Mr. and Mrs. O. R. McCool, of Driftwood, transacted business in town Tuesday.

The Cozy Corner Club were entertained by Miss Mulcahey, sixth street, yesterday afternoon.

G. W. Sterner and wife, of Austin, Pa., are guests of Mrs. Susan Sterner and family, on Broad street.

W. S. Walker and son Leon, of Austin, visited in Emporium yesterday, the former attending Bank meeting.

The Pennsy R. R. Co., are making large numbers of arrests along the line of P. & E., hoping to get the Renovo murderer.

Elias Cramer yesterday moved his household goods to Williamsport. His wife and daughter will reside at Williamsport, but Mr. Cramer will remain here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Thompson returned from Buffalo last Friday night. "Walt" has been suffering with pleurisy for some days and was compelled to close his shop on Saturday.

Arthur V. Orton and Geo. Snowden, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending a few weeks in Emporium, guests of John H. Day and wife. The first named gentleman is brother of Mrs. Day.

Mrs. E. M. Hurteau has gone to Marion, S. C., to spend the winter, accompanying her son-in-law, Mr. J. L. Wheeler, last Sunday. He met her at Buffalo on his return from Canada silver mines.

Mrs. E. F. Highland, nee Lottie Mosier, of Denver, Col., is guest of her sister, Ida Hamilton, at her residence East Fourth street. Mrs. Highland, who will be pleasantly remembered by many of our citizens, has been visiting in New York city.

Mrs. Frank H. Bentley (nee Anna Quigley) and little daughter of Williamsport came up on Tuesday to visit her parents, sister and brother for a few weeks. Her husband is spending a few weeks with a hunting party in Maine. Uncle John is kept busy now.

Mrs. Jacob Zerfah and little daughter Margaret, of Ridgway, are visiting in Emporium, guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Zwald, West Fifth street. Both ladies were business callers at the Press office on Monday, renewing the subscription on the first named lady's Press.

Mr. C. R. Wooley, who resides on Broad street, was a Press visitor last week and carried away receipts for his own paper and two others, sent to his father and father-in-law in New Jersey, so they would know what was doing up among the Pennsylvania mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Woolley since they came to Emporium, Mr. W. being in the employ of Emporium Powder Co., have made many friends.

W. H. VanWert and family left Emporium on Tuesday for Sunamahon where Mr. VanWert is employed as Supt. of the Powder Company at that place. The family have resided here for many years and made many friends, who dislike to have them leave. They sold their Fifth street house and lot to Charles Kelley, who has for years been a faithful employe of Emporium Milling Co.

Squire M. M. Larrabee attended United States Court, at Scranton, last week, as a juror. He enjoyed his visit to Scranton.

Congressman C. F. Barclay visited in town this morning. He met his brother George, who was coming east from Washington State, on noon flyer.

The Social Swim.

HALLOW'EEN PARTY.
Mrs. C. M. Thomas and Miss Maud Thomas gave a very unique Halloween Whist yesterday afternoon to a party of lady friends about 25 in number. The residence was darkened and illuminated with candles, pumpkins and the rooms decorated with black cats, "spooks," which gave it the appearance of a genuine Hollow'een scene as pictured in olden times. The score cards and favors were miniature pumpkins. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. H. H. Mullin, second to Mrs. Ella Olmsted. The ladies entertain another party of ladies this afternoon.

AFTERNOON WHIST.
Mrs. Jasper Harris pleasantly entertained about forty lady friends Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, assisted by her aunt, Mrs. J. N. Harris of Olean, N. Y. Both occasions were happy events and the popular hostess was congratulated. The prizes awarded were: First score—first prize, Mrs. Lizzie Hinkle; second, Mrs. Frank Shives; booby, Mrs. E. E. Forbes. Second score—first prize, Mrs. Leon Rex Felt; second, Mrs. R. K. Mickey; booby, Miss Clearwater. The favors at each party were china cups and saucers.

Welcome Guest Club.
The first anniversary of the welcome Guest Club was held at the comfortable residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Graham, West Fifth street, last Saturday evening and a pleasing literary program rendered by those present, members of the Club, and a marked improvement was noted by the members, from the time the Club was organized. The officers of the Club are as follows: Mrs. W. H. Brady, president; Mrs. Henry W. Graham, chaplain; Miss Annetta Dorsey, secretary; Miss Emily Dorsey, teller. Three new members were enrolled during the evening. An elaborate supper was served and a jolly good time enjoyed by all.

Don't fail to see The Toymakers.
This is truly a "Musical Absurdity" full of fun from start to finish and has twenty-six new catchy songs that are full of tune and melody. We want to be amused and here we have it as "The Toymakers" has drawn full houses every night. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" was written by the same author and he also wrote the play for "The Toymakers" as well as the book which everyone is now reading. Charles Felton Pidgin is truly a versatile genius, for besides writing book plays, he is Chief of the Bureau of Statistics in Massachusetts. At Emporium Opera House, Friday evening, Nov. 1st.

Discourage the Tariff Tinkerers.
If there is one principle of the Republican Party that is regarded as supremely vital by the overwhelming majority of the people of Pennsylvania, it is the protective tariff. The "Iowa idea" of tariff readjustment cannot obtain a foothold in this State, save among a few visionaries and misguided theorists who have no adequate conception of the blessings conferred upon the industries of the Commonwealth, and through them upon the people, by the policy of protection to labor.

