NETZGER.

In our last issue we announced the attended. Rev. Mr. Cleaver, pastor of M. E. Church, conducted the services assisted by Rev. Mr. Robertson, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, and both gentlemen made able and appropriate remarks We are permitted to give the PRESS readers the major portion of their sermons.

FLOWER OFFERINGS.

Among those who sent flowers were: The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the M. E Church Choir, the Pelta Kappa Society of Randolph-Macon College, Dr. and Mrs. Noyes of Olean, Bachelor Girls' Club, Miss Bissell of Buffalo, George A. Walker, Mrs. and Miss Wiley, Mrs. Bert Burrows of Warren, George P. Jones, T. B. Lloyd and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Strayer, Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. Dalrymple, Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Schlecht, Mrs. McGrane and Mrs. Thomas.

Although a very large proportion of Miss Metzger's friends were too far away in South and West and East to attend the funeral, there were some from Scranton, Port Allegany, Olean, and Buffalo.

Members of the Bachelor Girls' Club who were in town carried the flowers: The Misses Taggart, Misses Bryan, Wiley, Steck, Thomas, McQuay, Larrabee, Mrs Charles Logan, Mrs. Leon Felt.

The pall bearers were: George A. Walker, Jay P. Felt, Leon R. Felt, C. Jay loodnough, Fred Heilman, and Clifford

PASTOR CLEAVER'S SERMON.

The following is a brief summing up of what the Rev. Mr. Cleaver said:

I have come to place a flower upon the casket of her whose life diffused fragrance everywhere she went. And the flower I bring is a pure white rose, emblem of herself, and fit companion for the tomb.

Pure white rose, no fairer flower grows,
Its form is the nestest, its beauty screne,
Its fragrance the sweetest, God's grace is seen,
In a pure white rose.

Yet fairer and more bright,
Mirror of heaven's light,
Is that life aimost divine,
In which all Yirtues shine
A life pure white.
I have not some to offer words of comfort, for
I have not with which to soothe my own grief

thave none with which to soothe my own grief on this sad occasion, then how could I presume to comfort others. It would be like a repetition of the old aging "physician heal thyself, and if thou canst not heal thyself, why seek to heal another?" All I can do is to tell you of my sym-pathy, and of all who have gathered here: "We share our mutual woes, Our mutual burdens bear,

And often for each other flows,
The sympathizing tear."
And it is my perpose to encourage you to cling close to the Rock of Ages, with this prayer always accompanying, "Let me hide myself in

Probably the most fitting funeral service we today could render for her whose life is a most precious rose bud in this community's book of remembrance, would be to sit together in that silence which is sweter than all speech, and muse our hearts are sad, the sound of the e is like the mournful rustling of the leaves emory; for thought is deeper than all words feeling is deeper than thought.

t seems almost impossible that two short seks should make so great a difference. Them to in whose memory we are now gathered to ether in tears, was seemingly in perfect health and happy in anticipation of the pleasures of aer summer vacation. But we did not then know what God's plan was. "We could not tell, but this we knew, that all

Though it seems most ill, if it be God's will."

Her death seems so sudden. The brittle thread that bound her to us has broken, but we can sarcely realize that she has gone—

"Gone beyond the stars to God,
Into the splendor, shadowless and broad,
Into the splendor, shadowless and broad,
Into the everlasting joy and light,
Of her reward; In robes of white
Gone to her long home;
Entered eternity to roam
And await for us, one by one
And welcome us when we come;
Still living when all of us are gone.
And when every fire of every sun shall languages and expire.
Then living still, before the throne of God
shall stand.
And see new world's revolving from his hand."
The Savior's prayer, found in the 17th chanter.

The Savior's prayer, found in the 17th chapter, and the 24th verse of St. John's Gospel, helps us to understand this: "Father, I will that they whom thou has given me, be with me where I

It is Christ's will that we should be with him ts call, we should leave the highest peaks of grace, and at a single stride set foot in glory Our sister has heard that call, and has left us for that better land.

You ask me why such removals, when we so much need the noblest examples here? I am bowed down, I could best express myself in tears; but I must refrain, and view it in a clearer light. The Master is gathering the choicest of his flowers. His own dear hands are wreathing the raise into garlands for his kingdom. And when we see that it is the Lord his words recalled, soon calm our spirits dry our tears and takeson. calm our spirits, dry our tears, and take away all murmaring. "Father, I will that they whom all murmaring. "Father, I will that they whom thou hast given me be with me where I am."

Now we understand why the dearest and beet are going. We see in whose hand is held the maynet which attracts them to the skies. One by one they must depart from this low land country to dwell above in the place of the King. for Jesus is drawing them to himself. Our little ones go home, because "He gathereth the lambs in his arms, and carries them in his bosom."

Our young people go home, because "The believed is going in the garden the gathereth." Our young people go home, because "The cloved is come into his garden to gather lilles

And our old folks go home, because "He giveth His beloved rest."

