The Observer.

A year ago through the kindness of a member of the Keystone Park Association a piano was placed in the pavilion for the benefit of parties and individuals making use of the park. The Observer thought at the time the piano was placed there that some provision should be made for its protection against the weather and possible depredators, but it appears that during the late long winter the piano was left without anyother shelter than the roof of the open structure and with no guard whatever against mischievous persons. The inevitable consequences have occurred as any one may see for himself by a visit to the pavilion. The instrument was not a valuable one to begin with, but for the purposes for which it was intended it answered quite as well as a high priced new piano would have done, and the loss of it means the loss of all that any piano could stand for in the social enjoy-ments which center in the park. It is not lightly to be assumed that another instrument will be placed there every time one has been destroyed. The practical loss of the present instrument is therefore sufficietnly serious to call for a word or two of comment.

The exposure of the piano to every mischance of weather and to every chance of vandalism was either intentional or it was not. If it was not intentional, it was evidence of great negligence and indifference on the part of the park management. In this case those who had so little concern for the piano as to leave it all winter long utterly exposed have no reason to complain if certain other parties proceeded to demonstrate in a practical way that their concern for the piano was as slight as that shown by the park management. If the exposure of the piano was intentional it could only have been for the purpose of testing the sense of honor and responsibility of every young man and boy, who might chance to visit the pavilion. Assuming that such was the purpose, the Observer is ready to concede that it was well meant, but he is nevertheless persuad. ed that it was a wrong and needless experiment to make. It was wrong, for the reason that no one has a moral right to throw in the way of others a special opportunity for wrong doing even though it be for the purpose of finding out how they will behave under the test. Life is too full of unavoidable temptations for any one to be justified in deliberately adding to the number. The spirit of the Lord's Prayer will make us careful not to lead Prayer will make us careful not to lead others into temptation. The experiment was needless, for reason that the actual result could have been foretold with almost mathematical certainty. Given certain conditions, certain results are quite likely to follow. The experiment of dropping a lighted match into a keg of gun-powder has been tried often enough inadvertently to render any deliberate experiments of that kind superfluous. Moreover, if the piano experiment was to have any value, it was necessary that every one should receive the impression that the park management was anxious to preserve and protect the instrument and was asking the constraint of all towards that and the constraint of all towards the constraint of all towards that and the constraint of all towards that the park management was anxious to preserve and protect the instrument and was asking the constraint of all the constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraint of all the constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints are all the constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all the constraints. The constraints are all the constraints and the constraints are all th others into temptation. The experiinstrument and was asking the co-operation of all towards that end. On the face of the situation, however, it seemed that the management cared of grace, agility and muscle. seemed that the management cared nothing what became of the piano, and consequently those who injured it did not of vaiue to anybody. The experiment, therefore, defeated its own purpose. If one wishes others to cooperate with him towards any worthy end, he must himself show by every outward and visible sign that he himself is heartily interested in that end.

If the park management desires the full co-operation of the public in protecting the park and all the property

thereof from injury, it must itself snow

by every outward and visible sigh that it has that end in view, and not put out such an outward and visible sign

as would lead many to suppose that it does not care what becomes of the park property. The Observer has the fullest confidence in the good and earnest intentions of the park management. The interest which it represents is the interest of the entire community, and the entire community, old and young, should feel a responsibility for, and take a pride in, the improvement and safe-keeping of the park. But the park management must take the lead in this, and no doubt means to do so The Observer, however, respectfully ventures to say that leaving a piano in a situation that amounts to an invitation to young depredators to get in their work, is not the best way to en-list public spirit and co-operation in the interest of the park.

Senator Depew on Church Going. Senator Depew agrees with Bishop Burgess that week-end house parties and Sunday gulf have been largely instrumental in reducing church attend-

"Society persons," said the Senator to-day, "who are invited to week-end parties go for rest and recreation. If they are church-going people they think, undoubtedly, that they have done their duty by attending church in the city during the winter. In the mornings, sometimes, the elderly people go to church, but the young folks do not. They are no longer brought up to believe that it is their duty to do so. The fault lies largely with their parents. I was brougut up to go to church twice each Sunday to Sunday School and to prayer meeting Friday evening. I was made to go. The habit has stayed with me. No matter where I am, I make it a point to go to church on Sunday morning. I feel uncomfortable all the week if I do not."—The Public

