HERD OF DEER.

Thirteen Fine Specimens Are Wintering on the Mountains Near Trout Run.

A herd of thirteen deer are wintering on the mountains near Trout Run, and for the past two weeks many people have made trips to that place for the purpose of seeing the fleet footed animals in their wild state, says the Wellsboro Gazette. These deer have remained in the same vicinity for about two weeks, and can be easily seen from the public road that leads off to the north of the road to Liberty, about three and one-half miles from Trout Run. They are generally be found near Cotton Tail gap. They are all large, and are exceptionally fine specimens of the monarchs of the forest. They are always found in a herd, and it is not difficult to get within one hundred to one hundred and fifty yards of them. It is remarkable how tame these deer have grown. They almost seem to be fully aware of the fact that people are not allowed to disturb them, and are frightened but little at the sight of a sleigh or vehicle. On account of the depth of the snow, which is over two feet, the animals are difficult to see unless by one who is experienced in finding them. When standing in the snow they often appear to be tree stumps, for when they are aware of the approach of some one they remain perfectly still like statues, and do not move until you make a noise or frighten them.

Sunday School Tour Party.

The State Sabbath School Tour Party held services in the First Presbyterian Church, Monday evening and all day Tuesday, giving delight and profit to the large numbers in attendance. Especially inspiring were the songs of the male quartette, composed of Messrs. Cork, Van Dyke, Landes, and Sawie. The central theme of the several addresses was evangelism as applied to Sunday School Work and highly valuable and convincing were the points elucidated in the various addresses. A spirit of happy fraternity characterized all the sessions. The pastors of the different churches participating by prayers, suggestions and questions in the deliberations. The consensus of sentiment as expressed was that the early coming to Christ of the child was of the utmost moment and that efforts to this end should be untiringly made.

A number of persons from out of town were in attendance and the interest awakened will no doubt be of enduring value.

Mrs. Roosevelt The Standard Bearer.

It is significant to your readers for some comment to be made on the matter of the gown worn by the President's wife at the inaugural celebration, since this highly honorable and honored lady has so distinguished herself, both in loyal patriotism, good taste and as standard bearer of American fashion.

One of the leading New York papers, on Sunday last, in speaking of this great inaugural occasion, came out in glowing terms of Mrs. Roosevelt's personality as the first lady in our justly prided Union. Her reception gown was the product of the William Strange silk mills, of Paterson, N. J., and a pattern somewhat like it, was seen by Mrs. Roosevelt at St. Louis Fair, which gave her dreams of a gown to be worn on this occasion, and when the fact was established that she must be the principle lady in the inauguration of the President, she wrote to this company and the pattern, so exquisite in every detail, was made expressly for her. It is of the most delicate fabric and tints of azure blue—that clear tint which holds its own beneath an artificial light and looks as lovely as though seen by light of day, a lustrous, clear blue satin which takes on a sheer of silver in certain lights and folds, and this added to the wonderful effect of great discs of softly glittering gold which were strewn over the satin with swallows almost innumerable dotting the gown. Feathers of rare variety were so affixed to harmonize with the delicate tint and trimmings as to render a magnificent poetic as well as artistic effect.

In this selection the President's wife chose our National color, which proves her patriotism, she chose American goods and American modists to make it up, which proves that she is wholly American, making a standard for all American women to follow. What is good enough for our Presidents wife is surely good enough for any lady in the land. Mrs. Roosevelt is a woman of good sound judgment, good taste and is of true American blood and is perfectly fitted for the position she so admirably occupies.

Class Work.

At their regular review Tuesday evening the ladies of Gladioli Hive, L. O. T. M., initiated a large class of candidates, 24 having been secured as a result of special work during February; the beautiful ritualistic work was admirably put on with full guard team and was very impressive, this order is rapidly coming to the front among the fraternal: our local hive now having a membership of 150. And expects to add still more in the near future the following ladies of Floral Hive, of Port Allegany, came over for the special work and were royally entertained while here: Mesdames Harriet, Elizabeth, and Ada Moses, Caden, Healey, Gallagher, Layman, Besse, Maynard, Barnaby, Backus, White, Dolway, St. Clair, Wrights, Vansickles, Holmes, Lambafer, McGovern, Ballingsby and Miss Gerwick, and Mrs. LeBare, of Lock Haven.

