day, Oct. 21, at the opera house:
"The patrons of the National filled the house yesterday afternoon and evening to witness the initial performance of 'Dora Thorne' in this city. The dramatization of this popular novel is new rne cramalization of this popular novel is new, and surely was a happy inspiration of the playwright, as its presentation by a good company yesterday won the hearty approval of the audience. Thora Thorne as a novel is a beautiful story and has been so widely read and re-read by overs of a sweet story that comments on the re rovers of a sweet story that comments on the re-production of 'Dora Thorne's story on the stage are superfluous. The play abounds in pathos and mirth, and the actors who assume the roles in this pretty play are well fitted to their parts and certainly do justice to their respective roles."
Dora Thorne visited Emporium last year and gave great satisfation.

DAVID D. COLCORD. Born, Sept. 22, 1821. Died, Oct. 4, 1905.

corded in the last issue of the Journal, terminated a long and useful life. His last days were spent at the home of M. J. Colcord, his son, in this boro, where he awaited the end with a calm resignation and a steadfast hope in the future, comforting to behold. Up to the last few moments preceeding dissolution his mind was clear and active, meeting the many old friends who called to see him, with all the ardor of youth, and spending hours recalling the pleasant incidents of his early life in this county. The last feeble pulsations of waning life gave him strength to bid the loved ones around bis bedside "a long good-bye." He died "as one who wraps the draperies of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams.'

Funeral services were held at the home of his son Saturday last and the remains taken to Homer cemetery for burial beside a faithful and affectionate wife who preceded him twenty-eight years ago, and five children. Rev. E. M. Snodgrass, of the Park M. E Church, officiated, and he was borne to the grave by residents of this town who had been his pupils in their youth. They were John Metzger, who attended the first school taught in this county by the deceased, Hon. O. G. Metzger, H. Clinton Olmsted, Edmund Fickler, William W. Thompson and Cyrenus Rennells. Members of Arch F. Jones Post, G. A. R, attended the funeral in a body, deceased having been a member of D. W. Taggart Post of Driftwood. It is not well for us to eulogize the deceased further than to bear witness to his faithful admonitions and tender love as a parent, but the multitude of friends who mourn his death will recognize the truth of the following sketch taken from the History of Potter

"Among the men most closely identified with the early educational interests of Potter county, none are more deserving of special mention than hungry, the acquisition of wealth has David D. Colcord, who in 1839, at the never been his ambition; and though age of 17, came from Bath, Steuben county, N.Y., to Coudersport, to attend ation of youthful hopes, and kept him school and complete, so far as his lim-it the mountain top, yet the retrospect of a life devoted unselfishly to the good begun in the district schools of his na- of others must have its compensation.

The death of Dr. D. D. Colcord, re. | tive place. He attended the school then held in the Commissioners' office, no school house having then been built. and in 1840, the academy having been completed, he attended that institution for two years. He then began teaching, and for nearly thirty years was found in the school room each winter, clearing and working during the summer easons a farm that he took up in the almost unbroken forest south of Coudersport. In 1844 he married Sarah youngest daughter of John Peet, one of the earliest settlers of the county. This brave and devoted woman, early inured to the hardships of pioneer life, was indeed a helpmeet, eking out, with a frugal hand, the meager living yielded by the scanty wages of the teacher, and the sterile soil of the farm. She died in 1877. Seven children were born to them, four of whom died in the diphtheria scourge in 1862; one, Alice, died in 1879, and two sons, Mahlon and Amos, are still living. In 1864, Mr. Colcord enlisted in the army, and served to the close of the war. In 1868 he moved to First Fork, Cameron county, where he still resides, active and energetic, though nearly seventy years old. Since 1870, he has devoted part of his time to the practice of medicine, which he studied while a young man. As a teacher he was uniformly successful, being thoroughly in love with his work, keeping abreast of improvement by professional reading and attending educational meetings all over the county, often at serious inconvenience and pecuniary loss to himself. No sacrifice was too great for him to make for his school, and the salary was but a small part of his compensation. Both as teacher and director, which latter office he has held for many years, Mr. Colcord has been a champion of the free school system, and an earnest advocate of the education of the masses. Generous to a fault, thoroughly honest, ready to divide his last dollar with the needy, turning no one from his door ation of youthful bopes, and kept him in the valley when he would have been

Metzger Heirs to Fight.

The fight of the small army of Metzger heirs for a vast sum of money, which they claim is due them from the Dutch sovereignty by reason of a loan made Holland by Theibaud Metzger, is now on in earnest.

The heirs in Philadelphia and nearby cities attended a special meeting Friday at the home of Amy Earnest Erb, 943 North Twelfth street, one of the interested parties. The differences existing between the contesting descendants of Metzger was amicably adjusted, and one and all present pledged themselves to force Holland to make a payment.

Every heir to the vast claim against the Dutch must prove his or her eligibilty by birth records, ancient church and Bible records, etc. The heirs will hold another meeting in this city on November 9.—Philadelphia Press.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breath Hyomei Four Times a Day and be Cured.

If a few years ago, someone had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed, and it remained for the eminent investigator, R. T. Booth, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed almost 'miraculous cures of catarrh, and is to-day reco-gnized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims. The complete outfit of Hyome costs $1.00, and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation and effects a complete and lasting cure.

In Emporium there are scores of well known people who have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, L. Taggart will return the money you pay for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to his cath in the result. faith in the remedy.

After landing a man a girl strenuously denies that she fished for him.
