WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, March 9, 1907.

Now that Congress is out of the way speculation has begun to turn on the next Presidential election. It is almost a certainty that President Roossvelt will name the next Republican candidate without appearing to do so. Intimate friends of the President say that his first choice for the position would be Secretary of State Root, but unless something unexpected happens, he will not be a candidate for the nomination any more than will the President himself. Mr. Root has just announced his disinclination for the Presidential chair in very positive terms, and in the dislike of Washington official life he more than has the support of Mrs. Root, who unlike many women in the cabinet circle has no social ambitions that she can see a way of gratifying at the Capital.

It is said that next to Secretary Root, the President's choice personally would be for Secretary Taft. He has as good as endorsed the Taft boom, and the fact that the Secretary has refused the Supreme Judgeship, which he might have had at any time in the past year, indicates that he thinks there may be things doing in 1908. There is one thing certain, and that is that the President will come nearer nominating his successor than any other President who has ever held office. Further, he does not care so much about the man personally as he does about having someone in office who will follow the line of policy that he has mapped out. It may be that there will be no apparent pressure from the President when the time of nomination comes around, but it is accepted by the shrewdest politicians in the party that it would be impolite if not impossible to nominate a man to whom the President was actively opposed.

LABOR TO TRY AGAIN

To Secure Passage of Bill Abolishing the Obnoxious State Constabulary.

MEMBERS ARE MUCH ALARMED

Are Bound to Make Enemies No Mat ter Which Way They Vote on This Question-McCord Senatorial Nomi nation Bill Sure to Pass.

Harrisburg, Pa. - Encouraged by the almost successful battle to place the Garner bill repealing the state police act upon the calendar, the labor leaders of the house have served no tice that they have only begun their fight. The resolution to place Gar ner's measure upon the calendar was defeated by the small majority of four votes. Now the labor people say that they propose bringing one of the other bills repealing the constabulary act out of the committee on military af fairs. There are two such measures before this committee, and the labor people are giving the members of the committee no end of trouble concern ing them.

administration people and others who favor the state constabu lary hold that the state policemen have been doing good work or there would not be such insistent endeavo to abolish them on the part of the labor people. They contend that the repealer would never get through the house, and that if it did the senate certainly would throttle it.

It is certain that some of the mem bers who made speeches in support of the Garner measure did so to please their constituents, or a portion of them, but would hesitate a long time before they would vote for abolishing state constabulary. Some of these legislators feel better now that the have gotten those speeches out of their systems but the fear that they may yet have to go on record on this subject is making them very uneasy.

Will Stand No Dodging. The labor people say there were enough of their representatives ab sent from the house at the time the vote was taken on the Garner resolution to have passed it had they been present. They at once got to work upon the members of the military committee to bring out one of the repealers.

The labor people have a lot of other bills in committees and they have no-tified the respective chairmen of these committees that they will stand for no "monkey business" with these measures. They want them brought out of committees and declare that if they are to be defeated they want them defeated in the open, on the floor of the hall of the house. These bills pertain to child labor, prison work, allowing foreigners to carry firearms, regulating work in bitumin-ous coal mines, and a score or more other measures relating directly to the interests of labor.

Holy horrors! Legislators went to look into the manner in which cor-porations do business. These law-makers actually desire to investigate the methods of these soulless concerns. For that is exactly the meaning of a resolution introduced in the house the other day by Jesse F. Bluestone of Pittsburg. A similar resolution was introduced recently in the Senate by Senator Elliott Rodgers of Allegheny. It provides that a commission be ap pointed to investigate the auditor gen eral's department. The Bluestone measure provides for a commission of two senators and three representatives with power to examine books and witnesses for the purpose of ascertaining if there has been negli-gence in the collection of taxes from trust companies, railroads and other

Rodgers Resolution Sleeping. Such authority, if granted, would give everybody a chance to "look in." would show up some corporations and their method of doing business in a way that would be very objectionable to the corporations. And later it might mean that they would be required to separate themselves from a good deal more money annually to the state than they have been doing. The resolution carries with it an appropriation of $5,000 to defray expenses. Rodgers resolution was introduced in the senate. It was promptly put to sleep in committee for it has never been heard of again. It is rumored that Rodgers inspired the Bluestone resolution, thinking that if the Blue stone resolution could get through the house it would be harder to knock it out or smother it in the senate.