The Editorial "We" Explained.

An exchange makes the following explanation: Somebody who wants to explain what the editorial "we" signifies, says its meaning varies to suit the circumstances. For instance when you read that "we expect our wife home to day" we refer to the editor and chief, when it's "we are a little late with our work" it includes the whole office even the devil and towel, if "we are having a boom," the town is meant; "we received over 700,000 emigrants last year," it embraces the nation, but "we have hog cholera in our midst" only refers to the illness of the man who takes the paper two or three years then ordered it stopped without paying for it.

The Best Yet.

"Our Opera managers have been fortunate in securing for to-morrow evening, the 10th, the great play of heart interest "Dora Thorne." Competent critics who have seen it, pronounce it the best dramatized novel of the past few years. It will be presented with the original cast and scenery, and will no doubt duplicate its success in other cities here.

Warning.

All persons are hereby forbidden from trespassing upon the property of this Company without a permit from this office, or the Superintendent at the works.

The Knox Entertainment.

"The Story of the Scottish Reformation" given at the opera house last Thursday and Friday nights under the auspices of the First Presbyterian Church—was both instructive and entertaining and well deserved the generous patronage it received. The entertainment was a happy blending of lecture recital, stereopticon views and acted drama and so skillfully were these several features alternated as to hold the attention of the audience for two and one half hours and eventuate in a climax that was grand and beautiful. The various characters were in capable hands. Each gave evidence of an intelligent grasp of his part, imparting to it a meaning that was full of interest. Mr. McCaslin was very impressive and convincing as the Great Reformer while Miss Ritchie brought to the character of the unfortunate Queen the grace and beauty, the self possession and deep devotion that her difficult part demanded. The costumes were costly and beautiful, the various groupings, bathed in the rich radiance of the calcium lights, presenting pictures of loveliness not soon forgotten. The stereopticon views, chiefly of a historical character were distinct and satisfying while the descriptions and explanations by Mrs. Monroe were beautiful in diction and eloquent and forcible in delivery. The vocal solos by Misses Walker and Hogan and Mr. Walker were pleasingly sung, while the choruses were exceedingly well rendered.

Miss Abbie Metzger presided at the piano with characteristic ability. In the professional she had the artistic assistance of Miss Walker on the violin. So far from engendering sectarian bitterness, the effect of the entertainment has been to promote amity and good will between the various denominations and lead to a better understanding of the differences that honestly divide them.

The Gas Stove.

The use of gas stoves, without chimneys, is productive of unhealthy conditions within any room subjected to their influences. The New York Tribune says that they deplete the oxygen in all cases to an injurious degree. Having no chimney, for the most part, they turn the product of combustion into the air of the room. At best this is carbon dioxide, a natural gas, which taking the place of the oxygen, deprives the atmosphere of its life giving power. Perhaps through imperfect combustion carbon monoxide is produced, which is a powerfully active poison. The lack of a chimney means the lack of any circulation in a close room. An open fireplace, or even a coal stove, causes a circulation of air. Even with doors and windows shut, a large amount of heated air is drawn up the flue and fresh air is pulled in through cracks. A heater which requires combustion in a room with no vent for the vitiated air is an enemy to breath, should be avoided whenever possible, and should no more be left lighted at night in a sleeping room than should the charcoal brazier, which is a favorite French instrument of suicide. The ordinary gas heater menaces life by another danger. It is commonly connected to the gas pipe by a more or less leaky tube, not infrequently, either by the strain upon the connections or by actually blowing flames, filling houses with poisonous unburned gas. Citizens need to be greatly on their guard against the dangers in the trail of the gas pipe.

