PARKER'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE.

Aside from the mere fact of its having been delivered, so marking a formal step in the campaign, there is little of striking significance in Judge Parker's speech of acceptance. It is so lacking in positive significance that the New York Sun, which of late has been disposed to favor Judge Parker's election, now announces its intention to support Roosevelt and Fairbanks. We do not however agree with the Sun in characterizing Judge Parker's speech as cowardly, neither do we regard it as the utterance of a political trimmer. This speech does not belie the impression which we had formed of Judge Parker as being a man of courage and of intelligent and honest conviction. His speech reveals him as a man eminently judicial, conservative, deliberate. A jurist, trained to look carefully into the merits of both sides of a case, it is foreign to his habit of mind to ignore the qualifications and exceptions which must attend the statement of general principles. The man of this habit of mind must, however, always expect to be charged with weakness and cowardice.

In temperament and in underlying principle Judge Parker is a typical conservative Democrat. Ever since the adoption of the Constitution there have been strict and loose constructionists. Judge Parker in his speech presents himself as a fair and honest representative of the strict construction type. The New York Sun is disgusted because he did not explicitly repudiate and attack Bryanism, but it is only fair to recognize that the whole spirit and mode of thought of the speech is the very antithesis of Bryanism.

While it is plain that Judge Parker is in fundamental principle a strict constructionist and while in a general way he would like to see the government administered in accordance with that principle, he finds himself confronted with a difficult and embarrassing task when he undertakes to arraign the Republican policies and administration and particularly when he comes to outline a specific Democratic program. It is very easy to indulge in generalities regarding the constitutional restraints of the various departments of government and to talk about executive usurpation, but we have yet to hear from Judge Parker or from any other reliable Democratic source, a specific enumeration of the acts of usurpation alleged to have been committed by President Roosevelt or by his predecessor. When such a bill of specifications shall be submitted, we shall have ready one as long against the administration of President Cleveland.

Judge Parker's views upon the tariff are not likely to awaken much practical hope or apprehension as the case may be. He believes in the tariff and in tariff reform, but holds out no hope that it would be or could be reformed during his administration, should he be elected.

With regard to the trusts he finds it difficult to apply his fundamental Democratic principles. In common with the Democratic platform he regards the trusts as dangerous combinations, but he seems to think the chief remedy against them must lie in modifying the tariff laws which it is alleged foster them. Such a remedy will not alarm the trusts after what he says about the prospect for tariff changes. He also has faith in the efficacy of the enforcement of the existing laws against monopoly, and holds the executive responsible for failure to enforce these laws. It is the executive and not the judicial branch of the government that is at fault in the matter, he says. Yet the country will not forget that it was President Roosevelt and Attorney-General Knox who instituted the proceedings in the Northern Securities case while it was the three Democratic justices on the Supreme Court who decided adversely to the administration. The truth of the matter is that the trusts have less to fear from Parker's attitude than they have from Roosevelt's. The fact that Judge Parker deprecates the enactment of farther anti-monopoly legislation shows this.

Judge Parker's views regarding our duty in the Philippines do not warrant him in condemning the course pursued there by the Republican administration. He recognizes that we have a duty there, and that we should be recreant to it should we at this stage abandon the Islands to themselves. He recognizes that the inhabitants are not yet fit for self-government, but emphasizes the importance of so preparing them for self-government that we may grant them their independence at the earliest possible date. Any one who has read Governor Taft's testimony knows that the control of the Philippines has been exercised by our country for no other purpose than to develop in the Filipinos a capacity for self-government. The Philippine Islands are not being exploited for the benefit of Americans. But to fit the Filipinos for self-government is not the work of a day or a year, and it is too soon now to say whether their future destiny shall be one of absolute independence or not.

It does not appear from Judge Parker's speech that there is any real reason for a change of administration.

Free trade looks to the moment, and never to the morrow. It does not produce interest, but lives on the principle.

It is a fact that the greatest reductions in prices of manufactured goods have been in those products in which the tariff has been the highest and the longest.

Free trade brings the machine, protection the machinist. Given the men we can not lack the machines; having the art we shall not want for the article. Possessing the producer, we shall not lack the product.

The present attitude of the Democratic party toward the Philippines recalls the fact that a few years ago they talked about Hawaii in very much the same way.

The Boston anti-imperialists may imagine that after reading the Democratic platform, the Filipinos are ready for independence, forgetting that independence may be too dearly bought.

"What is the constitution, as between friends?" once asked a Tammany Congressman of the late Speaker Reed. "What is the use of a declaration on money, as between Democrats?" asked the recent Democratic convention. Surely, what is the use? The country knows that the Democratic party, as a party, is still against the gold standard.

BRYAN'S VIEW OF NOMINATION.

"I have nothing to take back, I have nothing to withdraw of the things that I have said against the methods pursued to advance his candidacy. It was a plain and deliberate attempt to deceive the party. The New York platform was vague and purposely so, because the advocates of Judge Parker were trying to secure votes from among the people who would have opposed his views had they known them. * * * The nomination was secured, therefore, by crooked and indefensible methods."—William Jennings Bryan, in The Commoner, July 13, 1904.

How a Doctor Was Cured.

"For two years I was troubled with lumbago, or pain across my kidneys, the pain shooting down my thigh (especially on taking cold the pain would be terrible), a continual grinding, aching pain. One bottle of Thompson's Barosma, Backache, Live and Kidney Cure gave me immediate relief. I am now taking Barosma with great benefit as it reduces all inflammation of the stomach, liver and bladder, the great organs that regulate the whole system and purify the blood." Dr. A. S. Hubbard, 94 Brook St., Titusville, Pa. For sale by R. C. Dodson.