The force that draws them heavenward lies in death of Miss Metzger and shall confine this article to the last sad rites." The the words "I will." It is the centripital energy that is drawing all the family of God toward its own home. And who is he that will hinder the home coming of the chosen ones? As well arrest the marches of the stars in heaven. The saints cannot be kept out of their inheritance; they must rise from their beds of silent clay, for Jesus wills it.

Then let our saintly ones go home if that be the design of our Saviour. Since all comes of divine design of our saviour. Since all comes of divine love and sets forth divine love, let them go to him who loves them. Let divine love fulfill its purpose in bringing many sons and daughters into glory. Comfort yourselves with the thought that you will go to them, you cannot bring them back to you

REV. MR. ROBERTSON'S REMARKS

We cannot bring ourselves to realize, much less to accept, the fact that our sister, so lately in the bloom of perfect womanhood, so full of vigor and sprightliness, so rich in mind and heart and character, so strong in physique, so talented, so accomplished, so successful in past achievement and full of promise for the future, has suddenly gone from our midst; and that to-day her spirit inhabits "the vasty hall of death." God's ways are full of mystery. Had it been left to any of us to predict, still more had it been left to any of us to predict, still more had it been left to us to choose, what was to be, we should never have named such a blow as this. But God is a universal God, taking account of an infinity of things of which we know little or nothing, and so the success or failure of His ways is not to be judged in the light of our lower thoughts and ways. Though we cannot understand, we still may believe, that in some way this mysterious stroke is for the best, and that the day will come that shall declare it. Meanwhile let us know that we are not shut out from the sympathy and compassion of God.

To measure our grief it would be necessary to

To measure our grief it would be necessary to express our appreciation of all the beauty and goodness and truth that once animated this marble form; but were we to succeed in doing this, we should find our sorrow swallowed up in this, we should find our sorrow swallowed up in a feeling of joyful gratitude that for so long a time such a presence graced our earth, and helped to uplift and transfigure our human life. Let not our foolishness dwell rather on the fact that God appoints a day of bereavement to us, than that we by God's award tasted the joy of such a presence for so long.

It is not possible within the limits of a brief for the presence of the large field and the large for the presence of the large field and the large field the presence of the large field and the large field

It is not possible within the limits of a brief word to express our full appriciation of this beau, tiful life, but I do wish to mention particularly the symmetry of it; the equal all-round development of the mind and heart and spirit, of moral nature and artistic faculty. We may know by the witness of this life that it is fully and triumphantly possible for one to possess the artistic sense and temperment in a high degree, and at the same time show in equal measure a balanced judgement and an elevation and and arthe same time snow in equal measure a balanced judgement and an elevation and strength of moral character. Here was one whose devotion to what is good and trae and pure was no less marked than was her devotion to the beautiful. She was one in whom were harmon ously combined the best qualities of the Greek and of the Puritan.

A FRIEND SAYS:

It is impossible to put into words any adequate estimate of Miss Metzger's character and works. She entered largely into people's lives and in varied ways. In every friend, and even too, in every acquaintance, she met some distinctive personal need. And it was this broad, sympathy and loving, devoted service which has called forth from grief stricken friends letters full of the sense of irreparable personal loss -heart-broken letters. Her friends depended upon her for comfort, for good cheer, for entertainment, for advice in times of doubt, for companionship, intellectual and sympathetic, for enthusiasm, and for inspiration. Her love of beauty, and, particularly, ber desire to see beauty expressed in visible form helped to make almost countless form helped to make almost countless homes more homelike. She had an infinite capacity for giving and her life has been a gift of service to pure living and high thinking. and high thinking.

She ked that sense of bamor which invariably accompanies quick intelligence. This with her charming conversational powers made her the merry centre of many social groups, and popular in every society into which her duties called her.

Miss Metzger was an artist. At time when others would have been in doubt and gloom, she found her way to cheerfuiness through her piane and her song. No one can measure the good she did with her music. She had, aside from her ability to do artistic work, the rare power of arousing enthusiasm in her pupils and giving to them knowledge of the value of music in their lives and its large possibilities for them.

Her life was an active one, so much so, that sheseemed never to rest. Even her summers in the homestead, to which she looked forward with girlish delight throughout the winters were full of ac tivities in the interests of others, as many of our townspeople well know.

To be pure, to be strong, to be happy, and still to be human! How near the perfect life! Miss Metzger was all of these-and yet in naming these qualities every friend will feel that the estimate of her character is still a general one and does not express the precious personal relations between themselves

Deceased came to Emporium from Freeport, Pa., about 18 years ago and energetically engaged in business, never knowing a time that he could not flud something to work at. On Feb. 1st, 1861, he was married to Estella Stoddard, eldest daughter of the late Samuel L., and Frances Stoddard, and was always a kind and loving husband, no hardship being too much for him to endure to please his family or friends. Four years ago he associated himself with the Four years ago he associated himself with the firm of Murry & Coppersmith Co., successors to the late Geo. A. Walker, and conducted an ex-tensive business in the hardware, plumbing and coal business, until the 28th of Nov. 1905, when their business was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $9,000. Arrangements had been made to resume their shattered trade, or rather Mr. Oop-persmith had arranged to take the hardware branch, having bargained for the block now occupied by H. S. Lloyd.

occupied by H. S. Lloyd.