This legislature purposes doing kindly things for the old soldiers. A bill has been introduced by Mr. Sny-der of Schuylkill exempting soldiers who served in the Civil War from payment of tax upon homesteads and occupation tax except for state and county purposes. The senate passed finally the bill allowing old soldiers pensions of $5 to $10 a month, according to their terms of service.

McCord Bill May Pass. Charitable institutions are to be given closer inspection hereafter. A bill introduced in the house by Mr. Kiess of Lycoming provides that the state board of charities shall be authorized to name two assistant general agents who shall examine all in-stitutions receiving state aid and report their condition to the board of charities.

The McCord bill to place the selection of United States senators in the hands of the people bids fair to be come a law. It is well advanced or the house calendar and has behind it every member of the elections com mittee, it having been reported ou unanimously. There could be no more conclusive evidence that the legisla ture is unbossed if it passes this bill Its passage will eliminate a very bac feature connected with the presen system of electing senators wherein the people have no voice whatever.

Under the present method of electing senators the legislators, in casting their ballots, are supposed to carr; out the wishes of the constituents, bu temptation comes to the best of me and,unfettered by any form of instruc tions, they have often gone contrary to the wishes of the people. The passage of the McCord bill will en tirely eliminate commercial dealing: for senatorial votes. It will likewise put an end to combinations formed for senatorial battles. The presiding officers of both houses and the Repub lican and Democratic floor leaders ar all for the bill, and there is scarcely a question that it will go through. It it passes there is no doubt that the governor will sign it. It is a demo eratic measure, pure and simple, and no reasonable objection can brought against it. This method selecting United States senators is it vogue in many states of the Union and is fast growing in popularity.

Fun for the Lawmakers.

The members of the house had a lot of fun killing the teachers' pen sion bill on second reading. In apparently good faith and with sober mien Representative Dunsmore of Tioga offered an amendment to the bill providing that not only teachers but all persons who had reached the age of 70 years and who were good and faithful citizens of the common wealth should be made eligible to the pension of $150 a year which the bil provided. Objection was made to this on the ground that a woman could not be made to acknowledge her age after she had passed 60, but the house accepted the amendment amid laugh ter and cheers. The house also adopt ed with a whoop an amendment offered by Mr. Marvin of Pike pro viding that instead of teaching 30 years, as provided by the bill, teach ers should serve 75 years before be coming eligible for a pension. Ther the bill and amendments fell.

Roads Bill Nearly Killed. The Moore resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to provide for a $25,000,000 bond issue for road improvement almost lost its life in committee. The committee took a vote upon it and decided to report it out negatively. Some members thought that it meant that $25,000,000 was to be paid out of the state treas ury and that this was too much money to be spent at one time. The fact is they did not know what they were voting for. When Representa-tive Moore of Allegheny learned that his bill had been killed he got busy and had the committee reconsider its action. Then the committee decided to report it out favorably, which was

There is much likelihood that the bill will become a law. Then the proposition must have the approval of a majority of the electors of the state and of the next legislature before the bonds may be issued. The advocates of the measure hold that it is proper and just that posterity should help to pay for road improvement in the state, for the improvement is to be a permanent one, and will be enjoyed by future generations. Under the most favorable circumstances it will be several years before the work can

Very Busy Session.

That this has been the busiest legislature this state ever has had is evident from the activity displayed on every hand. The committee work thus far has been tremendous. Many hearings, both public and private, have been held and more are to come Several important investigations are under way and several more are to be undertaken. Formerly there used to be a cessation in the introduction of new bills after the session had been a few weeks old, but not so this time. New bills keep pouring in daily. The committee on rules has not even considered the question of fixing a time when the introduction of new bills must cease. Nor has the com-mittee deemed it wise to consider a time for final adjournment. The fact is there is enough business in hand and in prospect to keep the members engaged until June or July even by holding two sessions daily There are certain members of the legislature who have taken a grea liking to their work. They make a fight against adjournment no matter when the date is fixed. They enjoy making laws and they would rather hear themselves making speeches in the senate and house chambers than anything else.

