Hunting for Trouble.

I've lived in California 20 years, and am still hunting for trouble in the way of burns, sores, wounds, boils, cuts, sprains, or a case of piles that Bucklen's Arnica Salve won't quickly cure.

Some love affairs end at the altar—but the majority never get that far.

A Valuable Lesson.

"Six years ago I learned a valuable lesson," writes John Pleasant, of Magnolia, Ind. "I then began taking Dr. King's New Life Pills, and the longer I take them the better I find them."

Rising From the Grave.

A prominent manufacturer, Wm. A. Feltwell, of Lucoma, N. C., relates a most remarkable experience. He says: "After taking less than three bottles of Electric Bitters, I feel like one rising from the grave. My trouble is Bright's disease, in the Diabetes stage. I fully believe Electric Bitters will cure me permanently, for it has already stopped the liver and bladder complications which have troubled me for years." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price only 50c.

Itching Piles.

If you are acquainted with anyone who is troubled with this distressing ailment, you can do him no greater favor than to tell him to try Chamberlain's Salve. It gives instant relief. Common Colds are the Causes of Many Serious Diseases

Physicians who have gained a national reputation as analysts of the cause of various diseases, claim that if catching cold could be avoided a long list of dangerous ailments would never be heard of. Every one knows that pneumonia and consumption originates from a cold, and chronic catarrh, bronchitis, and all throat and lung trouble are aggravated and rendered more serious by each fresh attack. Do not risk your life or take chances when you have a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure it before these diseases develop. This remedy contains no opium, morphine or other harmful drug and has thirty years of reputation back of it, gained by its cures under every condition. For sale by L. Taggart, J. E. Smith, Sterling Run; Crum Bros., Sinnaamahoning.

Stuart Has 'Em Guessing.

People are wondering what Gov. Edwin S. Stuart is going to do with the numerous measures carrying large appropriations of money when they reach him. Some of these bills have merit, while a great many have not. Mr. Beidleman, of Dauphin, introduced a bill adding $200 a year to the salaries of all state employees receiving less than $2,000 a year. The proposed increase would affect more than 400 office holders. Those interested in the bill have been trying to get the governor to commit himself before it reaches him. Gov. Stuart, however, has steadfastly refused to go on record regarding this or any other bill before it comes to him for his approval.

Gov. Stuart is not very much in favor of boosting salaries or creating new positions. He would like to see the clerk who draws small wages get more money, for it is generally the underpaid clerk who does the most work. But the trouble is there are so many demands made for the state's money that it is hard to draw the line when it comes to remedying matters. The clerks who are back of the bill had Mr. Beidleman present it because he is a resident of Harrisburg and knows how much work the men on capital hill are required to do for their money.

Bill to Tax Railroads.

The bill introduced in the senate by Mr. Wilbert, of Allegheny, empowering cities to tax the real and personal property of railroads, street railroads, telegraph, telephone, water, gas, electric light, heat and public utility companies is likely to be amended so as to include all boroughs and townships. It is contended that the boroughs and townships need the revenue to be derived from such taxation and are just as much entitled to it as are the cities. This is a very important bill and is likely to meet with the combined opposition of all corporations.

Local option advocates have been busy at Harrisburg. They are working very hard to secure the passage of their bill. It is hard to predict what success the measure will have, but it is certain to cause many a headache before many days. The opponents of the bill are working just as hard to keep it within the committee. Petitions begging the legislature to pass the bill come pouring in and there is no doubt that with many members they will have considerable effect. You can't always tell from what a member says just how he is going to vote, and should there be a stampede it is doubtful if anything could defeat the measure.

That Constitutional Convention.

Sentiment seems to be growing in favor of a constitutional convention. The bill introduced by Senator Langfit providing for a vote to be taken on the question is regarded as a very fair one. By putting the question up to the people the election will cost nothing, as it is to be held on the regular election day. Then if the people decide that a constitutional convention is necessary the cost of the convention will be borne by the state and will not be excessive. In fact, it is believed that if it should be decided in convention to have but one election a year instead of two, the state would save more in one year than the expense of the convention would be. Gov. Stuart intimated very strongly that something should be done toward framing a new constitution for the state, and there is no doubt that he would sign the bill if it reaches him.

Phillips Has Scheme.