Epworth League Anniversary.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal Church was pleasantly and profitably observed last Sunday evening. A large audience being in attendance. The program was in charge of Prof. E. S. Ling, who in accepting the office of President for another year, made a felicitious address. Edith DeArmit read a scripture lesson. Pastor O. S. Metzler installed the officers and offered the prayer of consecration. The following is the list of officers: President, E. S. Ling; First Vice President, Mrs. S. L. Stoddard; Second Vice President, Miss Nettie Moore; Third Vice President, Miss Sedith Heilman; Fourth Vice President, Mrs. Ella McSwan; Secretary, Miss Susie Wheaton; Treasurer, Mr. Fred Heilman; Organist, Miss Ella Hacket. Two new members were received. A soprano solo by Miss Ella Hacket. Two new members were received and Nettle Moore were features of interest. Mr. Ericsson presided at the organ. Pawnee Bill's Circus.

For the first time the people of this city and vicinity will be given an opportunity to see a score of real Bedouins when Pawnee Bill's Historic Wild West and Great Far East comes here on Wednesday, May 31.

These tent dwellees of the Sahara desert are the only ones in this country, are not only interesting, but distinguished people; so strong in their love for their sand stormed and torrid zones, that until Pawnee Bill suc ceeded in influencing those who are with him, the Bedouin could not be influenced to leave the desert to come to an unknown land.

afternoon, the Rev. O. S. Metzler, conducting the services. Since her widowhood, which occurred more than twenty years ago, she has made her home with the family of her daughter, Mrs. LaBell and by them was loved and cared for Of late, however, she had been living in Rochester, and the presumption is, was on her way to Emporium when stricken in the Black Rock station of the Grand Trunk railroad, Buffalo, and being unattended by any friends and in a greatly enfeebled condition of health, she was conveyed to the hospital, where she survived but a short time. The circumstances of loneliness surrounding her death strongly appeals to the hearts of allthe blow falling with unusual heavi, ness upon her kinsfolk, who certainly have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Mrs. Vickery's age was 76 years She had always been a hard worker, the task of rearing her family, falling largely to her lot. Her neighbors speak kindly of her many excellent traits of character. Mrs. Vickery was twice married, Emmery being her other name by marriage.

CLINE.

Ethel the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cline died at their home on Babcock street, Buffalo, last Sunday morning of diphtheria, burial being made on Monday. The child had been sick only a few hours and was a grand-child of Mr. John Cline, of Portage street, this place. Charley, the three year old son is just recovering from an attack of this dread disease, and the little boy of Mrs. Lena Rendt, who is visiting at their home is also sick with diptheria.

Enforce the Law.

Enforce the Law.

Editor Press:—
Allow me a little space in your columns for a few remarks. We are well named the lawless Valley people, for we do not believe there is another community in the state that would allow parties to take their guns and fishing rods to hunt and fish along the streams during hours of worship on the Sabbath day. But we are sorry to say that this is practiced by some of our Valley friends. We have a law that covers this Sabbath breaking and we will enforce it the next time there is lawless work in our Valley. Be careful where you fish, as all will be dealt with alike in this matter.

MATILDA DODGE, Sec'y:

MATILDA DODGE, Sec'y: Senator Beveridge on Real Happiness. Senator Albert J. Beveridge in the last number of The Saturday Evening Post has the following to say about the value of religion in the life of the new home:

"What I am now insisting upon is a constant and careful nourishment of the mind and soul within you, so that the new home may each day be more and more the dwelling place of beauty and the abode of real happiness. You cannot think of the old home without thinking of your mother, and you can not think of your mother without thinking of the Bible. A young man and a young woman who are making a new home make an irreparable mistake if they leave out the religious influence.

"Both ought to belong to church, and to the same church. This is a matter of prudence as well as of righteousness. Get it into your consciousness that you must be in harmony with the people of whom you are two. Your new home must be in accord with the millions of other homes which make up this nation. And the American people at bottom are a religious people. Also you will find that nothing will please your wife so much as to resolve upon regular church attendance and then to reduce that resolve to a habit. It is reduce that resolve to a habit. It is good for you, too; you feel as if you had taken a moral bath after you get home from church every Sunday."
