WORTH REMEMBERING.

There are three entirely different kinds of ingredients used in making the three different varieties of baking powders on the market, viz: (1) Mineral-Acid or Alum, (2) Bone-Acid or Phosphate, and (3) Cream of Tartar made from grapes. It is important, from the standpoint of health, to know something about these ingredients, and which kind is used in your baking powder.

(1) Mineral-Acid, or Alum, is made from a kind of clay. This is mixed with diluted oil of vitriol and from solution a product is obtained which is alum. Alum is cheap; costs about two cents a pound, and baking powder made with this Mineral-Acid sells from 10 to 25c. a pound.

(2) Bone-Acid, or Phosphate, is the basis of phosphate baking powders and the process is fully described in the patents issued to a large manufacturer of a phosphate powder. The U. S. Patent Office Report gives a full and exact description, but the following extract is enough:

"Burned bones, after being ground, are put into freshly diluted oil of vitriol and with continual stirring and in the following proportion,"

From this Bone-Acid phosphate baking powders are made; such powders sell from 20 to 30 cents a pound.

(3) Cream of Tartar exists in all ripe grapes, and flows with the juice from the press in the manufacture of wine. After the wine is drawn off the tartar is scraped from the cask, boiled with water, and crystals of Cream of Tartar, white and very pure, separate and are collected. It differs in no respect from the form in which it originally existed in the grape. Cream of Tartar, then, while the most expensive, is the only ingredient that should be used in a baking powder to act upon the soda, as its wholesomeness is beyond question. Cream of Tartar baking powders sell at about 40 to 50 cents a pound.

Such are the facts, and every one, careful of the health of the family, should remember this rule:-Baking powders selling from 10 to 25 cents a pound are made of Mineral-Acids; those selling from 20 to 30 cents of Bone-Acid; and those from 40 to 50 cents of Cream of Tartar made from

Resurrection of a Forlorn Hope

By WILLIS SCOTT

CLARISSA was a poor, lone little seamstress. Her pale, thin cheeks, and stooping shoulders and needlepricked fingers told of long hours spent over the sewing table. It was so hard to make even a living. Clarissa was all alone in the world.

One bright ray of hope there was amidst all the gloom. It had flashed into the mind of Clarissa nearly a year before at Easter time, and ever since then it had rested on her like a cheery beacon light of hope. She had chanced one day to pass the fancy goods counter in one of the big department stores, and her quick, hungry eyes had taken in at a glance the dainty display of needlework, and she had noted amongst them the many Easter novelties which ingenuity and deft fingers had devised. She had not time to lin-She must hurry back to her task of plain sewing, for idle moments meant less bread, and perhaps a shortage of rent money and an obdurate landlady. But she had in that brief pause before that counter caught a vision of a new She had never done anything but plain sewing, but there had always been the hungering in her soul for the pretty and dainty trifles. She wanted to do something besides that monotonous plain stitching and button-holing. but she never seemed to get the time from the daily tasks. Now, however, a new thought had come to her, almost a year had been cruelly "her inspiration," she called it, and crushed. The bright vision of some day and night since that last Easter vision at the fancy goods counter it shad been uppermost in her mind.
She would make something for the next Easter. The boldness of the thought made her tremble. But the idea would not down, and though she over and over again told herself that it was foolish, she planned how she would work it out. But what could

In fear and trembling she sought out the manager of the fancy goods de-partment and half hesitatingly opened the package before him. He seemed interested, and told her she might leave them.

And Clarissa waited, and as oppor tunity offered she stole by the fancy goods department and looked to see if her precious Easter eggs were still there. One day one was missing and the next day another was gone day after day went by and still the eggs rested in their place in the show case. Her heart grew heavier and heavier. The two that were sold would not begin to pay her for the materials she had put into the eggs, and if they were not sold what would she do? It was the day before Easter, and as she went by the counter in the morning after delivering the work which she had sat up most of the night to finish, she saw that all the eggs, save the two which had been sold, were still reposing on the coun-

Her heart, which had been growing heavier each day as she saw her eggs unsold, now sank to the lowest depths and the bright hope which had stirred her heart for weeks seemed dead within her.

It was a dreary Easter for the little seamstress. The weather, as though in sympathy with her drooping spirits and tearful eyes, was dark and chill. The sun had hid his face and the rain pelted at the panes of her one small window in harmony with the impatient and rebellious thoughts which beat within her heart.