A great lot of illegally drawn bills have been introduced in the legislature. Some of them may reach the governor. Then it will be his business to determine their legality or illegality. Of course his attorney general will have to bear the brunt of this work. Senator Phillips, of New Castle, is the author of a plan to create a legislative reference bureau. The scheme is in practical working order in Wisconsin, and many would like to try it here in Pennsylvania. According to the bill which Senator Phillips is preparing, the duties of the bureau will be to pass upon the constitutional questions involved in the legislation. The bureau also will be available for drafting bills. Members are obliged to bear this expense themselves at present. Another idea is to use the card system for indexing the vast collection of information which would be collected by such a bureau. In this way the Pennsylvania legislature would be in touch with what other states are doing.

Would Save Governor.

It is Senator Phillips' idea to throw such safeguards about the bureau as will keep it entirely out of politics. If this cannot be done the bureau will be of little value. According to the vetoes of former Gov. Samuel W. Pennypacker, many bills passed by the last legislature were killed by him because of their unconstitutionality. The bureau would be expected to save the governor much trouble in this respect.

It now looks as if the capitol investigating commission would not complete its work during the present session of the legislature. The members of the commission are beginning to see the vastness of their work, and it is a safe guess that they will not be through with it until late next fall. They are not likely to work during the summer months, but from present indications they will have several months' work to do after the legislature adjourns. It may be possible that toward the close of the session they will ask the legislature to permit them to make their report to the governor.

BAN Q. BARTON.

Where Angels Fear to Tread.

A company of young American tourists visited the home of Beethoven in Bonn and were unrestrained in their expressions of wonder, admiration and approval of the room where the master had lived and worked. They asked many questions about Beethoven, and finally one young lady seated herself at his piano and proceeded, with true American confidence, to play the "Moonlight Sonata." Beethoven's own work, in his own room, on his own piano. Such an interesting combination!

The old caretaker stood there, stern and silent. When the performance was over the young lady turned to the old man and said:

"I suppose many musicians have been here and have played on this instrument?" "Paderewski was here once, madame!" "Ah!" she sighed. "But," continued the faithful guardian, "when some one urged him to play on Beethoven's piano he said, 'No; I am not worthy.'"

When the Disease Let Go.

An old man was just recovering from an operation, and as he lay regaining consciousness he heard the doctor say to a nurse regarding some powders to be given him, "If one every hour is too much give him a half one every half hour." The old gentleman raised himself up on his elbow and said: "Say, doc, that reminds me of a man that had a Newfoundland dog. His wife got so tired of having him (the dog, not the man) track up the floors and porches that finally she made her husband take the dog to town and sell him. That afternoon he returned radiant. 'Well,' he said, 'I've sold him for $25.' 'Good!' cried his wife. 'I can get that hat now.' 'But,' continued the man, 'I bought two puppies with the money.' The doctor looked at the nurse and said: "I think he'll recover." P. S.—He did.—Judge.

Sacred Monkeys of India.

In "Living Animals of the World" some curious stories are told about the habits and characteristics of the monkey tribes. It seems that the entellus monkey is the most sacred of all in India. It is gray above and nutty brown below, long legged and active, a thief and an impudent robber. In one of the Indian cities they became such a nuisance that the faithful determined to catch and send away some hundreds. This was done, and the holy monkeys were deported in covered carts and released many miles off. But the monkeys were too clever. Having thoroughly enjoyed their ride, they refused to part with the carts and, hopping and grinning, came leaping all the way back beside them to the city, grateful for their outing. One city obtained leave to kill the monkeys, but the next city then sued them for "killing their deceased ancestors."

Ways of the Flying Fish.

Flying fish swim in shoals varying in number from a dozen to a hundred or more. They often leave the water at once, darting through the air in the same direction for 200 yards or more, and then descend to the water quickly, rising again and then renewing their flight. Sometimes the dolphin may be seen in rapid pursuit, taking great leaps out of the water and gaining up on his prey, which take shorter and shorter flights, vainly trying to escape, until they sink exhausted. Sometimes the larger sea birds catch flying fish in the air. The question whether the flying fish use their fins at all as wings is not fully decided. The power of flight is limited to the time the fins remain moist.

How Birds' Nests Are Made Round.

The little abandoned nest had fallen from the tree. The nature student lifted it from the ground. "How round it is," he said. "No cup rim could be rounder. Don't you wonder how the bird, with neither rule nor compass, can make her nest so round? Well, she does it easily. She builds the nest about her breast, turning round and round in it, and its circular character comes spontaneously and inevitably. The circle is found everywhere in the buildings of the lower animals. The straight line, on the other hand, they can never achieve."

Vulgar Fractions.

Everything that Bobby learned at school he endeavored to apply in his daily life and walk. When his mother asked him if one of his new friends was an only child Bobby looked wise and triumphant. "He's got just one sister," said Bobby. "He tried to catch me when he told me he had two half sisters, but I guess I know enough fractions for that!"—Youth's Companion.

