Sham Love of Nature. Praising the genuine love of nature which exists in the hearts of so many quiet people, who have a real delight in the silent and exquisite changes. the influx and efflux of life which we call the seasons, an anonymous English writer says: "Those who are fortunate enough to spend their lives in the quiet country-side have much of this tranquil and unuttered love of nature; and others, again, who are condemned by circumstances to spend their days in toilsome towns, and yet have the instinct, derived perhaps from long generations of country forefathers, feel this beauty, in the short weeks when they are enabled to approach it, more poignantly still. The fact remains, however, that a love of nature is a part of the panoply of cultivation which at the present time people above a certain social standing feel bound to assume. Very few ordinary persons would care to avow that they took no interest in national politics, in games and sports. in literature, in appreciation of nature, or in religion. As a matter of fact, the vital interest that is taken in these subjects, perhaps in games and sports, is far below the interest that is expressed in them. A person who said frankly that he thought that any of these subjects were uninteresting, tiresome or absurd, would be thought stupid or affected, even brutal. Probably most of the people who express a deep concern for these things believe that they are giving utterance to a sincere feeling; but, not to expatiate on the emotions which they mistake for real emotion in the other departments, there are probably a good many people who mistake for a love of nature the pleasure of fresh air, physical movement, and change of scene. Many worthy golfers, for instance, who do not know that they are talking insincerely, attribute, in conversation, the pleasure they feel in pursuing their game to the agreeable

It appears that a leading society woman of New York, one of the front broken. rankers in the extended Four Hundred, has decreed that large diamonds must be worn this season, instead of small ones. Every little while it is necessary for some one prominent in the upper circles to recall the society to get careless about one's diamonds. Perhaps a cluster of little dazzlers may have a more easily inserted pin than the solitaires at the bottom of the casket. And then, again, suggests the Clveland Plain Dealer, these society women are apt to seize the first gems that come to hand, regardless of their stones as large as marrowfat peas may clasp more easily perhaps than the ordinary moth-ball pattern, but no society woman with a proper pride should permit herself to employ any such excuse for her neglect of the politer usages of the Newport set. Bring out the big diamonds, then, and hang 'em where they may be seen of all men. Let the little stones rattle back in the can. They'll do for card party prizes, or to wear in Lent, or for wedding gifts to poor relations.

REPUBLICANS STAND SOLID

Talk of a Split in the Ranks of the Party Is All Balderdash.

It is safe to disregard the story from Washington that the republicans in congress will split over the question of railway rate regulation. A division of opinion exists now among the republican members of the senate interstate commerce committee, but there are evidences that this will practically or actually disappear by the time that, congress meets, says the St. Louis Globe-Chairman Elkins of that committee denies that he is opposed to the principle of the president's plan. He says he differs with the president only on details, and the details, of to be arranged in congress. The president has nothing to do with the minute provisions of the regulation In his forthcoming message he will urge the enactment of a law which will give certain powers in the commerce commission or to some other board belonging to the general government, but congress, if it agrees with the scheme, will frame the meas-

From present indications a majority of the republican members of the seninterstate commerce committee will be on the president's side by the opening of congress. Cullom of Illinois and Dolliver of Iowa have been with the president from the beginning. Millard of Nebraska, who is counted as doubtful, is also with the president. Several times in the past 'ew months he has made his attitude plain to the There is now a reasonable chance that Elkins will side with the administration by the time the bill is framed which will present the matter to the senate. Foraker's friends say there is no irrepressible conflict between him and the president on the rate issue, which means that they believe Foraker will be over on the president's side by the time the subject comes up in congress. Kean of New Jersey, who is a new man in the senate, and who has been placed among the epponents of the president's poli-cy, is reported to be swinging over to the administration. The among the republicans of the senate interstate commerce committee not be serious enough to give the democrats any aid and comfort.

At least three facts will prevent a split among the senate republicans on the rate regulation question. The people of the country, by a large majority, favor that policy. A rate-regulation bill will pass the house early in the session, and will receive the votes of three-fourths or more of the republican members of that chamber. All the republican leaders of the popular branch, from Cannon down, are in favor of a measure substantially on the lines which the president urges. If the republicans of the senate fail to give rate regulation the support which it needs to carry it through that body the democrats will do the work. Thes considerations will prevent any serious break among the republican senators on that policy. A regulation bill in some shape is sure to be enacted. The senators who stand out against that policy will have a hard road to travel if they appeal for reelection. The country is resolved to try the experiment of placing a supervision over railway rates in the hands or some govern-ment board, and the people usually accomplish what they set out to do. On rate regulation question as on all other important issues the republican line in congress is likely to remain un-

FALSE ISSUES RAISED.

