Behind the Screen.

At a particularly dainty little restaurant a lady with a sense of humor chooses the seat nearest the serving room, from which vantage point she notes and records, somewhat after the manner of Miss Beatrice Herford, the squabbles and comments of the dainty waitresses. Here are some of her curious transcripts from reality:

"I told you six soups, not desserts—the beginning of the meal, not the finish! Can't you hear straight?"

"Here, Birdie, take back this coffee! It's so cold it gave the woman malaria!"

"Great Scott! This lettuce isn't fit for a horse! I'd sooner eat grass!"

"Oh, gee! Hurry up! It's for an old maid, and her temper's worse'n mine!"

"Say, you're the limit! I asked for fat meat, and you've given me a joint—nothing! but bone! Wake up!"

Behind a screen, my correspondent tells me, they often imitate certain of the guests—mimicking their walk, even their table manners. And as for the remarks she overhears, she marvels less at their content than at the way they are uttered. "Such voices!" And so she expresses astonishment that at table, while waiting on the people, "these young women are ever quiet and demure and patient—soft tones and a cheery but dignified manner."—Boston Transcript.

Mammoth Cave.

For many years after the discovery of Mammoth cave the entire work of exploration was practically in the hands of negro slaves, the property of the man who owned the cave. Sometimes they would come to an obstacle that barred the passage, such as a great limestone rock or a yawning crevasse across the way. Such obstacles would often stop exploration in that direction for years, though beyond the obstruction there were likely to be scores of beautiful chambers and many miles of passageways. Thus it happened that for years nothing was known of that large part of the cave lying beyond the abyss named the Bottomless pit. This obstruction was known for over twenty years before it was crossed. Then one day in 1837 the negro cave explorer Stephen and some of his fellows dragged to the place the trunk of a small tree, and on this rather dangerous bridge Stephen crawled across the abyss. Then began the explorations that revealed one of the most wonderful and extensive parts of Mammoth cave. The abyss was found later to be 180 feet deep.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3d our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by L. Taggart.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with its greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Bottles only. Relieves indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas, etc.

Precious Stones and "Paste."

Glass, or "paste," as it is called, is made which cannot when new be distinguished from diamonds by any one but an expert armed with the necessary tests.

And the same is true as to paste imitations of all precious stones excepting the emerald (whose beautiful green tint cannot be exactly obtained), the cat's eye, which has a peculiar fibrous structure, and the opal. The real value and quality of precious stones as compared with glass depend on their durability, their hardness, their resistance to scratching and "dulling" of face and edge.

Even our Anglo-Saxon ancestors made gems of glass and paste. It is only in modern times that the art of making artificial "precious stones" has reached a degree of perfection which, so far as decorative purposes are concerned, leaves the natural stones no claim to superiority.—London Telegraph.

Official Precedence.

The Chicago Inter Ocean tells of the daughter of a well known representative who on her tenth birthday had a party, and one of the guests was the daughter of a senator. The birthday cake shone gloriously with ten candles.

A few weeks later the senator's daughter reached her eighth milestone, and a party was in order. Just before the guests arrived the small celebrant betook herself to the dining room to take a look at the festal board. High on its pedestal of crystal stood the birthday cake, and circling its snowy circumference were eight tiny candles, one for each year.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven—eight!" ejaculated the small hostess. "Mamma, mamma, please come here quick. They've only put eight candles on my birthday cake, and my father's a senator! Now, Mary had ten candles on her birthday cake, and she's only the daughter of a congressman."

Quick Wit.

Napoleon was pacing up and down one day before his quarters, planning probably some new scheme of conquest. He dropped his glove, and a common soldier happening along picked it up and returned it to him.

"Thank you, captain," said the emperor absentmindedly, not thinking that the man was only a private.

"Of which company, sire?" put in the soldier promptly, taking Napoleon at his word.

"Come to me tonight and you shall receive your commission," said the great commander.

He knew that that common soldier had the presence of mind necessary to make a good officer.

In the "Coaching" Days.

An amusing story is told of the coach which used to run between Edinburgh and Berwick. A passenger complained bitterly that the cushion on which he sat was wet. It appears that there was a hole in the roof, and through it the rain was pouring copiously. The passenger called the guard and in great wrath reproached him. All the satisfaction he got, however, was the quiet and typical Scotch reply, "Ay, mony a ane has complained aboot that hole."—St. James' Gazette.