The Reason For It.

"No," said the imberbered person, "when I want financial assistance I go to strangers. I do not ask friends or relatives." "Well," answered the logical man, "maybe that's the best way. Friends and relatives are in a position to keep posted on a man's record."—Washington Star.

Man's Love For Woman.

"If a man loves a woman for her looks he will love her for five years. If he loves her mind he will love her for ten years. If he loves her ways he will love her forever." And every woman believes when she marries that her lover loves her ways.

LaGrippe, LaGrippe.

The following lines were penned by Mr. M. E. Taylor, of Shippen township:

Oh why does the doctors hurry so, Oh where with their grips are they going to; Night and day its just the same, Up and down on every street, Dealing dose to all they meet, Regards for neither rank or name.

Quinine Pills, does just the same, To Tommy, Call or Mary Jane, And still the cuff comes in, Ho! central! Give me Smith or Bardwell, To ease this everlasting head swell, Or I'm a goner sure as sin.

They visit homes of stately peers, Where halls ablaze with chandeliers, And paintings rich on frescoed walls, Broad driveways to from stall to street, Ring hoof beat clear from charger feet, And servants wait in easy call.

When next he's seen with hurrying feet, Far different scenes our visions greet, Midst lower class in tenet den, Some bear their pain with prayerful lip, Some blame their luck and curses it, Of such the life of common men.

Oh, mighty monstrous scourge of death, That fans the world with poisoned breath, And few their strangling clutch escape, As far and near from sea to sea, All mankind show their dread of thee, And suffering victim helplessly wait.

Curs't be thy name for ever more, An alien pest from Russian shore, Transported here by foreign ship, Better far that bark was lost, With all on board than to have crossed, Thy hated germ LaGrippe, LaGrippe.

KEYSTONE POWDER MFG. Co. Emporium, Pa., August 1st, 1903.

Andrew Jackson's Education.

During each winter for two or three years after he had reached the age of seven Andrew Jackson was sent to the old field school of a Mr. Branch. After this he attended the select school which a Presbyterian preacher, the Rev. Dr. David Humphreys, taught in the Waxhaw settlement. He appears to have been going to this higher school in the spring of 1780, when the inroad of Tarleton created a panic in that portion of the Carolinas. At some later period of his youth he is said to have attended the old Queen college or seminary at Charlotte a couple of terms, but the time is not definitely known.

As to education, therefore, it may be safely stated that Andrew Jackson enjoyed much more than the ordinary advantage of a backwoods boys of his time. At the age of ten he had become so good a reader that he was often chosen to read the newspaper to the assembled neighbors, and he remembered with pride in after years that he had thus had the honor of "reading out loud" the Declaration of Independence upon its arrival in the Waxhaws. For a lad of ten this was, indeed, something to remember with honest pride.—Thomas E. Watson in Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine.

Caustic.

Recently a wearied looking little mother, carrying a small baby, boarded a street car and took a seat next to two men who were earnestly engaged in conversation. Neither of the men was very handsome, and it must have required considerable nerve on their part to hand out their photographs among their friends unless the pictures had been previously retouched with sandpaper. In a few minutes the baby began to cry with a reliable yelp that could be heard above the din of the street babble for half a block, and, with a grumpy glance at the youngster, one of the men arose and peevishly remarked to his pal:

"I think we had better sit over here, Jim."

This ungallant act plainly embarrassed the little mother, but she was equal to the occasion.

"It won't do a bit of good to change your seats, gentlemen," said she in a finely sarcastic voice. "The baby can see you quite as plainly over there as he could here."

L. T. COOPER.

We wish to call the attention of the public to a to a series of "short talks" by L. T. Cooper that are to be published in this paper.

The Cooper medicines have made a remarkable record in the leading cities of the United States during the past two years and young Mr. Cooper has been the subject of much newspaper comment.

Mr. Cooper has met and talked with thousands of sick people in his visits to almost every large city in the country.

He is noted as a man of very few words and tells briefly in these articles what his preparations are doing for sick people and why they have been successful wherever introduced.

Mr. Cooper's theory is that one half of all human ills is caused by stomach trouble, and the wonderful success of his preparations in the treatment of stomach disorders, kidney and liver complaints, rheumatism, etc., seems to have proven this claim.

Some time ago we secured the agency for these celebrated medicines. We have been gratified by the extreme satisfaction of those who have purchased them from us and advise every one to read these "short talks" as they are full of terse, common sense.
