Our boys went to Renovo on Friday and played a game at that place, while they met defeat by a score of 3 to 2, the game was a most exciting and uncertain one. The Renovo News says:

"Upwards of one thousand spectators witnessed the first game this season between the strong Emporium and P. & E. base ball clubs of this place.

"The uncertainty of the national game was fully demonstrated in the contest, the final result being in doubt until the last Emporium player was retired in the ninth.

"Cummings of Emporium put up a nice game at second, taking everything that came his way. Hockley made two difficult catches in left field but dropped an easy chance "

Did it Pay to Discover America? The discovery of America cost just about $7,600-$3,000 for Columbus's fleet, $300 for the Admiral's salary, $200 each for the two captains accompany. ing the expedition, and $2.50 per month each for the several members of the crew. And yet there are folks who say that no legitimate investment can possibly pay more than 6 per cent.-Cent Per Cent for August.

Remains of John Dumm Found. On Tuesday, July 13th, John Dumm, who worked for C. B. Howard Company at Camp No. 20, on Cooks Run, complained of feeling unwell and went to his boarding house. After supper he told his foreman he would go to Emporium for medical assistance. Not hearing anything about him, woods foreman, A. Dent Smith, started a mensely. crew of men out to search for the missing man, but all efforts to locate him proving without avail, the search was given up.

On Monday Lewis Yates, while going to his work, about one-half mile from camp, came upon the decomposed remains of the unfortunate man, lying in a fresh slashing. He evidently became bewildered and wandered away from the road and laid down to die. Deceased had not been in good health for some time, in fact was a nervous wreck. The report that an empty bottle of poison was found near his body is not correct, the bottle having contained oil of tar, used in the woods to keep away flies.

Undertaker LaBar was notified by the Company to take charge of the remains, his wagon being driven up to the camp Monday afternoon and what engine, 200 horse power, will be installwas left of his body placed in a rough ed here. The Emporium plant will be box and brought to his morgue at this in operation as long as the bark lasts, place to await word from his relatives, who reside at Cogan Station.

Mr. A. Dent Smith, who has known the deceased for a number of years, states that he has a sister, Mrs. Frank Ludwig, at Cogan Station. His age is about 45 years.

His remains were interred in New on Cemetery Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. R. A. Robertson offering a prayer at the grave. It is possible that the relatives of the deceased may remove the remains to

Mysterious Death

The County Commissioners were called up on the 'phone Wednesday by parties at Medix Run, who communicated the information that a man had died in the streets at Medix Run under mysterious circumstances-apparently suffering from poison The parties insisted that an inquest should be held. Accordingly the inquest was held Wednesday afternoon by Justice E. H. Dixon, of Caledonia, and after examining into the facts of the case the coroner's jury decided that the man died of alcoholism. The man's name proved accordism. The man's name proved to be Lee Kirkland, and his home is in Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Haupt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wright, Mr. and Harrisburg, where he leaves a widow and five children. He was aged about Hertig, Mr. B. E. Jones and son Her-35 years, and is thought to have come into this county to hunt work, probably in the woods. It is said he fell in Mildred Haupt, Bessie Greenhears, the road, frothed at the mouth in a kind of fit, and died before he could be moved to any house. The death occurred at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A team from the County Home was sent after the body this morning and the Commissioners are comment. and the Commissioners are communicating with the family as to what disposition they shall make of the remains. This is only more of the many victims of rum in this county every year.-Ridgway Advocate. We are informed Kirkland used to reside at Sinnemahoning, were he worked in

The Observer. Some years ago Professor William

James, of Harvard, wrote a little book entitled "The Will to Believe," in which he showed, with the profound analysis of a psychological expert and with his well-known literary skill, that an act of will is involved in every act of belief, and that a want of belief, of nerveless and passive will. The man who has no beliefs is a non-entity, an object of contempt Doubts and questionings have their place and function, but their place and function should be strictly subordinate to a supreme positive conviction and active purpose. If we are exhorted to "prove all things," we are also urged to "hold fast that which is good," and are moreover sharply warned against the spirit which is "ever learning, but never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." Contrast the power of a Peter the Hermit, fanatic though he was, with the pitiable ineffectiveness of a Hamlet whose "cast of thought" was not dominated by a "native hue of resolution." The man without faith, without a cause, without enthusiasm, is to be blamed for failing to exert the active will power of a vigorous and noble manhood. The world's leaders and workers and battlers have ever been man who have had the will to believe in something. No man can sit on the fence and believe in God or in anything else. The will must be active, the mind must bestir itself, if there is to be belief. Indeed, the mind is active in all our acts of perception and judgment. Every mental process, even those of our physical senses, involves attention, which is an act of the will. Without attention, one's beset friend may stand right before his eyes, and yet he will not be aware of that friend's presence. We see what we give attention to. Two persons may stand upon the same hill-top and cast their eyes around the same sweep of landscape, yet what the one sees may be very different from what the other One may be a real estate agent, or a mining prospector, while the other may be a painter or a poet. What each of them sees depends quite as much upon what he himself brings to the scene as upon the scene itself. The mind of neither is a mere passive, inactive surface, sensitized like a camera plate; but is a very active agent which discriminates, rejects, selects and constructs a picture of what is before it, as unique as its cwn individuality. It s a commonplace, that if we know what one sees, we know what he himself is. The pessimist and the cynic justify themselves by saying that they see life as it, and that consequently they are no more to be blamed for being pessimistic and cynical than the side of a scales is to be blamed for dropping when when a weight is placed on it. If they were really impartial in their view of facts, the case would not be so bad; but their view is not impar- Fourth st., repair; L. Taggart, Cherry st., tial; they do not see things whole, nor as they are. To see and appreciate the better things of existence it is necessary that one come to the view with a heart ready to love them and with a will ready to co-operate with the spirit of the best and to carry out one's own part of the Larger Purpose. Without such a disposition and will, one is without the very basis of character and one's view of things is distorted and

FRIDAY, Fair.

Burglarly.

Yesterday morning, about two o'clock, W. A. Fitzgerald who has been stopping at Jos. Newton's and occupyinterest, of conviction, is due to a ingaroom on second floor, heard his door knob turn and the door opened. Thinking it one of the boarders he watched the chap who stood in the doorway looking at him, no doubt to see if he was awake. The sneak watched Fitzgerald for five minutes when Fitz thought it about time to be "doing something" and rolled over. At this move the intruder bolted down stairs, out upon the lawn. Then Wm. went back to bed. In the morning when Mr. Newton and family arose they were surprised to see the front door wide open and a large bundle of clothes, coats, etc., lying upon the lawn. Nothing was missing but a few stick pins and some change taken from Jas. Murphy and Bert Caton's clothes. Had not Mr. Fitzgerald trightened away the early caller Jimmy Murphy says he would have had to go to the store in a barrel or banana case. Mr. Newton requests the intruder to return, promising to give him an elaborate reception.