Whitney, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

Massachusetts Democrats' Plea for Canadian Reciprocity a Shallow Pretense.

is a successful millionaire. He has run great monopolies and knows all about that sort of business, but obviously he has neglected to inform himself on poland especially on reciprocity. Whitney gave out an interview the other day in which he arrainged the republican party for its failure to install reciprocity with Canada, the favorite shout of Foss and his clique, says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. Senator Lodge got after Whitney in a speech on Saturday and wound up Mr. course, are something which will have Whitney, rhetorically speaking, with a weaver's knot. Mr. Lodge showed that under Blaine, when Harrison was pres ident, effort was made to install reciprocity with Canada, and Canada would listen to no reduction in her duties on manufactured goods. Whitney regulation of rates to the interstate that ten years ago when the democrats were in power, reciprocity was turned down. Certainly it was not installel and this is an inconvenient fact for Whitney. Under McKinley, Congressman Dingley and others sat on a joint commission of the United States and Canada to see if a treaty could be developed, for Congressman Dingley and others thought something could be done on a basis of free coal, but the Canadians since that time have proved as intractable as they did under the Harrison administration. In 1903, under Roosevelt, again it was in evidence that the Canadians would allow no reduction on their rates on manufactures entering Canada, and there has been no time in the decade when any reciprocity that was reciprocal was practicable. Meantime during the last five years American trade with Canada has increased from $100,000,000 to $162,000,000. On the other hand, the present Dingley tariff has worked so well that about 62 per cent. of the entire foreign trade of Canada, which amounts to $400,000,000, is her trade with the United States. If we had sought for ideal legislation could we have secured anything more favorable to our interests than the Canadian trade with the United States which has been promoted by the present tariff? Another boomerang was fired by Whitney when he complained that the present conditions were unfortunate for Boston. Mr. Lodge shows that under the present treaty arrangements Canadian exports come from Canada in bond, duty free when signed for export beyond this country, and that the foreign trade of Boston from this source has so increased that the Allan line has just decided to run its Glasgow service to Boston. Mr. Lodge adds that if Mr. Whitney wants to benefit Boston he will do well to Join the republicans in enacting into law such measures as will upbuild American shipping, which for years has been opposed by the democratic members of congress.

QUIXOTIC QUEST ONLY.

Free Hide Pilgrimage That Resolved Itself Into a Ridiculous Farce.

There is an element of the ludicrous in the free hides pilgrimage of November 15. Certainly a new record for absurdity was established when that group of footwear producers left their business for a round trip of 800 miles in order to solicit the impossible.

Their errand, says the American Economist, was to persuade the president to help them get free trade in hides. They should have known that the president had no power in premises. Congress, not the president fixes tariff rates, and fixes them for the whole country-not a single state section. Of this fact sharply reminded in the white house The president has the matter "under hides in his December message. Presi items in tariff schedules. Still less do they play favorites in detailed tariff recommendations. It is hardly conceivable that the chief executive should resolve himself were to do this, his real executive du-ties would suffer sadly.

After consenting to take up the question of no tariff on hides he could not tion of no tariff on fides he could not well refuse to take up the question of more tariff on some other article of domestic production. If persuaded by the foctwear industrials to recommend free trade in hides, how could he es cape compliance with the demands of the farmers for free trade in leather and its finished products?

Probably the free hide pilgrims never thought of that. It would seem that there are many things which the Masachusetts "reformers" have not thought of. Among these, how not to make themselves ridiculous.

FIFTY-NINTH CONGRESS CONVENES

The Senate Proceedings Were Brief-The House Was in Session for More Than Three Hours.

Washington, Dec. 5.-The assem bling yesterday of the members of the Fifty-ninth congress for their first session was marked by no unusual incidents, but it attracted to the capitol crowds of spectators who took a lively interest in the proceedings. Senators Allison and Morgan were appointed by Vice President Fairbanks as a committee to notify the president that congress was ready to receive any communication he desired to make. The senate was in session only 20 minutes. Senators Aldrich (R. I.), Knox (Pennsylvania), Warner (Mo.) and Frazier (Tenn.) took the oath of office and an adjournment was taken as a mark of respect to the late Senator Platt, of Connecticut.

The preliminary steps to organiza-tion were taken by the house. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, was re-elected speaker, the members of the house took the oath of office; the officers and floor employes of the body were re-elected; the rules of the last congress were adopted, and members went through the formality of drawing for through the formality of drawing for

A committee was appointed to act with the senate committee in notifying President Roosevelt that congress was ready to transact business, the rules committee and the committee on mile age were appointed and the house adjourned after a session which lasted three and a half hours, in compliance with resolutions announcing the death of Senator Platt, of Connecticut, and Representative Marsh, of Illinois.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The senate was in session for almost three hours yesterday and gave practically all of its time to listening to the reading of last the president's message. Mr. Branda-was gee took his seat as senator from time Connecticut.

House.-President Roosevelt's mes sage to congress received the atten-tion of the house for two and a half hours yesterday.

The house received and ordered referred to one of the regular election committees a protest from the Fifth congressional district of Illinois, stating that Anthony Michalek, who was on Monday sworn in as a member of the house from that district, is not a citizen of the United States.

Upon motion of Mr. Goldfogle, of few York, a resolution was read expressing the sympathy of the American people for the distressed Russian Jews.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The senate be gan business in earnest yesterday. The session was of only little more than two hours' duration, but in that time several hundred bills and resolutions were introduced and referred to committees. House.—With an opportunity unlimited debate on the subject of the Panama canal, the house exhausted its oratory on that subject in a session of four and three-quarter hours yester day. Washington, Dec. 8.—An appropria tion of $11,000,000 was voted toward the construction of the Panama canal.

The bill contains beside the appro priation a provision removing a tax disability against the proposed bonds to be issued for the construction of the canal, thus placing the bonds on a footing with other government bonds as available for security for national bank circulation and to reimburse the treasury for the money appropriated in the bill.

Senate.—The subject of campaign contributions by insurance companies occupied the major portion of the time of the senate.

The resolution directing the secre tary of the treasury to report whether the reports of the national bank examiners show that the banks have made campaign contributions in recent campaign years was adopted.
