IN RELIGION'S FIELD

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Crane, of Boston, after careful inquiry has come to the conclusion that there are about 140 different kinds of religion in that city.

As a church choir singer Mrs. Frederick B. Bushnell, of Dennistown, N. J., is believed to hold the record. At 75 years of age she is still a member of the choir of the Methodist church.

A chapel which is being finished in Westminster cathedral, London, will cost $50,000. The money is the contribution of converts to the Roman Catholic church as thank offerings for their conversion.

There were in 1900 in the German empire 25,131,104 Protestants and 20,231,144 Roman Catholics. Besides these the census recorded 203,753 "other Christians," 35,000 Old Catholics, and 586,833 Jews.

It is stated that there is likely to be a compromise between the Free and United Free Churches of Scotland, the Free church surrendering $25,000,000 of the $37,500,000 which it acquired under the decision of the house of lords.

The Chicago Society for Biblical Research has a roll of 33 members, representing five denominations, Methodist, Congregational, Lutheran, Baptist and Presbyterian, and found mainly in the faculties of their theological seminaries.

There are to-day 87 Bohemian Protestant churches in the United States, 59 Presbyterian and Reformed, 16 Congregational, Methodist Episcopal, and three Baptist, with 65 pastors, many missionaries and 87 Sunday schools.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which recently reached its 25th birthday, has a membership of 3,919,600, and its societies number 65,327, of which 500 are in Europe. The movement has extended to China, Japan, Persia, Syria, Korea and Armenia. In Australia there is a large membership. Germany shows the highest rate of increase in Europe.

MITES OF MERRIMENT.

"Is marriage a failure?" "You can never tell till you've seen the wedding presents."

"Fashionable congregation, isn't it?" "Very. They're traveling along the straight and narrow path in automobiles."

"What's in a name?" exclaimed the Russian general. "There are about 42 letters in mine," answered his companion, jocularly.

She—"So your father wants you to go to work! What did he say?" He—"Said he thought I ought to find something to 'do' besides him."

Clarence—"And why do you think I am a poor judge of human nature?" Beatrice—"Because you have such a good opinion of yourself."

"Miss, I thought I heard a cry for help?" "Yes, sir, this young man was trying to kiss me!" "Who called for help; you or the young man?"

Hostess (to distinguished foreigner)—"I do hope you won't find it dull here." Distinguished foreigner (politely)—"Ah, no, I will not find it dull. Are not you and your husband amusement enough?"

Private Car Lines.

The railroads seem very willing to have the private car lines brought under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission. A railroad president is authority for the statement that lines are paid mileage, without discrimination, and the question of excessive charges is a matter for the shipper to settle with the car lines, so long as there is no law to govern their rates. Car mileage paying has been decided to be as legal as the payment of rental for property.

MONEY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The income tax in Great Britain is levied on $3,500,000,000 of annual income, and produces $155,000,000 of revenue for the government.

From money invested abroad alone Great Britain's capitalists probably receive $1,200,000,000 a year of income, though no one can tell exactly.

That is only $244 a year for each person if it were equally divided. It isn't. Less than 700,000 persons have more than half the total income.

It is probable that the total of private incomes, great and small, in the United States is over $25,000,000,000, though the sum cannot be so closely estimated as in the island kingdom.

If Mr. Gibson Bowles is right in saying that only one-third of the national income pays the tax, the total of incomes of the united kingdom must be $10,500,000,000, a sum almost inconceivably vast.

For Those Who Died

By JENNIE E. T. DOWIE

"What Memorial day for, anyway?" Sam Silsbee stood in his corn field leaning upon his hoe, the morning sun shining upon his shrivelled face and lighting up the red bandana which he wore loosely knotted about his throat.

"You know, Jason, just as well as I do, it is all foredoomed soldiers a-dying for their country! They just happened to die. They were just after chasing the almighty dollar, and as Sam Sikes said when he enlisted, 'twas a good chance to go south and see the country and get paid for it into the bargain."

"Well," replied Jason, poking round with his hoe in the black earth, "no doubt there was some scallawags in the army, just as there is everywhere, but there was lots of brave fellows. I wish I could have gone; I have always felt streaked to think I didn't, though how to get away at the time, I couldn't see."