Talk of Penitentiary. The legislative inquiry into the capitol building has begun at last. Members of the investigating committee have a great quantity of evidence collected and some big sensations are promised. In brief, if the probers are able to prove what they have set out to do they will land several gentlemen high up in the social and commercial world in the penitentiary by the time sley get through with the inquiry.

The bill which passed the senate appropriating $1,600,000 for the capitol park extension may also pass the house, but the governor likely will As matters stand now this legislature will appropriate for various purposes for the next two years about $18,000,000 more than was ap-propriated at the session of 1905. New Coods Arriving Every day.

The One and the Naught. Oliver Wendell Holmes once sent two poetical letters to the "postoffice" of an Episcopal fair at Pittsfield, Mass. In one of them the first stanza was:

Fair lady, whosoever thou art, Turn this poor leaf with tenderest care And hush, oh, hush, thy beating heart. The one thou lovest will be there.

On turning the "poor leaf" there was found a dollar bill, with some verses

Fair lady, lift thine eyes and tell
If this is not a truthful letter.
This is the one (1) thou loveth well,
And naught (0) can make thee love it better (10).

Occultism.

It is noteworthy that supernatural ism prevailed just as strongly at the other side of the globe among the ab origines of the new world. The coming of the Spaniards had been prophesied to the Mexicans by their caciques, and the prophecies were sung amid loud lamentations at their festivals.—London Onlooker

Plaster of Paris Bananas.

lutely unfit for food hang out in front of the wholesale produce commission houses. Some of them have remained there until they have grown rusty with

"Couldn't get a finer looking bunch than that," said one of the dealers the other day, "even if it is plaster of paris. We used to put out the real article for a sign, but the peddlers who came down here had a way of pulling one or two out of the bunch that hap-pened to be hanging there on the hook. The small boys, too, had a way of making a grab for a banana or two. By the time the bunch was on duty under the awning for an hour it was no longer presentable to the aesthetic sense. So we began to cultivate the make believe article, which is not quite so palatable, but just as good for Advertising. And even at that some youngster in his haste will grab plaster of paris fruit and get away with it before he realizes that he has made off with something bad for his digestion."—New York Herald.

A Meal of Locusts.

In the West Indies the negroes eat freely of the big grub found in palm trees. The fat, white morsel, which they call "grugru," is not cooked or salted. The aborigines of Australia live almost entirely on a butterfly known as the bugong. The flies appear in batches on the rocks, and the natives smother them with smoke from fires built below. It is said that a Hottentot, with an appetite made sharp by the simple life, can devour 300 fat locusts at a sitting and feel better satisfied than if he had paid $8 for a ten course dinner. The Arabs dry the locourse dinner. The Arabs di, custs and pulverize them into flour for breadmaking purposes. The Moors make a stew of them, and after boiling in water for a few minutes they are eaten with salt, pepper and vinegar. The locusts found in Central Africa are enormous, and the native negroes cut them in two and fry them in fat and find them not only appetizing, but nourishing. A flight of these big lo-custs is a matter of tribal thanksgiv-

Snakes With Two Heads.

I have lately been assured by more than one of my friends that they have seen in northern India snakes with two heads—i. e., without a tail, but with a second and perfectly formed head in the place where the tail ought to be. They assure me that there are specimens in northern India museums and that these freaks of nature are frequently found by the natives. The rider is added that the natives declare that each head lives and performs ac-tive service for six months in the year in turn. The snakes are said to grow to about three feet in length. I myself have killed a small snake with two heads, but these were both at the same end of the reptile, a very different matter, which is, I believe, a well known freak and in the same category with two headed calves.-Pioneer.

Man and His Dress. The well dressed man wears clothes

The well dressed man wears clothes that no one ever notices; at business, except in the very warmest weather, usually dark. No one ever notices clean linen, while linen soiled ever so slightly is very conspicuous. No one ever notices a hat unless it is of ultra shape, dirty or shabby. No one ever notices shoes unless they are loud or need blacking or are run down at the heels or shabby. No one ever notices clean finger nails, while those needing attention are always conspicuous. The man should not be lost sight of by the conspicuousness of his clothes, either from being overdressed or shabbily dressed.-Batten's Wedge.
