Mr. Howard's Platform.

Whenever the Democratic party in county, state or nation does succeed in uniting upon a statement of its principles and policies, such a statement is usually found to be made up for the most part of negations. The Democratic party does not believe in protection, in the gold standard, in administrative initiative, or in an alert state In the present national campaign the Democratic utterances may be all boiled down to the following sentence: "We do not beleive in Theodore Roosevelt." Upon this lame negative cry the Democrats profess to rely for victory.

In contrast to this negative attitude stands the positive and progressive attitude of Republicanism, an attitude which finds expression in Mr. Josiah Howard's platform. Every word and every note in his platform and in his star stands for something positive. The Independent raises the objection that, with the exception of the protective tariff, every one of Mr. Howard's points might be incorporated into a statement of Democratic principles. Regarding the Home, we admit gladly that good Democrats are as loyal to it as are good Republicans; neither do we claim a monopoly of interest in churches and religion for the Republicans. We believe, too, that the Democratic party in Cameron county is loyal to our public school system, and we know some good Democrats who are not averse to good roads or good farming and who take an interest occasionally in a pany has been for twenty years engame of ball. Nevertheless, we believe that all these institutions and forms of life are more beholden men like Judge Parker who say:to the positive, constructive genius of Republicanism than to the negative, critical genius of Democracy. Though a Democrat might heartily accept a platform like Mr. Howard's when once it is stated, it is really hard to conceive of a Democrat, especially a candidate, taking the iniative in formulating such a platform. The public has greater confidence in the man who states positively and independently his ideas and convictions than it has in the man who merely says, "I do not hold to anything different from that.'

The Independent has changed its base on the Filipino question. At the late Democratic county convention the Independent editor convention the Independent editor was posing as the champion of the poor enslaved islanders. It is now referring to the Philippines as now referring to the Philippines as now referring to the Philippines as now reterring to the Prinippines as "yellow possessions," implying ard Oil.—Philadelphia Press. that this country should keep its skirts clear of such filth. It is a good thing that Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, has returned from his stumping tour in Vermont and Maine, and again the helm. He will proceed to stop the leak in the monthly cotton and other crop reports, whereby some favored per-the rest of the world, and he is contemplating the construction of wireless telegraph stations along the Atlantic coast so that sea captains can tell him what the weather is on the vasty deep. He reached Washington on Thursday, elated over the returns from Vermont, where he says the people were really alive to the importance of the campaign. He thinks they saw danger to prosperity if the Democrats should win. And he says the vote indicates the sentiment of all New England. The #3-No advertisements will be accepted at less than the price for fifteen words.

How About the Standard Oil.

"The common law as developed," said Judge Parker in his speech of acceptance, "affords a complete legal remedy against monopoly.

Then why have not the courts of New York dealt with the Standard Oil? It is a monopoly. It does business in New Yerk. Its headquarters are there, "26 Broadway" is a pretty familiar address to Mc-Carren and others running Judge Parker's New York campaign. The tariff does not help the Standard Oil. It gets on help from duties. It has been at work for twenty years. Its operations are free from every check on monopoly known to the common law.

Who? Because the common department, as the case may be. law has no weapon against it.

The Standard Oil is a New Jersey corporation. It makes no reports. It publishes no returns of earnings or business, weekly, monthly or yearly. Its charter gives no share holder power to look into its ac-Its operations are secret under the kindly aid New Jersey law offers by changing the common law to suit such corporations.

State can reach it because it is a New Jersey corporation. New Jersey law leaves it free of secrut-It can by organizing subsidiny. iary corporations keep out of inter-state commerce. Under Judge Parker's deciaion on the Drug Trust it can by system of agents maintain prices and crush rivals in defiance of the various anti-trust laws, yet passed by Congress and the States.

The common law is as antiquated in dealing with this corporate octopus as a cross-bow against an ironclad. Chartered by one State, controlled by no other, able to evade all State laws because it is in interstate commerce and able, under the "common law," by the trick of subsidiary corporations to avoid Federal statues on interstate commerce, the Standard Oil Comtrenched and safe from all scruand all control, as long as the public was fool enough to listen to

"The common law as developed affords a complete legal remedy against monopoly.'

Only one thing the Standard Oil fears: A Federal law requiring Federal reports of all its operations. The statute creating the Department of Commerce and Labor gave this power. It was opposed by the Standard Oil. Its head brazenly telegraphed to Sena-tors to forbid its passage. It was enacted because President Roosevelt's speeches and his policy brought the passage of the act over the head of the Standard Oil.

Under it, as reports are made and the operations of this trust are laid bare, the Standard Oil faces something more than the "common law" Judge Parker invokes. This trust is safe enough with him as President, and on every side its support for him appears. Its head
