous assaults from the democrats and anti-imperialists, it overcame all difficulties and solved the problem. To-day there is nothing more in doubt on the isthmus. The administration got there, and the result is what the American people have wanted for 50 years.

The administration set out, in the face of hot opposition, to pacify the Philippines. To-day there is peace in the islands. Again the administration got there, and the result is what the people have wanted.

The administration went out to show that every American citizen, everywhere, is to have the protection of the flag. It determined to rescue Ion Perdicaris, an American citizen, from the brigands of Morocco. Perdicaris is free, and there is peace and respect for the American citizen in Morocco. The administration got there, and the result is what American citizens wanted.

Carping as to ways and means is all that is left in these cases to the opponents of the administration. The results speak for themselves. The people will speak for them, too.

Declaration of Nullification.

The South Carolina democratic state convention deserves credit at least for being outspoken on the race question. One of its planks, after declaring willingness to make generous provision for the education of colored children and expressing sympathy with the negroes' efforts to acquire property, enjoy liberty and elevate their race, nevertheless says it is "indispensable to the permanency of peace in the state and essential to the welfare of our people, white and colored alike, that in matters political the will of the white people shall be supreme, and we avow our purpose to maintain white supremacy." That is, no matter what the constitution and laws of the United States say, the colored citizen shall not exercise the suffrage to which those provisions entitle him. South Carolina has previously shown a disposition to nullify federal authority, but it is not on record that she succeeded.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

Bourke Cockran's comment on the democratic platform: "They have strangled the party to save the organization," is epigrammatic, and might well serve for the epitaph which will be needed later on.—N. Y. Tribune.

What is a door-nail, my son? Why it is a thing that is quite as dead, not to say damned, as is the average democratic issue.—Judge.

Vice Presidential Candidate Davis, of West Virginia, was born November 16, 1823. If elected he will be inaugurated in his eighty-third year. Mr. Davis is a democratic free silver populist, but on account of his great age it would be interesting to know whom Judge Parker has in mind for secretary of state in the event of his election. Here is where David B. Hill might stand pretty close to the presidential succession.—Chicago Chronicle.

HE WAS WILLING TO PAY.

But Was a Little Too Foremost in Ordering the Help Around.

A lively looking porter stood on the rear of a car in the Pennsylvania depot. A busy and choleric-looking old man clambered up the steps. He stopped on the platform, puffed a moment, re-arranged the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and then turned to the young man in uniform and said: "Peter!"

"Yes, sir?"

"I am going to St. Louis. I want to be well taken care of and can pay for it. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir; I hope—"

"Never mind what you hope. You listen to what I say. Keep the train boys away from me. Dust me off whenever I want you to. Give me an extra blanket, and if any fellow has the berth above me, slide him over into another one. I want you to—"

"Don't talk too much, young man. Here's two dollars. Now I want to get the good of it. Not a word, sir."

The train was starting. The porter swung off to the platform.

"All right, boss," he shouted. "I'm powerful sorry you wouldn't let me talk, but I ain't going out on that train."

Wrong House.

An attendant at Mount Vernon not long since found a lady weeping most bitterly and audibly with her handkerchief at her eyes. He stepped up to her and said:

"Are you in any trouble, madam?"

"No, sir," she sobbed.

"I saw you weeping."

"Ah!" said she, "how can one help weeping at the grave of the Father of His Country?"

"Oh! Indeed, madam," said he, "that's it! The tomb is over yonder. This is the ice house."—Indianapolis Journal.

Of Wide Interest.

Breed, Wis., July 18—Special—Chas. Y. Peterson, Justice of the Peace for Oconto Co., has delivered a judgment that is of interest to the whole United States. Put briefly, that judgment is, "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Kidney medicine on the market today."

And Mr. Peterson gives his reason for this judgment. He says: "Last winter I had an aching pain in my back which troubled me very much. In the morning I could hardly straighten my back. I did not know what it was but an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking one box I can only say they have done more for me than expected as I feel as well now as ever I did before."

Pain in the back is one of the first symptoms of Kidney disease. If not cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills it may develop into Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism or some of the other deadly forms of Kidney Disease.

Signs of the Times.

"Now is the time to lay in your coal!" is the peculiar way a sign in the window of a Brooklyn store reads. Less ambiguous is the placard of a tailor on the same block, who has a genius for advertising. It says:

"Pants, 50 cents a leg; if you buy two legs, the seat thrown in."—N. Y. Times.

THE WEAK SPOT.

A weak, aching back tells of sick kidneys. It aches when you work. It aches when you try to rest. It throbs in changeable weather. Urinary troubles add to your misery. No rest, no comfort, until the kidneys are well. Cure them with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. M. Dauscher, of 25 Water St., Bradford, Pa., says: "I had an almost continuous pain in the small of the back. My ankles, feet, hands and almost my whole body were bloated. I was languid and the kidney secretions were profuse. Physicians told me I had diabetes in its worst form, and I feared I would never recover. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in 1896, and I have been well ever since."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Dauscher will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers, price 50 cents per box.
