Broad Hint.

No member of the British parlia-ment is permitted to say bluntly and declare that another is drunk, but he may hint at the fact in paraphrase. as when Mr. Gladstone, replying to an unconventional speech of Disraeli's. remarked: "The right honorable gentleman has evidently had access to sources of inspiration that are not open to me."

Snow by the Pound.

Snow is sold in the north of Sicily, where it fetches about a halfpenny a pound. It is a government monopoly, and the prince of Palermo derives the greater part of his income The snow, which is gathered on the mountains in felt-covered baskets, is widely bought in the cities for refrigerating purposes.

GROWING NEED OF SHIPS.

Good Reasons for the Passage of the Bill Favoring Subsidy.

Now that the ship subsidy bill has passed the United States senate and has gone to the house of representatives, naturally the opponents of any plan to encourage the revival of our ocean-going mercantile marine have increased their efforts to prevent the measure from getting through, and some of the arguments employed would seem to indicate that those who use them are in a somewhat hysterical condition. It is strange what antipathy can be shown, by persons professedly desirous of furthering their country's interest, to methods known to be practicable and successful elsewhere, but which happen to be contrary to their preconceived economic notions. The fiercest denunciation of the subsidy system comes from American free traders; yet it is notorious and indisputable that Great Britain, which has the closest approach to free trade that can be found anywhere, is most liberal in her subventions to shipping, because she is well aware that the maintenance of her marine is essential to the preservation of her commercial

Here is the line of reasoning which some of these American free traders We cannot increase our are using: cording to a traveler: "Each man, grasp-ing a kinjal in his hand, brought it up ships for carrying goods to and from our ports to those of other countries. The only way in which it can be done is to "increase the production of those things which we can sell to advantage to other countries and diminish the cost of them so as to reach the widest demand; and, on the other hand, to buy from other countries wherever we can do so to advantage at the lowest practicable cost to ourselves." That sounds very plausible, but in practice it will not work-at least not without leaving us at the mercy of foreign competitors in many lines of industry which we have laboriously built up. The plan proposed means simply reducing our tariff to a purely revenue basis and letting in the products of other countries without check; in fact, complete abandonment of protection in any form.

Well, this country has had some experience with that sort of thing. It began as far back as when the colonies were under the rule of the old world and were compelled to "buy from other countries wherever we could do so.' The governments which controlled the colonies took good care that the colonies should produce nothing which would compete with the industries across the ocean, and should buy in England most of the articles needed. On the other hand, the colonies were graciously permitted to ship their tobacco, grain and other crude products, at prices fixed in Europe, in exchange for the manufactures required on this side of the ocean. It was an ideal arrangement from the free trade point of view, but it did not tend to any very great development of American industry. Likewise at various times since independence the United States has had low or revenue tariffs, and in no instance has the increase in home manufacturing or the expansion of foreign trade been such as to establish the superiority of that method.

In brief, neither the foreign nor the domestic commerce of the United States ever prospered under low tariffs as they have done under protection. as a reference to the figures will prove. But it is an inconsistency not to be patiently contemplated by truly gressive and patriotic Americans that the enormous and steadily increasing business of carrying goods to and from commercial nation of importance tolerates such a condition of things. There is no sound reason why the United States should continue to occupy this humiliating position. notions of fanciful economic theorizers should give way to the require sense.

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Rheumatism is a disease of the blood. caused by the failure of the body to cast caused by the failure of the body to cast off certain poisons. External applications are of use only in securing temporary relief from pain—the cure for rheumatism lies in purifying and enriching the blood.

Mrs. Frederick Brown, of 40 Sumpter street, Sandy Hill, N.Y., was a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism from the time she was sixteen. She says: "It first appeared in my knee joints, then in my hips and waist. It became a regular thing that I would be laid up all winter. The rheumatism affected mostly my hands, hips, feet and shoulders. My hands were all puffed up and my feet became deformed. I lost my appetite, couldn't sleep and sometimes I was compelled to cry out, the pain was so intense.

"For several winters I was under the doctor's care and while his medicine relieved the pain for a little while there seemed no prospect for a permanent cure. I was confined to my bed, off and on, for weeks at a time. My limbs swelled dreadfully at times and I was cure. I was confined to my bed, off and on, for weeks at a time. My limbs swelled dreadfully at times and I was reduced almost to nothing.

"In the spring of 1904, upon the advice of a friend, I began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At that time I wasn't able to do anything and could barely eat enough to keep alive. I felt a change for the better in about a month. I began to eat heartily and I suffered less pain. Of course I kept on the treatment, using care in my diet, and treatment, using care in my diet, and in about three months I was cured. I am entirely well today and do all my own work."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Brown by driving the rheumatic poisons out of her blood. But you must get the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, sold by all druggists and by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

FOOD AND STUDY.

A College Man's Experience.

"All through my high school course and first year in college," writes an ambitious young man, "I struggled with my studies on a diet of greasy, pasty foods, being especially fond of cakes and fried things. My system got into a state of general disorder and it was difficult for me to apply myself to school work with any degree of satisfaction. I tried different medicines and food preparations, but did not seem able to correct the difficulty.

"Then my attention was called to Grape-Nuts food and I sampled it. I had to do something, so I just buckled down to a rigid observance of the directions on the package, and in less than no time began to feel better. In a few weeks my strength was restored, my weight had increased, I had a elearer head and felt better in every particular. My work was simply sport to what it was formerly.

"My sister's health was badly run down and she had become so nervous that she could not attend to her music. She went on Grape-Nuts and had the same remarkable experience that I had. Then my brother, Frank, who is in the post office department at Washington city, and had been trying to do brain work on greasy cakes and all that, joined the Grape-Nuts army. I showed him what it was and could do, and from a broken-down condition he has developed into a hearty and efficient man.

"Besides these I could give account of numbers of my fellow-students who have made visible improvement mentally and physically by the use of this food." Name given by Postum Co., food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