Books in India.

In India the printed book is regarded as vulgar if not irreverent, and no devout Hindoo would allow his sacred writings to be contaminated by contact with leather prepared from the hide of some animal's dead body. A leather bound copy of the Bible is for him a remarkable illustration of Christian irreverence.—Churchman.

Pretty Black.

"What do you know of the character of this man?" was asked of a witness at a police court the other day.

"What do I know of his character? I know it to be unbleachable, your honor," he replied, with much emphasis.

Very Like a Bull.

Congressman Suedgrass was very green when he first came to congress. He began his maiden speech thus: "Mr. Speaker, I cannot sit still here and keep silence without rising and saying a few words."

When a distant relation becomes rich he is apt to become still more distant.

Some Witty Titles.

The pupils of one of the high schools of Philadelphia evinced great interest in a competition for a prize to be awarded the pupil who should submit the wittiest list of titles for twelve slim books on a dummy shelf. The following are some of the titles received in the competition:

"A New England Puss," by M. E. W.

"Thoughts On My Bed," Stead.

"On Different Tacks," by Van Hammer.

"Lizzie Wouldn't," by John Wood.

"The Fatal Blow," by John Knox.

Porter's "Tales of Lost Baggage."

"Lost in the Wash," by the author of "Bachelor's Buttons."

"Grinding the Poor," by Mill.

"Owe No Man," by O. W. Holmes.

"After the Ball," by the author of "Our National Game."

Morse on "Our Old Houses."

"Woodchucks and Rabbits," by Burroughs.

"E. E.," by the author of "My Double."

An Unconscious Meal.

Once John Muir, author and ranchman, was dining with a friend. They sat down, and Muir began to tell a story. The waiter came around several times, but the story was so good nothing was ordered. Muir talked and talked, and in between he would reach over and break off a piece of bread from a French loaf on the table. This he did a good many times. The story reminded him of another, and so he talked and ate bread until finally, being very hungry, his companion broke in with:

"Well, what shall I order for you, Mr. Muir?"

"Order?" he repeated in his abstraction.

"Yes, order—to eat."

He looked over at the last little remaining piece of bread on the plate and said, as if waking from a dream:

"Eat? Why, I've had all I want. That bread was bully."—Bookman.

Large Thumbs.

"People of great strength of character, who are guided by the head rather than the heart, have large thumbs," says Irving R. Bacon. "Whenever you see a person with a strikingly large, well developed thumb, you may be almost certain you have before you one who is a natural born ruler, eminently practical and fond of whatever is useful. Wherefore also he is fond of history. A large thumb woman may fall in love as deeply as her small thumb sister, but will not marry unless she can see a sufficient bread and butter supply ahead. But she is more apt to be a real helpmate when adversity comes."—New York Journal.

The Only "Merrymaking."

The school record kept by an old time teacher of "No. 6" in a New England village contains at least one item which moved a chance reader to smiles. It is this:

"Special honor badges were given to Flora and Minetta Lovett for the best attendance. During the entire school year they were not once absent to attend any picnic, reunion, excursion or merrymaking, the only exception being the afternoon of May 10, when their twin brothers were ill from the effect of something they had eaten and not expected to live, although they soon recovered."

No Visible Signals.

"Yessum," said Sandy Pikes as he devoured the wedge of pumpkin pie. "I sternly object to the nefarious practice of clipping off de tails of dogs."

"Ah, I am glad you are so tender hearted, my poor man," sympathized the good housewife.

"Well, it ain't exactly dat, mum, but when a dog hasn't any tail I can't tell by de wags if he is in a good humor or not, and it makes me skeery about approaching de house."—Chicago News.

Strict Truth.

May—She says she can trace her ancestry on her mother's side back to the conquest of England. Fay—That's correct. Her maternal grandmother was married in leap year to a man named England.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Ruling Passion.

"Why didn't your daughter go to Europe to study music, Mrs. Dibbs?"

"We've got her ready to go three times, and each time she decided she'd rather stay at home and show her clothes."

Beware of inquisitive people. An excessive curiosity to know all is generally accompanied by as great a desire to tell it again.