Chairman W. R. Andrews, of the Republican State Committee, has, in no uncertain tones, sounded the call to duty for all the Republicans of the Commonwealth. That duty is to rally in their might at the polls on election day—November 5—and demonstrate beyond all cavil, that the grand old Keystone State is still loyal and unswerving in her tariff allegiance. The industrial interests of Pennsylvania cannot contemplate with severity any movement which has tariff changing as its object, and the voters should fully realize that they must rally to the support of these interests and throw the influence of the State in the scale against revenue revision.

The would-be tariff tinkerers are endeavoring to promulgate their theory throughout the Union, to the end that they may control a sufficient number of delegates in the Republican National Convention next year, to have a plank incorporated in the platform of that body, pledging the party to revision of the tariff. Here in Pennsylvania this should be stubbornly resisted. The people of this State want no tariff revision. The manufacturers, the coal and oil operators, and the textile workers and the miners, are united against any changes in the tariff schedules, and this sentiment is shared by all classes of business and professional men and capitalists as well as by all sorts and conditions of working men and working women.

It requires no marvellous intellectual capacity, neither is the gift of prophecy necessary for a Pennsylvanian to foresee what would occur if the whole subject of the tariff should be thrown open for public discussion and the various schedules subjected to the reckless criticism of those who call themselves revisionists. Business demoralization would be the inevitable result; trade stagnation could not be avoided during the time consumed in the discussion and rearrangement of the schedules and the confusion that would ensue would have a disastrous and far-reaching effect, which could not fail to be felt long after a settlement would have been reached by Congress.

In Pennsylvania the unmistakable sentiment is in favor of letting the tariff alone. The people of this State are "stand patters" of the most strenuous type and Chairman Andrews speaks for them eloquently and well in enunciating that wholesome and beneficial policy. When the sixty-eight delegates of Pennsylvania shall confront the tariff tinkerers in the Republican National Convention next year, they should be in a position to vigorously declare that the Keystone State has spoken in absolute condemnation of the revision idea. And the emphasis of their declaration, with the full authority to pronounce it, should be plainly manifest in a rousing majority for the Republican candidate for State Treasurer on Nov. 5.

SOUNDING A WARNING

Republicans Cautioned of Danger in Over-Confidence.

MUST GET OUT THE VOTE

Even a Reduction in the Majority Will Be Hailed as a Victory by the Enemies of the Party of Protection.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 29. Predictions of a sweeping victory for the Republican party in Pennsylvania at next Tuesday's election are all based upon reports from the various counties that the rank and file of the organization is going to get out a large percentage of the Republican vote.

Much will depend, however, upon the activity of the party vigilantes, and warning messages are being sent out from Philadelphia headquarters to leave nothing undone to get Republicans to the polls.

While former independents are proclaiming their loyalty to the Republican nominee, the party leaders appreciate the danger that lurks in the feeling of security that exists among Republican committeemen. They realize that the Democrats are looking forward confidently to next year's national election and are going to poll a big vote to encourage the members of their party to line up for the coming presidential contest.

No State "Issues" This Year.
There have been absolutely no state "issues" developed by the present campaign in Pennsylvania.

Governor Stuart's administration, following the action of the Republican majority in the legislature, brought about indictments in the state capitol cases and removed that issue from the political canvass, and the record of John O. Sheatz in public and private life prevented criticism of the Republican candidate from the outset of the campaign.

Upon every hand, however, the political contest in this state has been regarded as the skirmish of next year's presidential battle, and Republicans familiar with the situation are concerned regarding the result of the balloting on Tuesday next.

They are fearful that a feeling of over-confidence will lead to a laxity among the party workers and that proper efforts will not be put forth to get the voters to the polls.

"If Pennsylvania is to take her proper place at the head of the procession of Republican states on Tuesday next," said Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee today, "the Republican voters must be alert. They must go to the polls and register their continued adherence to the principles and policies of the party, and by so doing emphasize the sentiment of their great state in favor of the party of progress and prosperity. The Democrats are going to put their best efforts into the work of getting their men out to vote, and in order that they may record one of their old-time ringing majorities, the Republicans must be wide awake and active from the hour of the opening of the polls until the last ballot shall be deposited. They must take nothing for granted, but act upon the principle that a battle is never won until it is over and the enemy is captured or routed.

"Pennsylvania is the greatest industrial state in the Union, and Democratic triumph, which a reduced Republican majority would mean, would be disastrous to wage earners and capitalists alike.

Must Not Falter.
"If Pennsylvania should falter on Tuesday next, the enemies of the protective tariff would have reason to be elated, and they would herald the result of the election as an indication that the so-called tariff reformers are growing in strength in our state, and that the 'Iowa idea' for a scaling down of the tariff is spreading even into Pennsylvania, the very citadel of protection.

"The consequence of such a state of affairs would be illustrated by a cessation of all industrial enterprises within our borders, with the inevitable result that the workingman and the farmer, the mechanics and the mill owners would in the end bear the brunt of the disaster.

"I sincerely trust that the Republican voters of Pennsylvania will not be deceived by those who affect to see no danger in Republican indifference, but that they will go to work at once and discharge their full duty to the party and to their state."
