The Stage Mirror.

Whenever a looking glass appears in a scene in a play above a fireplace, in a sideboard or a cabinet one is almost sure to hear somebody ask his or her neighbor why the glass has been smear-ed with whiting or soap or something that dulls its surface completely. All sorts of reasons are hazarded or suggested. Sometimes it is stated that it is done for luck, at others that they did not intend to leave it dirty. The real explanation is, however, a simple one. The glass is dirtied to prevent the illusion of the scene being destroyed, as it certainly would be if the audience saw in it the reflection of themselves or, worse still, the reflec-tion of the people in the wings carrying on the business of the stage .- Chicago Tribune.

Dare-Devil Woodsmen.

Edward Powers and William Needham, lumbermen employed at one of the Goodyear camps in the Sinnamahoning district, won a wager the other day in a thrilling manner. They are members of a crew whose business it is to skid logs to the top of a three mile chute, which winds and twists its way down among the ravines and out over black chasm, until it ends on the edge of a creek where the logs are being banked for spring freshets. The chute is made of half logs, hollowed in the shape of deep troughs, then laid end to end the whole three miles into the valley below. A descent of nearly 500 feet is made in that distance, and the logs on the ice-covered slides, gain a out on the home stretch at the "landing."

A knot of men at the camp shanty one night last week declared that none of the log rollers was brave enough to ride a log down the slide. A "purse" was raised in the banter, it consisting of a barrel of flour and a ham for the widow of one of the woodsmen who had died of typhoid fever last summer. Powers and Needham, both single men, accepted the banter, and the following day, selecting a smooth hemlock log started on their toboggan journey They lay flat on the stick, using their legs to keep the crafs "right side up" and the slide was made without mishap. The entire distance was made in a little over four minutes and the widow for whom they won the flour and meat got it on Christmas day.-Ex.

How is it Here?

The school board in one of the towns of Schuylkill county has got itself into trouble through neglect to enforce the provisions of the compulsory education act. Meeting with difficulties-prob-ably no greater than experienced in most places-in the work of preventing truancy, the board evidently abandoned all efforts in that direction. It now hears from the State Department of Public Instruction that unless the law is complied with and attendance of children in school compelled the State appropriation will be withheld. This would mean a serious loss which no district could well afford. Such an admonition is enough to stir up any school board and make it do its full frightful momentum before they run duty, and most likely it will have that effect in this instance. The State appropriation to the schools is an admirable thing in more ways than one. It enables the State authority to insist upon the enforcement of proper and wholesome laws made in the interest of public education, where those laws would be otherwise a dead letter in MCCLURE'S FOR JANUARY. Read McClure's for January ! There's one New Year's resolution that will prove a pleasure as well as a profit. For besides the manifold entertainment in its nine stories, it contains related stimulated in and here the stories its stories. contains articles timely and pleasure. "Lynch" contains articles timely and pleasure. "Lynch-ing in the South," by Ray Stannard Baker, will do more than many an act of Congress to break down the barracks of sectional misunderstand-ing on the negro problem. In "Tuberculosis, the Real Race Suicide," Samuel Hopkins Adams states, no less authoritatively than startling, the horrors of "The Great White Plague." He shows that modern science could alleviate and prevent the dread disease. the dread disease.

Heart-beats of our great nation, grave and gay-are galvanized into life by the cunning hands of several story-writers in this number. The last chapters of Stewart Edward White's serial, "The Rawhide," contain not only the sweeping out-door flavor of Arizona (shown, too, in Maxfield Parrish's wonderful color picture). Another Arizona story, in amusing contrast to this, is Henry Wallace Philips' yarn, "A Touch of Nat-ure," in which our old cowboy friend, Red Saunders, adventures strangely with a kilted Saunders, adventures strangely with a kilted Scotchman. To a little Kansas town we are carried by the stinging, powerful pen of Wila Cather, to witness "The Sculptor's Funeral." Charles Fleming Embrec tells what a mockery was "The Liberty oi Florentino," a poor little Cuban who was run out of his little Indiana school because they called him "nigger," and who wasn't allowed to work at his trade because chapters of Stewart Edward White's serial, "The who wasn't allowed to work at his trade because they called him "scab." N. M. W. Woodrow sketches sharply the proud little woman who was "Old Man Johnson's Succesor" in a Western was Out Man Johnson's Snecesor' in a Western mining town. More humor, typically American, follows in "Billy's Orgy," Grace S. Richmond's tale of the pleasant martyrdom of a bachelor uncle, and in "The Schism at St. Hilda's," in which Mark Lee Luther describes an amazing olarised discusters of chains with the state of the schism at St.

elerical dispute in a fashionable parish. An extraordinary revelation of a Japanese sacrifice, "For Love of Country," is made by John Dwight-a truestory. Seumas MacManus tells a rollicking Irish fairy-tale of the three princes who captured "The Steed of Bells." More articles are by Frederic Irland, who writes of the Reporter who Became President," (James Madison.) and C. E. Williams, who gives charmingly and truthfully, "A Glimpse of Beav-ers at Work." Graceful poems by A. E. Hous-man and Florence Wilkinson add a finishing touch to this number- one full of interest to any one that takes an interest in his nation and bi fellowmen.

THE ARENA.

The January "Arena" contains the opening paper of a series of eight contributions which promise to prove the most important addition to promise to prove the most important addition to the campaign against corruption and political debauchery that has appeared, and we should not be surprised if this series marked the inaugu-aration of a tidal wave of political morality in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania as irresistible as that incommended by Thomas Next in "Harpers" that inaugurated by Thomas Nast in "Harpers Weekly" and carried forward by the New York Weekly" and carried forward by the New York "Times," which culminated in the overthrow of the Tweed Ring and the downfall and disgrace of men long supposed to be invincible. These papers are entitled "Forty Years in the Wilder-ness or The Masters and Patients and the State ness; or, The Masters and Rulers of The Free, men' of Pennsylvania," and they have been pre-pared by one of the most prominent and univer-sally respected citizens of Fhiladelphio,-a man who as a civic leader and a incorruptible foe of all phases of dishonesty, graft and indirection has for years waged a releatless war against the men who were dragging down the fair name of one of our greatest cormonwealths and virtually immediate for a second imperilling free institutions through shameful corruption. These papers by Mr. Blankenburg are unique in many ways and of special value beuse they come from the pen of a resident of Philadelphia, a man thoroughly responsible for all that he says, and a cultured thinker whose business standing and social position are of the highest. The opening contribution, which is il-lustrated with admirable portraits of Thaddeus Stevens, Simon Cameron, J. Donald Cameron

Stevens, Simon Cameron, J. Donald Cameron, Col. A. K. McClure and others, deals with "The Birth of Corruption" in Pennsylvania. Another paper even more startling in charac-ter and of the same general purport appears in this issue under the head of "The Reign of Boodle and the Rape of the Ballot in St. Louis." It has been prepared for "The Arena" by the promin-ent lawyer and author, the Hon. Lee Meriwether. Another paper in the January "Arena" which merits the encoded iteration of intelligent runners merits the careful attention of intelligent voters and students of political economy is the discus-sion of "The Postal Savings-Banks of Great Bri-ain and How the Government of England Fost-ers Savings Among the Poor," which constitutes the second paper in "The Arena's" series of in the second point in the needs of the order of the ternational contributions devoted to the progress of advance democratic movements throughout the world.