"And suppose they did die for their country," said Sam, "though I don't believe hide nor hair of it, but suppose they did, is that any reason why folks that are alive to-day should make fools of themselves a-banging and tooting with a drum and fife and a-scattering flowers on graves? 'Tis enough to make a horse laugh to see the men a-starting out a-marching and carrying all sorts of greens! And then the time that is lost? Did you ever try to figure it out? Well, I've kinder sorter kept a run of it in my head, and if folks would work the time they spend a-fooling 'round on Memorial day, even at small wages, I believe 'twould clear wipe out the national debt!"

"Yes—yes!" answered Jason, shaking his gray head, "no doubt all you say may be true. But, after all, there is something beside money to be thought of. Anyway, you can't complain that this town has spent much a-celebrating. We haven't never had a sign of a celebration!"

"Gracious goodness, I should hope not!" said Sam. "I have tried to scrape too close to get beforehand to have my money thrown away for nothing. My wife was bound to go up to my brother-in-law's last year on Memorial day, you know it is quite a place where they live, and so to pacify her I went. You never see such fool nonsense! I stayed around till about ten o'clock in the forenoon and then I harnessed up and came home, for I couldn't stand it any longer! I thought I'd seen fools before, but I hadn't. What do you suppose—why they had wreaths made of laurel, such as will p'sen sheep, and any old sort of trash like apple blossoms and such! And they put them on Rob Kendall's grave and sung some sort of a hymn or before. I guess he had never heard a hymn before."

"True, true," said Jason, "there was some poor trash among the soldiers, but even Rob is remembered for his one brave act, and I don't see what hurt that can do! Nobody had set him up for wrong, but because he did a worthy action!"

"I'm thankful," said Sam, "that we haven't any soldiers' graves in our town. I suppose if we had, somebody would try to make a splurge!"

"They want to celebrate this year," replied Jason. "The young folks think we ought to do something, and then there is Jerry Long; I know he feels the way we do. He lost his arm as a soldier, and the town don't care enough about him to even have the church bell rung on Decoration day."

"Jerry Long," answered Sam, striking out viciously with his hoe, "Jerry Long was another fool. He went and enlisted. I remember all about it, and he's been a cripple to pay for it, and had to sneak out a living as he could, selling things in his little store. Suppose I had enlisted and come back with one arm; why I should have had to shuck along just as he has. Though

I suppose his pension comes in handy, though I don't believe in pensions, 't is a waste of good money. How much will he give for celebrating? Not much, I reckon!"

"I think he would do more than his share," replied Jason. "A man that would go for a soldier would not shirk much in anything."

"Well," answered Sam, "if Jerry is so mortal anxious to have a celebration, let him go ahead. I'll give as much as he will give—say, I'll give twice as much!"

"Do you mean that, Sam?" asked Jason.

Sam hesitated, not expecting his words to be taken in dead earnest. But there was a sturdy as well as astingy vein in Sam; beside, he reasoned that Jerry had nothing to give, so he finally replied, after considerable scratching of his head: "Yes, I mean it; I'll give twice as much for a celebration as Jerry Long will give!"

Jason emphatically nodded his head and went to planting corn as if his life depended upon his speed. Sam also resumed planting, chuckling to himself: "They can't say much against me now; I've got them sure."

Fancy Sam's astonishment, as evening approached, and he seated in the barnyard milking his best Devon cow, was visited by Jason, who remarked: "Well, Sam, Jerry has come up to the scratch; he's given me a check for $500!" "I don't believe he's got $500," answered Sam; "he's a-fooling you!"

"No," replied Jason; "it is all right. He says he's always thought of leaving what little he's saved, to have some sort of a memorial to the soldiers, and he thinks now you will help, that he will give his money while he is alive, and see it spent according to his notion, which is to have a monument or hall, or something worth looking at. And he's going to save something back as a nest egg to keep up a perpetual yearly celebration in town, that is some sort of a proper notice of the day."