Western Party.

Last Tuesday morning a party consisting of L. K. Huntington, B. A. Slocum, Allie Hamilton and Wayne Hamilton, left for Oregon to engage in lumbering. Mr. Huntington expects to return in six weeks. We wish these gentlemen great success.

Bowling Match.

A contest between Coxy's Army and The Invincibles, last Monday night resulted in a victory for the Invincibles. The contest was a short one, two games instead of three being played. This was on account of George Walker, Jr., fearing the night air would be bad for the boys, so started them home early. Coxy's Army say it was because of their possibility of winning, but, no doubt, the parties of war differ.

A young fellow out in Nebraska pleads for a divorce on the grounds that the minister hypnotized him. This is an entirely new one—blame your troubles on the preacher.

In a competition sparrow hunt in Amwell township, near Washington, Pa., between two bands of men, ten to each band, which ended last week, 29,099 birds were killed. The birds were a pest in the district. The hunters were given a big banquet.

Pietro Bartoli, an Italian laborer was found frozen to death near DuBois, last week in a shanty, where he lived alone. He was an employe of W. C. Baxter, the contractor, who is lining the tunnels of the Buffalo and Susquehanna, and had been missing for the past two weeks.

"Dora Thorne," coming to Emporium next Friday, March 10, is something our theatre patrons have been waiting for, a chance to see in play form the interesting novel which every reader knows so well. The play has been carefully constructed, and follows the trials and tribulations of "Dora" to a happy ending.

Last Monday we received from Mrs. Egbert T. Osborn, a copy of The Sentinel Record, of Hot Springs, Ark., also a copy of the "400" a magazine containing many beautiful views of Hot Springs. Mr. Osborn is the assistant manager of the Hotel Estman, at Hot Springs during the winter and manager of the famous inn at Charlevoix, Michigan during the summer.

Easter occurs on the first Sunday following the full moon, which happens on or after March 21. This year full moon occurs March 20 and the next full moon after March 21 occurs April 20. The Sunday following is April 23 and therefore Easter, and is within two days as late as it can happen.

A Coudersport woman, who purchased a safety razor for her husband as a Christmas gift compels him to put ten cents in a tin bank every time he shaves himself. She is now looking for a machine with which he can cut his hair that he rakes off may be larger. The poor man is wondering what will be her next move.

A teacher in one of our schools asked one of her little girls to tell what she knew about the backbone. The child slid to her feet trembling and embarrassed. She rubbed her little hands up and down her hips and began, "The backbone is a bone that runs down your back and holds your ribs together, and keeps you from being legs clear to the neck."

A few days ago a Lancaster county farmer tested some snow to learn whether the present supply would be melted by rain or the sun. The result answered, by sun. He suspended a large snow ball and held a lighted candle under it, a hole was melted through the ball without any drop pings. Had there been any drops of water he said it would have been taken away by rain, as there was not the snow will be lead off by the sun.

Try this: Take the number of your living brothers; double this amount; add to it three; multiply the result by five; add to it the number of living sisters multiply by ten add number of deaths of brothers and sisters, subtract 150 from the result. The right hand figure will be the number of deaths; the middle figure will be the number of living sisters; the left hand figure will show number of living brothers. Can you explain it?

The story of "Dora Thorne" is too familiar a one to permit of much comment, but as a play it is provoking widespread interest, and much surprise is manifest that so successful a novel in the day and time of bookplays has not found its way before the footlights longere this. Brimful of exciting and interesting situations and affording such numerous opportunities for excellent acting "Dora Thorne" is indeed replete with all the essentials to make a most delightful play. "Dora Thorne" will be seen at the opera house next Friday evening, March 10.

The Observer.