In public life Mr. Coppersmith was a Republican and acceptably filled the position of deputy county treasurer for the late C. M. Thomas, in 1899, 1900, 1901, and creditably handled the count business. He was also an active member of ou fire department. Socially he was companion able, gentlemanly and very considerate of the feelings of others. The bereaved family have the sympathy and consoling aid of our citizens in this the hardest of all afflictions to bear—the loss of husband and father.

GILBERT.

Our esteemed citizens, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gilbert, proprietors of the New Warner, were called to their old home at Nunda, N.Y., recently to attend the funeral of Mr. Gilbert's mother. The Mt. Morris Enterprise makes the following reference to the death of the lady: Mrs. Gilbert was the only child of the late John M. Griffith of Oakland, and was born in South Dansville in 1850. Her youth was spent in Oakland, town of Portage, where her father was engaged in the milling business. She was married to Corydon L. Gilbert of Nunda, in 1870, and unto them were born seven children. Outside her own home, among her immediate friends, Mrs. Gilbert's cheerful disposition, kind considerate and unselfish nature, acted considerate and unselfish nature, acted as an inspiration to the despondent and disheartened ones with whom she came in contact. Although her tastes were domestic and she delighted in ministering to the happiness and well being of her family, yet she found time for ex tensive reading, was well informed on matters of general public interests and in sympathy with the beautiful in both

The beautiful flowers that surrounded the casket were emblems of the pure life that had fied—a life wherein noble purpose was but the call to duty well performed.

The funeral was private and held at appartments Mrs. Gilbert has occupied in the Nunda house, last Thursday afternoon, three of her sous acted as pall bearers and the burial was at the burial

A Jolly Fishing Party.

Nelson H. Sizer and H. D. Burlingame, of Altoona, Pa., two former Cameron county gentleman, accompanied by J. C. Hasper and wife, Bellefonte; Wm. Boyce and wife, Wenterburn; Dorsey Griffith, Curwensville; E. E. Sanford and son, Altoona, Pa., camposed a jolly fishing party who camped on Parker Run, near Gardeau for several days and from reports they must have had an enjoyable outing. Althoug the water was very low for good fishing, old time anglers like "Nelt" and Homer don't stop at low water, hence the party had plenty of trout, pure mountain water, fresh milk and plenty of good things to eat. A number of our people visited the camp during the stay of the party and "Nelt" got the credit of being related to all of them. Come again friends.

Up-to-Date Livery.

Fred D. Logan has made a great improvement in his Broad street livery, sales and boarding stables, having purchased two lots on the south side of his property and erected an addition 22x80 feet. He now has the largest and best appointed livery in this section. The main building for stable use is now 24x155, with a carriage department 22x80 and an office 24x14. Fred is certainly entitled to credit for his enterprise. May he continue to prosper and be happy.

Fatal Accident.

Edward Donner, aged about 26, em ployed as brakeman on the middle division of P. & E., railroad met with a fatal accident last Saturday evening, at this place, while coupling cars. The unfortunate young man was crushed between two cars and died within a few minutes. Undertaker LaBar prepared the remains and shipped them to Renovo same night. The young man leaves a young wife at Renovo to mourn his untimely death.

A Sure Winner.

Judge LaBar's candidacy for Associate Judge is attracting a favorable consideration at the hands of the voters. His election is daily growing with the people, who appreciate the fact that he is closely ailied with the best interests of our county; is a heavy tax-payer and invests his means to build up his home county.

Real Estate Changes.

MB. CLARENCE J. MILLER and Market Market Market M. E. Parsonage. Sinnamahoning, Thursday, July 5th. by the Rev. W. F. D. Noble. The young couple took the morning train at Huntley without informing their relatives or friends of their intentions, leaving the impression that they were gening to visit friends in Williamsport. The ceremony was performed quietts with only the contracting parties and witnesses being present. The happy pair took train No. 3 for Erie, crossed the lake to Buffalo, visiting Niagara Falls and other places of interest, returning home Saturday evening.

Miss Edna is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Collins and a niem of County Supt, Miss Mattie M. Collian and is a very popular and estimable young lady. Mr. Miller is too well known in Cameron county to be interested the is a gentleman in every respect and an earnest church worket is very prominent in local politics and at present is overseer of the poor; also secretary of the school board of his district; having served in all township offices at different times with general satisfaction.

The young couple will reside im Huntley.

According to the time-honored one tom, the may friends of the bride and groom met them at the station on their return Saturday evening and contributed the usual amount of rice and slippers.