Sam got upon his feet, kicked the milking stool against the frisky Devon, who in turn kicked Sam, though without any greater injury to him than a skinned shank, and then turning to Jason, he said, with the air of a man accustomed to give away a thousand dollars every day: "I said I would do it, and I declare that I will, even if it breaks me!"

And do it he did. The effect of this giving upon Sam was marvelous. He had always been so close that he had never possessed the remotest idea of the pleasure which generosity could afford. He not only gave the thousand dollars, but was first and foremost on every Decoration day to see that a proper celebration was carried out.

A handsome little library was built with the main part of the money, and Sam as well as Jerry looked close to see that everything was done in the best manner and with the best material.

"I don't spend a thousand dollars every day," Sam had said, "and when I do, I calculate to look after it."

This year in the town of Shirley on Decoration day there is to be an address in Memorial hall upon "Reminiscences of the Civil War," by Jerry Long, and remarks, "Concerning Cuba and Our Late Heroes," by Squire Silsbee.

Sam, or Squire Silsbee, as he is now called, has also been heard to say more than once, that when he is dead, he hopes somebody will remember to put a posy upon his grave.—Portland Transcript.

Love's Fragrant Offering. Thin grow the ranks. Each veteran now Has silver locks around his brow; And slow and weary tread, Dim are his eyes once keen and bright, And frail his arm, that in the fight Was strong where duty led.

Thin grow the ranks, but love shall keep A tender watch where heroes sleep. With fragrant flowers of May, The lowly flowers we strew, Of those who wore the union blue, On this Memorial day.

—Ruth Raymond, in Ohio Farmer.

Memorial Day. Children, bring your sweetest flowers! North and south and east and west, Bring the flowers you love the best, Lay them where the soldiers rest.

Children, bring your sweetest flowers! In memory of the gift they gave, Every noble man and brave Who sleeps within a soldier's grave.

MOTHERHOOD

Actual Sterility in Women Is Very Rare—Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes.

Many women long for a child to bless their homes, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs they are barren. Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound...

A woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution. Is not that an incentive to prepare for a healthy maternity?

If expectant mothers would fortify themselves with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for thirty years has sustained thousands of women in this condition, there would be a great decrease in miscarriages, in suffering, and in disappointments at birth.

The following letters to Mrs. Pinkham demonstrate the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President of Milwaukee Business Woman's Association, of 614 Grove Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I was married for several years and no children blessed our home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. For months I took his medicine, trying in vain for a cure, but at last my husband became disgusted and suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and in a few days I felt better. I continued to take it and in a few weeks I was cured. I have since had three children, all of whom are healthy and happy. I am now a mother and my home is a happy one. I am sure that many other women who are suffering from female troubles will be cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can give you the names of many of the women who have been benefited by it. I am sure that you will be glad to hear from them. I am, dear Mrs. Pinkham, your truly, L. C. Glover."

Mrs. Mae P. Wharry, Secretary of the North Shore Oratorical Society, The Norman, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I was married for five years and gave birth to two premature children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me, and I am so glad I took it, for it changed me from a weak, nervous woman to a strong, happy and healthy one within seven months. Within two years a lovely little girl was born, which is the pride and joy of our household. Every day I bless Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the light, health and happiness it brought to our home."

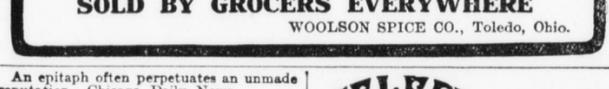

If any woman thinks she is sterile, or has doubts about her ability to carry a child to a mature birth let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is free to all expectant or would-be mothers. She has helped thousands of women through this anxious period.

Women suffering with irregular or painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, displacement, ulceration or inflammation of the womb, that bearing down feeling or ovarian trouble, backache, bloating or nervous prostration, should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of woman's ills, and accept no substitute.

QUICK RESULTS. W. J. Hill, of Concord, N. C., Justice of the Peace, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills proved a very efficient remedy in my case. I used them for disordered kidneys and backache, from which I had experienced a great deal of trouble and pain. The kidney secretions were very irregular, dark colored and full of sediment. The Pills cleared it all up and I have not had an ache in my back since taking the last dose. My health generally is improved a great deal."