It was the privilege of the Observer to attend a number of the sessions of the Institute held under the direction of the State Sunday School Association in the Presbyterian Church this week. The Observer must confess that he went with some misgivings because it was understood that the speakers would lay great stress upon the subject of evangelistic work in the Sunday schools. "Evangelistic" is in itself an excellent word, one which should always savor of glad tidings, but unfortunately in the minds of many it is associated with the emotional excesses and lurid appeals which in times past have attended revivals. The expression, "evangelistic work in the Sunday schools," seemed, moreover, to imply that the children of the Sunday school most of whom are baptized members of the Church, are to be regarded as children of the world and of the devil until such time as they may be brought to pass through a certain crisis termed conversion. Great therefore was the relief and satisfaction of the Observer when he discovered that the Institute had in mind the inauguration of no such crusade as this upon the children. The whole spirit of the Institute was in keeping with the assumption that the children are the lambs of Christ's flock to be carefully fed and nurtured in a Christian atmosphere. If this kind of work be "evangelistic," we cannot have too much of it.

One of the speakers made an appeal to the parents to surround the children with good literature in the homes. He rightly contended that the only effective way to prevent children from reading bad literature is to cultivate in them a taste for what is good. In this connection, the Observer desires to utter an emphatic protest against the admission to our homes of the comic supplements of the Sunday editions of many of our newspapers. These grotesque pictures of tramps, foxy grandpas, and precocious, tricky youngsters, not only deprave the aesthetic taste of the young boys who gloat over them, making them incapable of appreciating pictures of real artistic merit; but they also instill in those who look at them the spirit of disrespect and contempt. These pictures of the yellow journals invariably represent somebody as playing a trick upon somebody else, or as outwitting somebody else. The type of humor to which they appeal is that which laughs at the ignominious plight of another or that which finds delight in the grotesque and ugly.

One expects the New York World and American and the Philadelphia North American to publish such disgusting supplements, but it has always been a mystery to the Observer why such a clean and reliable and dignified paper as the Philadelphia Press should nevertheless publish such an offensive and harmful section of its Sunday edition.

Birthday Dancing Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Housler gave a dancing party in the reading room, Tuesday evening in honor of their son Frank's thirteenth birthday. Forty-eight little folk were in attendance and tripped lightly to piano music rendered by Mrs. Geo. Metzger, Jr., until 11 o'clock p. m. The grand march was led by Master Frank Housler and Miss Kate Metzger. Refreshments were served during intermission. It was a delightful evening for the youngsters and the grown people who were spectators let their thoughts wonder back to a few (?) years ago.

Ragtime Party.

A ragtime party was given by the Ragtime Club, last Saturday night, in the Reading Room. The young ladies were all dressed in real rag time clothes, and all danced to ragtime music. A most enjoyable time was had. Out of town guests were: Mr. Cyril Youtz and Mr. Gregory Mohr, of Renovo; Miss Nettie Grosbeck, of Port Allegany and Miss Etta Fochtman, of St. Marys.

NORRIS.

Mrs. H. M. Norris died at the Kane Summit Hospital Tuesday morning at 4:30 o'clock. Deceased had been ill since the first of the year, suffering from tubercular troubles. She came to Kane from Marlinton, West Virginia, about a month ago, to see if the climate would not prove beneficial. Everything that medical skill could devise was done, but without avail. Nellie Sweeney was born at Olean, N. Y., and came to Kane when quite young, where she resided the greater part of her life. She was a favorite with all with whom she was acquainted; of a genial disposition, and was ever ready to help her friends. She was married to Mr. H. M. Norris in September, 1902. Mr. and Mrs. Norris moved to Shinglehouse soon after they were married, from which place they went to Marlinton, West Virginia.

Mrs. Norris is survived by a husband, an infant son, aged about eight months, four brothers and two sisters—Kane Republican.

A Divorce to Ten Marriages.

During 1904, twenty-three libels in divorce were issued in Clinton county. During the same period there were 230 marriage licences issued. This shows that for every ten marriages performed there was one application for divorce. This needs no further comment. If divorces continue to increase as they have for the last few years, marriage will soon be a farce. Right-minded people from all parts of the country are becoming aroused and are demanding some decisive legislation to stop the terrible menace to the home.
